Lewis, Spurning Offer Of Pay Boost, Signals Coal Miners To Strike

Walkout, Set for Monday, Would Affect Steel Output at Once

INTERVENTION BY U. S. LOOMS AS POSSIBILITY

Operators Reject "Principle" of Royalty To Go to Health Fund

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — John L. Lewis today signaled the 400,000 members of his United Mine Workers Union to lay down their tools next Monday.

Spurning the mine operators' offer of wage increases, he moved to shut off the nation's bituminous fuel supply for the second successive year in a bargaining showdown.

The only chances of averting a mine shutdown at a time when the country's production prospects were the brightest in months lay in the thin hope of an agreement in the few days left for negotiation, or in possible government intervention.

Operators said steel production—only recently resumed after a lengthy strike—would be affected "immediately" by a coal stoppage. Some steel mills would be forced to close within ten days, the coal men said. The union estimated, however, that upwards of 49,000,000 tons of coal would be above ground by Monday and that an average twenty-eight-day supply would be available to industry. Lewis said retail coal dealers' stocks averaged about a five-day supply, but that the supply in home fuel bins would be stretched by normal spring weather.

U. S. May Step In

The operators said they had virtually assured Lewis's AFL miners a wage increase equal to the eighteen and one half cents an hour granted to the CIO steel workers and auto workers, but that they had rejected the "principle" of a royalty to go to a health and welfare fund. They also declined to give federal mine inspectors' safety recommendations precedence over state mining laws.

Possibility that the government might step in again as it did last year to end an eleven-day shutdown was seen in the announcement of Howard T. Colvin, associate director

UAW Presidency Will Be at Stake In Election Today

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 26 (AP)—The United Auto Workers (CIO) convention was tense tonight on the eve of the election in which delegates will choose between Incumbent R. J. Thomas and Challenger Walter P. Reuther for presidency of the organization.

Two thousand delegates will cast about 8,000 votes tomorrow morning, climaxing the inter-union political battle that has dominated the convention and at times interfered with session proceedings. Votes are apportioned according to size of local unions.

The delegates took time out today from the battle to raise dues from $1 to $1.50 a month, effective in May, after defeating a previous proposal for $2 a month dues. George Addes, secretary-treasurer who is backing Thomas for re-election, favored the $2 dues.

But the presidential battle was uppermost concern of the union leaders, as whispering sessions were held in corridors and supporters claimed margins for both candidates.

Reuther followers said he would win by 900 to 1,000 votes. Those in Thomas's camp said he would carry the election by 700 ballots.

Backers of Reuther kept up a handbill campaign. Anti-Thomas leaflets demanded "Is he afraid of the facts?"—referring to Thomas's refusal to debate with Reuther on the convention floor.

Followers of Thomas, on the other hand, distributed pamphlets titled "Spike the Lies."

DETROIT, March 26 (AP)—Ending more than four months of strike-imposed idleness, thousands of General Motors production workers trekked back to their machines and assembly line posts today.

A handful of local issues, however, stalled back-to-work movements at a number of plants, while the recall in several others was planned on a progressive basis, covering up to ten days before full working forces will be on hand.

AFL Boss Objects To Baruch's Call For Strike Ban

William Green Appeals for Continuation of Price Controls

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—William Green, American Federation of Labor president, today coupled an appeal for continuation of price controls with a demand for a government hands-off policy in labor disputes.

The labor leader objected vigorously to Bernard M. Baruch's call for a one-year ban on strikes and lockouts—"by agreement preferably, otherwise by law." He also lambasted the government's new economic stabilization policy, as "contributing to industrial discontent."

Green appeared before the House Banking committee to denounce "profiteers" and call upon Congress to "avert the chaos which the premature abandonment of price controls would inevitably bring."

Prolong the life of OPA for another year without crippling amendments, he said, and continue rent ceilings even longer.

On OPA and rents, Green and Baruch were in accord. On this score President Truman also got support from housewives, with representatives of twenty organizations claiming membership of over 10,000,000 women calling for extension of OPA.

But on Baruch's call for a moratorium on strikes and lockouts, Green declared: "This would encourage hostile employers to take advantage of labor."

Moreover, he told the committee, the government's new "patchwork" economic policy says "I'll increase prices if you'll increase wages," and he added: "This does not help the working man. It is economically unsound. I hope the new stabilization policy will be terminated before long."

He viewed the future of labor as depending on "the least interference by government" in industry-labor disputes and said these disputes can best be solved by "genuine collective bargaining."

Bargaining now amounts to "shadow boxing," he said, because "there's a new philosophy to rely on government" for settlement of labor-management disputes.

Green said "profiteers" are trying to destroy price controls, and he told the committee:

71 CPA Officers Are Established To Administer Building Order

Federal Approval for All Types of Construction Is Required

House-Approved $253,000,000 Housing Bill Is Sent to Senate

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP) — A nationwide network of seventy-one federal offices was created tonight to administer a sweeping new order restricting many building activities so scarce materials can be channelled into lower cost homes for veterans.

A Civilian Production Administration order, effective now, requires advance federal approval for all types of construction—dwellings, industrial and commercial building and repairs; all except small jobs.

Swiftly following this move to free the materials for veterans housing, CPA announced that all new construction field offices were expected to be opened not later than Thurs- The CPA forbids the start of construction unless each new store, factory or dwelling is approved in advanue by one of the CPA offices. This means that factories and expensive homes may be banned wherever the materials are needed to provide shelter for homecoming servicemen and their families.

A CPA official said he expected that "not much material would be left" for luxury-type homes, in view of the expected demand for those costing $10,000 or less and renting for $80 or less—the type of dwelling now granted priority on materials.

Resembles Wartime Controls

The clamp-down was similar in many respects to the wartime controls over non-essential building. Almost simultaneously with its issuance, a $253,000,000 housing appropriation bill reached the floor of the House, which passed it almost unanimously and sent it to the Senate.

Veterans' housing, which already gets priority aid, will be authorized promptly, it was stated, but other dwellings will be approved only if materials are available. Construction actually under way as of today may be competed without authorization.

In addition, new orders are coming shortly, it was learned meanwhile, to broaden the emergency priority program to aid the housing drive. Two actions, expected from CPA tomorrow, will grant civilian "CC" priority to manufacturers of all thirteen of the so-called critical construction items—including lumber, bathtubs, bricks and radiators—who need new machinery or plant equipment to expand their output.

The housing restrictions were announced jointly by National Housing Expeditor Wilson W. Wyatt, Jr., and CPA Administrator John D. Small, who said public support was "vital" to their success. They are enforceable, however, under the Second War Powers act which provides

Truce Teams Will Be Sent into Manchuria

SHANGHAI, March 26 (AP) — The Chinese government and Communists agreed today to send their celebrated truce teams into Manchuria this week to head off a gathering threat of civil war.

Qualified sources close to executive headquarters at Peiping told Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis that four teams would fly to Southern Manchuria, probably Thursday.

A Nanking dispatch by AP Correspondent Harold K. Milks said the deadlock-breaking decision apparently was spurred by Russia's note announcing her troops would pull out of Manchuria by April 30.

Senate Group, Divided on Draft Question, Plans Public Hearings

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — Legislation to build the St. Lawrence seaway, crack down on James C. Petrillo and provide temporary housing for veterans made progress in Congress today.

But the proposal to continue the draft encountered a delay. The Senate Military committee found itself deadlocked on the question and decided to hold two weeks of public hearings before taking another vote.

The decision made it highly uncertain whether, if the draft extension is voted, the bill could be passed by Congress before the present law expires May 15. After the committee acts, the Senate then will get the measure for consideration. And if House and Senate differ on the terms of an extension, a compromise would have to be drafted and approved.

The Senate itself spent another day debating the bill to raise the minimum wage from forty to sixty-five cents an hour but put off any voting until tomorrow.

The proposed St. Lawrence seaway and power project, pending for years, won 5 to 1 approval of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee after long hearings. Its advocates predicted the full committee would okay it.

A Senate-House conference committee worked out a compromise

Truman To Take Up Horseshoe Pitching

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) —President Truman is going to take up horseshoe pitching for exercise, White House callers said today.

Rep. Bender (R-Ohio), one of a group of Ohioans who invited the president today to attend the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the City of Cleveland, said that Mr. Truman told them he is installing a horseshoe court in the south grounds of the White house.

"He told us he used to be good when he pitched in the barnyard, but is not so good now," Bender said.

Food Rationing Plan Is Rejected As Impracticable

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—President Truman's Famine emergency Committee decided today that food rationing in this country would be no help now in feeding the hungry of other lands.

The matter was discussed as a result of the rationing suggestion made by Herbert H. Lehman, retiring director general of UNRRA, as the committee met to review progress.

Chester C. Davis, chairman, told reporters that the immediate need was to send wheat and fats to famine areas by July and expressed the belief that voluntary measures would do the job.

"It will take four months to get new ration books printed and ration machinery re-established," said Davis, a former wartime food administrator. "There's no use talking about rationing for the present emergency."

Davis added that he did not mean to indicate whether there might or might not be a return to rationing later. That would be determined, he said, by subsequent events, including crop production here and abroad this year.

Davis said that the committee did not discuss other programs for voluntary reductions in food consumption. He declared that the suggestion of "wheatless days" had come up at a previous meeting and that the committee, acting upon the advice of the Agriculture department and the food industry, had turned it down as impracticable.

Davis announced that former President Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of the Famine committee, would include India on his tour of famine areas. Now in Europe, Hoover, is making a survey of food needs of hungry areas in behalf of this government.

Davis reported that progress was being made in shipments of wheat to Europe but that no accurate figures were available yet as to whether the March export goal of 1,000,000 tons would be met.

19 Persons Are Killed

MANILA, Wednesday, March 27 (AP)—Nineteen persons were killed and five injured critically in the crash of a C-47 transport plane in the Southern Luzon mountains Saturday.

All aboard were Filipino, army officers and enlisted men except for a United States army technical sergeant who escaped uninjured. He went to the aid of others. Army headquarters here said the sergeant's name was not immediately available.

Wives of Two Generals Are Included in Initial Contingent

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — Some 1,200 persons, the immediate families of 676 officers and twenty-four enlisted men, will sail for Europe in mid-April to join their breadwinners among occupation forces.

Included in the first mass movement of military dependents will be Mrs. Mark Clark, wife of the commanding general of American occupation forces in Austria, and Mrs. Lucius D. Clay, wife of the deputy commander of the American zone in Germany.

The War department announced the sailing list today. Every enlisted man who applied for transportation of his dependents was granted his request, the department said in explaining the small representation of men below commissioned rank.

It attributed the small number of applications from the enlisted grades to their decision to wait until they learned the location of their future assignments and what facilities would be available for their families.

Likewise, no applications of officers were turned down, the department said. The order in which members of the occupation forces became eligible to send for their families is decided on the basis of priorities set up chiefly, the department said, in accordance with how long the applicants remain overseas.

Additional applications for transportation of dependents during May and later months have been filed with the theater commander, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney.

On the sailing list are an 84-year old man, a 63-year old woman, a month-old baby, four pairs of twins and forty-two babies less than 1 year old. There will be 316 children between 1 and 16 years of age.

Smith To Inform Stalin Of Doubts Raised by Reds

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 26 (AP) — Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, new United States ambassador to Russia, said today he would tell Prime Minister Stalin that there was "a great amount of doubt as to just what Russia wants and what her motives are."

"The American people want to be reassured that the Russians are determined, as we are, to make the United Nations Organization a potent agency for world peace," the outspoken general said.

Smith, arriving at Eschborn airport enroute to Moscow, said he had no specific questions to confer with Stalin upon, but that he wished "to make clear the change in the American attitude."

He is not taking any proposals for a new meeting of the "Big Three," he added.

Petiot's Home Yields Parts of Ten Bodies

PARIS, March 26 (AP)—Parts of ten bodies dismembered "by a skilled and unerring hand," the limbs broken so that they would fit into a furnace, were pieced together by investigators in the uninhabited Paris mansion of Dr. Marcel Petiot, a French medical examiner testified today at Petiot's trial for wholesale murder.

The examiner, Dr. Albert Paul, said there was evidence of many more victims in the furnace and a limepit.

UNRRA Approves Ban on Armies "Living off Land"

Soviet Union Objects to Program, Initiated by United States

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 26—Despite Soviet objection UNRRA today approved a program, initiated by the United States, which would prohibit use of local supplies by occupying armies.

The Russian delegation opposed debating the proposal and refused to take part in the actual discussion.

With several nations abstaining from balloting, UNRRA's committee on policy adopted by a 25 to 0 vote provisions that would pledge member governments maintaining military forces in other countries to "refrain" from:

1—Consuming locally-produced food stuffs, fuel, or other supplies, which are normally included in an UNRRA program, or using land or other local resources which could be used for the production of supplies to meet the needs of the local population, and

2. Impeding the fair distribution of relief supplies, or the effective use of land or local resources for the production of such supplies."

The United States, in asking for the pledge, said the practices of occupation armies in Austria were those in question, but C. Tyler Wood, speaking for the United States, did not detail the practices to which the United States was objecting.

However, a member of the British delegation said in an interview that the Soviet troops in Austria were using local food supplies and farm lands which should be used for the needs of the Austrians.

Earlier Wood had recalled for the council an agreement of last September adopted by the Allied council for Austria (on which the United States, the United Kingdom and Russia sit) which pledged their governments to take no locally produced food for the occupation forces.

The council today put over to another session discussion on a third provision in the United States proposals which would cut UNRRA aid to nations where occupation armies are found to be using local supplies.

Throughout the debate the Soviet delegate refused to vote, as did France, Czechoslovakia, the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia.

Before the vote was taken N. I. Feonov, chief Soviet delegate, had warned that he could not take part in the discussion nor vote.

Feonov said he refused to take part in the debate because he did not have enough data on occupation practices in Austria to talk about them, and that UNRRA was not a

Senators Want Proof "Denatured" Plutonium Is Unfit for Atom Bomb

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — Senators called eagerly today for a practical demonstration on "denaturing" plutonium to provide only peaceful atomic energy but indicated reserves on proposals to vest sweeping controls in an international commission.

Members of the Senate Atomic Energy committee sought demonstrations on two points in the report of a scientific board presented to them by Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson:

1. That the denaturing process conclusively makes the energy-producing element unsuitable for bombs, as the scientists reported;

2. That insuperable difficulties would stand in the way of restoring the explosive qualities to the element, once it had been installed for industrial power production.

One senator, who did not wish his name used, said that all evidence before the committee indicates that the assembling of plutonium into a mass of sufficient size to operate a power plant accounts for about seventy-five per cent of the operation needed to produce a bomb.

He insisted that there must be greater assurances than the committee thus far has received that "denatured" plutonium can not be revitalized. Acheson was able to give only a brief explanation to the com-

FBI Arrests Russian On Espionage Charge

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) —J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, announced the apprehension tonight of Lt. Nicolai Gregorovich Redin, 29, on espionage charges in Portland, Ore., as he was about to board a Soviet vessel in the harbor.

An FBI announcement said Lt. Redin, a graduate of the Soviet Naval academy, has been under intensive FBI scrutiny for the past several months. It added he will be arraigned in Portland, as soon as a United States commissioner is available on the espionage charges.

The FBI declined further comment immediately.

Tehran Reports Deny Agreement Has Been Made

NEW YORK, March 26, (AP) — Word that Russia and Iran have not yet reached a hard and fast agreement for the settlement of their dispute has been received by United Nations delegates here from diplomatic sources in Tehran, it was learned tonight on excellent authority.

This fact was described by officials as underlying the repeated insistance of Britain and the United States in today's Security council meeting that Iran should be given an immediate hearing.

According to the latest diplomatic reports, the situation as between Tehran and Moscow is this:

The two governments are well advanced in negotiations for a settlement. Moscow has made fairly complete proposals but there is some indication that they may not be entirely acceptable to the Iranian government.

The Iranian government is understood to have worked out certain counterproposals which either have been or soon will be submitted to Russia.

CIO Strives To Bring Russia and Vatican Closer Together

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—Efforts to bring Russia and the Vatican into closer relationship are being made by CIO officials through world trade union connections with Moscow, it was reported today.

Informal conversations, conducted on an unofficial level, have been guided through exploratory stages by George Michanowsky, executive secretary of the CIO's Latin American Affairs Committee.

An informed person who cannot be named said that Michanowsky had conferred at length with representatives of the papal secretary of state in Washington and in New York. Michanowsky also has communicated privately with the Vatican itself, and with Moscow.

O'Conor Proclaims Period Of "Self Denial" in State

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 26 (AP)—Gov. O'Conor today proclaimed the next "one hundred and twenty days" a period of "self denial" in the state in co-operation with the Famine Emergency Committee.

The governor asked Marylanders "to follow to the limit of their ability the program of saving food as set forth by the campaign committee, that these starving people of other nations may be given the opportunity to survive x x x."

Byrnes Opposes Delay after Russia Suffers 9 to 2 Defeat

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council voted today to hear the Iranian-Russian case at its current meeting. Then, faced by an implied threat from Russia to walk out of the meeting, it turned over to a subcommittee the hot question of just when and how the Iranian government would be heard here.

United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet were named to the group, which was ordered to report to the Security council at 3 p. m. (E.S.T.) tomorrow.

The decision to name a subcommittee to consider at least three proposals affecting procedure in the Iranian case climaxed hours of argument over Russia's proposal that the hearing be postponed until April 10.

It came soon after Gromyko flatly declared that he would be unable to participate in any discussion of the substance of the Iranian situation before April 10. This was believed by some observers to be a threat to refuse to attend any session at which Hussein Ala, the Iranian ambassador to the United States, might be asked to speak.

Byrnes led the argument for hearing now what Iran wants to say.

No Hint of Agreement

Hussein Ala maintained after the six-hour council session that he was in constant communication with his government and that there had been no hint of any agreement with the Russians.

"I still am under instructions to protest to the United Nations Security Council the continued presence of Russian troops in Iran," he told the Associated Press, "as well as other matters."

"I have been instructed by my government also to protest any postponement of prompt consideration of our case by the council."

The Soviet delegate earlier had told the council—with the Iranian ambassador sitting in the spectator's gallery—that Russia and Iran had concluded an agreement for the withdrawal of Red Army troops from Iran and that all would be evacuated within five or six weeks "unless unforeseen circumstances should arise."

Delegates were obviously showing

Scientist Turned Over Data on New Explosive to Rose

MONTREAL, March 26 (AP)—Dr. Raymond Boyer, prominent scientist charged with conspiracy in the Soviet espionage case, testified today that he gave details of the new and secret super explosive RDX to Fred Rose, Communist member of the Canadian Parliament, "to help the Soviet Union."

Dr. Boyer, assistant professor of chemistry at McGill university in Montreal, who was cited by the Canadian government for "outstanding" work for the Allies during the war, said he met Rose at Rose's home "three or four times" over a period of a year and two months late in 1943 and in 1944.

Asked why he gave details of RDX to Rose, Dr. Boyer replied quickly: "I was anxious to do what I could to have the Soviet Union obtain the process officially from Canada."

Under questioning of Special Prosecutor F. Philippe Brais, Dr. Boyer said he did not recall whether Rose had ever told him that the information was being relayed in Russia. He said he knew that Rose had been a member of the Communist party.

Rose and Dr. Boyer were charged with conspiring together to give war secrets to Russia. The chemist was called by the prosecution at Rose's preliminary hearing to establish a prima facie case for trial.

The prosecution ended its case today and Judge Rene Theberge gave Rose an opportunity to make what he termed a "voluntary statement" on Thursday. At that time, if the judge decides a sufficient case has been made out, he will set a date for trial.

SHANGHAI, March 26 (AP) — The Chinese government and Communists agreed today to send their celebrated truce teams into Manchuria this week to head off a gathering threat of civil war.

Qualified sources close to executive headquarters at Peiping told Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Davis that four teams would fly to Southern Manchuria, probably Thursday.

A Nanking dispatch by AP Correspondent Harold K. Milks said the deadlock-breaking decision apparently was spurred by Russia's note announcing her troops would pull out of Manchuria by April 30.

Senate Group, Divided on Draft Question, Plans Public Hearings

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — Legislation to build the St. Lawrence seaway, crack down on James C. Petrillo and provide temporary housing for veterans made progress in Congress today.

But the proposal to continue the draft encountered a delay. The Senate Military committee found itself deadlocked on the question and decided to hold two weeks of public hearings before taking another vote.

The decision made it highly uncertain whether, if the draft extension is voted, the bill could be passed by Congress before the present law expires May 15. After the committee acts, the Senate then will get the measure for consideration. And if House and Senate differ on the terms of an extension, a compromise would have to be drafted and approved.

The Senate itself spent another day debating the bill to raise the minimum wage from forty to sixty-five cents an hour but put off any voting until tomorrow.

The proposed St. Lawrence seaway and power project, pending for years, won 5 to 1 approval of a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee after long hearings. Its advocates predicted the full committee would okay it.

Truman To Take Up Horseshoe Pitching

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) —President Truman is going to take up horseshoe pitching for exercise, White House callers said today.

Rep. Bender (R-Ohio), one of a group of Ohioans who invited the president today to attend the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the City of Cleveland, said that Mr. Truman told them he is installing a horseshoe court in the south grounds of the White house.

"He told us he used to be good when he pitched in the barnyard, but is not so good now," Bender said.

Food Rationing Plan Is Rejected As Impracticable

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—President Truman's Famine emergency Committee decided today that food rationing in this country would be no help now in feeding the hungry of other lands.

The matter was discussed as a result of the rationing suggestion made by Herbert H. Lehman, retiring director general of UNRRA, as the committee met to review progress.

Chester C. Davis, chairman, told reporters that the immediate need was to send wheat and fats to famine areas by July and expressed the belief that voluntary measures would do the job.

"It will take four months to get new ration books printed and ration machinery re-established," said Davis, a former wartime food administrator. "There's no use talking about rationing for the present emergency."

Davis added that he did not mean to indicate whether there might or might not be a return to rationing later. That would be determined, he said, by subsequent events, including crop production here and abroad this year.

Davis said that the committee did not discuss other programs for voluntary reductions in food consumption. He declared that the suggestion of "wheatless days" had come up at a previous meeting and that the committee, acting upon the advice of the Agriculture department and the food industry, had turned it down as impracticable.

Davis announced that former President Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of the Famine committee, would include India on his tour of famine areas. Now in Europe, Hoover, is making a survey of food needs of hungry areas in behalf of this government.

Davis reported that progress was being made in shipments of wheat to Europe but that no accurate figures were available yet as to whether the March export goal of 1,000,000 tons would be met.

19 Persons Are Killed

MANILA, Wednesday, March 27 (AP)—Nineteen persons were killed and five injured critically in the crash of a C-47 transport plane in the Southern Luzon mountains Saturday.

All aboard were Filipino army officers and enlisted men except for a United States army technical sergeant who escaped uninjured. He went to the aid of others. Army headquarters here said the sergeant's name was not immediately available.

Wives of Two Generals Are Included in Initial Contingent

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — Some 1,200 persons, the immediate families of 676 officers and twenty-four enlisted men, will sail for Europe in mid-April to join their breadwinners among occupation forces.

Included in the first mass movement of military dependents will be Mrs. Mark Clark, wife of the commanding general of American occupation forces in Austria, and Mrs. Lucius D. Clay, wife of the deputy commander of the American zone in Germany.

The War department announced the sailing list today. Every enlisted man who applied for transportation of his dependents was granted his request, the department said in explaining the small representation of men below commissioned rank.

It attributed the small number of applications from the enlisted grades to their decision to wait until they learned the location of their future assignments and what facilities would be available for their families.

Likewise, no applications of officers were turned down, the department said. The order in which members of the occupation forces became eligible to send for their families is decided on the basis of priorities set up chiefly, the department said, in accordance with how long the applicants remain overseas.

Additional applications for transportation of dependents during May and later months have been filed with the theater commander, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney.

On the sailing list are an 84-year old man, a 63-year old woman, a month-old baby, four pairs of twins and forty-two babies less than 1 year old. There will be 316 children between 1 and 16 years of age.

Smith To Inform Stalin Of Doubts Raised by Reds

FRANKFURT, Germany, March 26 (AP) — Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, new United States ambassador to Russia, said today he would tell Prime Minister Stalin that there was "a great amount of doubt as to just what Russia wants and what her motives are."

"The American people want to be reassured that the Russians are determined, as we are, to make the United Nations Organization a potent agency for world peace," the outspoken general said.

Smith, arriving at Eschborn airport enroute to Moscow, said he had no specific questions to confer with Stalin upon, but that he wished "to make clear the change in the American attitude."

He is not taking any proposals for a new meeting of the "Big Three," he added.

Petiot's Home Yields Parts of Ten Bodies

PARIS, March 26 (AP)—Parts of ten bodies dismembered "by a skilled and unerring hand," the limbs broken so that they would fit into a furnace, were pieced together by investigators in the uninhabited Paris mansion of Dr. Marcel Petiot, a French medical examiner testified today at Petiot's trial for wholesale murder.

The examiner, Dr. Albert Paul, said there was evidence of many more victims in the furnace and a limepit.

UNRRA Approves Ban on Armies "Living off Land"

Soviet Union Objects to Program, Initiated by United States

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 26—Despite Soviet objection UNRRA today approved a program, initiated by the United States, which would prohibit use of local supplies by occupying armies.

The Russian delegation opposed debating the proposal and refused to take part in the actual discussion.

With several nations abstaining from balloting, UNRRA's committee on policy adopted by a 25 to 0 vote provisions that would pledge member governments maintaining military forces in other countries to "refrain" from:

1—Consuming locally-produced food stuffs, fuel, or other supplies, which are normally included in an UNRRA program, or using land or other local resources which could be used for the production of supplies to meet the needs of the local population, and

2. Impeding the fair distribution of relief supplies, or the effective use of land or local resources for the production of such supplies."

The United States, in asking for the pledge, said the practices of occupation armies in Austria were those in question, but C. Tyler Wood, speaking for the United States, did not detail the practices to which the United States was objecting.

However, a member of the British delegation said in an interview that the Soviet troops in Austria were using local food supplies and farm lands which should be used for the needs of the Austrians.

Earlier Wood had recalled for the council an agreement of last September adopted by the Allied council for Austria (on which the United States, the United Kingdom and Russia sit) which pledged their governments to take no locally produced food for the occupation forces.

The council today put over to another session discussion on a third provision in the United States proposals which would cut UNRRA aid to nations where occupation armies are found to be using local supplies.

Throughout the debate the Soviet delegate refused to vote, as did France, Czechoslovakia, the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia.

Before the vote was taken N. I. Feonov, chief Soviet delegate, had warned that he could not take part in the discussion nor vote.

Feonov said he refused to take part in the debate because he did not have enough data on occupation practices in Austria to talk about them, and that UNRRA was not a

Senators Want Proof "Denatured" Plutonium Is Unfit for Atom Bomb

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) — Senators called eagerly today for a practical demonstration on "denaturing" plutonium to provide only peaceful atomic energy but indicated reserves on proposals to vest sweeping controls in an international commission.

Members of the Senate Atomic Energy committee sought demonstrations on two points in the report of a scientific board presented to them by Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson:

1. That the denaturing process conclusively makes the energy-producing element unsuitable for bombs, as the scientists reported;

2. That insuperable difficulties would stand in the way of restoring the explosive qualities to the element, once it had been installed for industrial power production.

One senator, who did not wish his name used, said that all evidence before the committee indicates that the assembling of plutonium into a mass of sufficient size to operate a power plant accounts for about seventy-five per cent of the operation needed to produce a bomb.

He insisted that there must be greater assurances than the committee thus far has received that "denatured" plutonium can not be revitalized. Acheson was able to give only a brief explanation to the com-

Question of Procedure Goes to Subcommittee After Hours of Debate

FBI Arrests Russian On Espionage Charge

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) —J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, announced the apprehension tonight of Lt. Nicolai Gregorovich Redin, 29, on espionage charges in Portland, Ore., as he was about to board a Soviet vessel in the harbor.

An FBI announcement said Lt. Redin, a graduate of the Soviet Naval academy, has been under intensive FBI scrutiny for the past several months. It added he will be arraigned in Portland, as soon as a United States commissioner is available on the espionage charges.

The FBI declined further comment immediately.

Tehran Reports Deny Agreement Has Been Made

NEW YORK, March 26. (AP) — Word that Russia and Iran have not yet reached a hard and fast agreement for the settlement of their dispute has been received by United Nations delegates here from diplomatic sources in Tehran, it was learned tonight on excellent authority.

This fact was described by officials as underlying the repeated insistance of Britain and the United States in today's Security council meeting that Iran should be given an immediate hearing.

According to the latest diplomatic reports, the situation as between Tehran and Moscow is this:

The two governments are well advanced in negotiations for a settlement. Moscow has made fairly complete proposals but there is some indication that they may not be entirely acceptable to the Iranian government.

The Iranian government is understood to have worked out certain counterproposals which either have been or soon will be submitted to Russia.

CIO Strives To Bring Russia and Vatican Closer Together

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—Efforts to bring Russia and the Vatican into closer relationship are being made by CIO officials through world trade union connections with Moscow, it was reported today.

Informal conversations, conducted on an unofficial level, have been guided through exploratory stages by George Michanowsky, executive secretary of the CIO's Latin American Affairs Committee.

An informed person who cannot be named said that Michanowsky had conferred at length with representatives of the papal secretary of state in Washington and in New York. Michanowsky also has communicated privately with the Vatican itself, and with Moscow.

O'Conor Proclaims Period Of "Self Denial" in State

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 26 (AP)—Gov. O'Conor today proclaimed the next "one hundred and twenty days" a period of "self denial" in the state in co-operation with the Famine Emergency Committee.

The governor asked Marylanders "to follow to the limit of their ability the program of saving food as set forth by the campaign committee, that these starving people of other nations may be given the opportunity to survive x x x."

Group Is Named after Threat from Soviet To Quit Meeting

TRIO IS DIRECTED TO REPORT TODAY

Byrnes Opposes Delay after Russia Suffers 9 to 2 Defeat

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council voted today to hear the Iranian-Russian case at its current meeting. Then, faced by an implied threat from Russia to walk out of the meeting, it turned over to a subcommittee the hot question of just when and how the Iranian government would be heard here.

United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet were named to the group, which was ordered to report to the Security council at 3 p. m. (E.S.T.) tomorrow.

The decision to name a subcommittee to consider at least three proposals affecting procedure in the Iranian case climaxed hours of argument over Russia's proposal that the hearing be postponed until April 10.

It came soon after Gromyko flatly declared that he would be unable to participate in any discussion of the substance of the Iranian situation before April 10. This was believed by some observers to be a threat to refuse to attend any session at which Hussein Ala, the Iranian ambassador to the United States, might be asked to speak.

Byrnes led the argument for hearing now what Iran wants to say.

No Hint of Agreement

Hussein Ala maintained after the six-hour council session that he was in constant communication with his government and that there had been no hint of any agreement with the Russians.

"I still am under instructions to protest to the United Nations Security Council the continued presence of Russian troops in Iran," he told the Associated Press, "as well as other matters."

"I have been instructed by my government also to protest any postponement of prompt consideration of our case by the council."

The Soviet delegate earlier had told the council—with the Iranian ambassador sitting in the spectator's gallery—that Russia and Iran had concluded an agreement for the withdrawal of Red Army troops from Iran and that all would be evacuated within five or six weeks "unless unforeseen circumstances should arise."

Delegates were obviously showing

Scientist Turned Over Data on New Explosive to Rose

MONTREAL, March 26 (AP)—Dr. Raymond Boyer, prominent scientist charged with conspiracy in the Soviet espionage case, testified today that he gave details of the new and secret super explosive RDX to Fred Rose, Communist member of the Canadian Parliament, "to help the Soviet Union."

Dr. Boyer, assistant professor of chemistry at McGill university in Montreal, who was cited by the Canadian government for "outstanding" work for the Allies during the war, said he met Rose at Rose's home "three or four times" over a period of a year and two months late in 1943 and in 1944.

Asked why he gave details of RDX to Rose, Dr. Boyer replied quickly:

"I was anxious to do what I could to have the Soviet Union obtain the process officially from Canada."

Under questioning of Special Prosecutor F. Phillippe Brais, Dr. Boyer said he did not recall whether Rose had ever told him that the information was being relayed in Russia. He said he knew that Rose had been a member of the Communist party.

Rose and Dr. Boyer were charged with conspiring together to give war secrets to Russia. The chemist was called by the prosecution at Rose's preliminary hearing to establish a prima facie case for trial.

The prosecution ended its case today and Judge Rene Theberge gave Rose an opportunity to make what he termed a "voluntary statement" on Thursday. At that time, if the judge decides a sufficient case has been made out, he will set a date for trial.

Rubber Workers Report Progress On Wage Issue

Union To Ask for "Final Offer;" Meeting Planned Sunday

The executive board of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, said late last evening some progress has been made in wage negotiations with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here.

The progress, according to Ralph C. Beard, president, was reported to the executive board at a meeting held from 7:30 to 11 p. m. in the union hall. The executive board statement read:

"Upon the recommendation of the executive board a committee was instructed to arrange another meeting with management to obtain their best and final offer in writing.

"The executive board recommended that this offer be presented to the membership of the local Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for acceptance or rejection."

The place of the meeting had not been set last evening and will be announced later, union officials said.

Union officials will meet with management this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Kelly plant for another negotiation session.

Negotiations were continued yesterday from 1 to 5 p. m. The union last Sunday rejected a company proposal of eight cents an hour on its demand for an eighteen and one-half cent increase.

A company representative said yesterday's discussion touched on the interpretation, life of the agreement and the coverage of an increase, points which, he explained, are necessary before a final wage increase can be agreed upon.

The company official said he believed some progress was made at yesterday's session which was attended by Edmund S. Burke, Kelly president.

71 CPA Officers

Advisory Committees

An advisory committee of prominent citizens will work with each CPA field office, Small announced, and will review each project "in the light of the peculiarities of the local situation."

The CPA administrator gave assurance also that "certain necessary new construction activities will be permitted to go forward side by side with veterans' housing."

These include essential farm, industrial and commercial projects which cannot be postponed, as well as "unusual hardship" cases of civilian housing. These must get individual approval, but blanket exemption is given to repair, alteration, construction or installation jobs whose cost does not exceed these sums:

1. Houses for five or fewer families or other structures, such as a garage on residential property; also farmhouss—$400 a job.

2. Hotel, apartment or other residential building for more than five families—$1,000 a job.

3. Commercial or service establishment, such as office, store, theater, radio station, gas station—$1,000 a job.

4. Farm buildings except farm houses—$1,000 a job.

5. Church, hospital, school, public building, charitable institution — $1,000 a job.

Projects May Be Completed

6. Factory or industrial plant; logging and lumber camp; airport building or bus or train terminal; railway or street car building; research laboratory; motion picture set; utility building, such as telephone or telegraph; gas or petroleum refining or distribution plant—$15,000 a job.

7. Other structures—$200 a job.

Projects already started may be completed if any of the materials which are to be "an integral part of the structure have been incorporated on the site" before today, and if work is being carried on at present.

An official gave these examples: If only a basement excavation existed, work would have to stop. If the concrete forms were up, but no concrete poured, work would have to cease because the forms are not "an integral part" of the structure. But if concrete had been poured in the forms, construction of the entire project could continue.

version of legislation aimed at curbing the activities of Petrillo as president of the AFL American Federation of Musicians. The two chambers had passed differing measures. The compromise, which now must be approved by Senate and House, would ban the collection of fees for "standby" musicians who do no work and the payment of royalties to the union on broadcasts of records.

An appropriation of $253,727,000 to finance temporary housing for veterans was passed by the House and sent to the Senate on a roll-call vote of 355 to 1, the "1" being Rep. Jessie Sumner (R-Ill).

Meanwhile Housing Administrator Wilson Wyatt appealed to the Senate Banking committee for the building material subsidy program which the House rejected. He called it "indispensable" for the the plan to get 2,700,000 new houses built this year and next, but some Republican senators questioned it.

Another appropriation bill, carrying $233,179,153 to see various departments through the rest of this fiscal year ending June 30, was sent to the House by its Appropriations committee. It includes $16,135,000 additional for the internal revenue bureau to run down tax evasions.

A ten per cent cut in individual income taxes in 1947 on condition that federal expenditures are reduced $5,000,000,000 from budget forecasts was proposed in a House speech by Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), of the Ways and Means committee, which deals with taxes. He introduced a bill for this purpose which also would reduce the authorized public debt limit.

A $700,000 program for federal aid to states to prevent prostitution was approved by the Senate Labor committee.

Question of

a disposition to end the long discussion late in the day and the Polish delegate presented a motion to adjourn. Then, Bonnet, for France, suggested that the subcommittee be appointed to try to bring into focus the varying proposals affecting the Iranian case, some of which, he said, were already very close together.

Nine Favor Motion

On the call for the vote, the chairman reported nine of the eleven members favored the motion. No negative vote was called for but it was observed that the Mexican and the Netherlands delegates did not raise their hands when the vote was taken.

Mexico and Netherlands thus were deemed not voting rather than voting against the motion. Russia and Poland, which had opposed all efforts to take up the Iranian charges, thus were included among those favoring a committee to decide the immediate issue of procedure.

Secretary Byrnes vigorously opposed any postponement of the issue without giving Iran a chance to be heard. He pounded the council table as he pressed home his contention that to postpone the case without hearing Iran would be a violation of the Charter.

Byrnes noted that the Iran delegate was in the council hall.

"He can hear the representative of the Soviet government speak for the Iranian government," Byrnes continued heatedly. "He can hear the Associated Press quoted. He can hear everybody speak for a government but he can't speak for his own government. x x x We cannot proceed to vote on a question of postponing upon a matter of this kind until we give the representative of the complaining government an opportunity to be heard."

Gromyko Quotes Stalin

Gromyko had quoted statements to the Associated Press by the prime minister of Iran and also Prime Minister Stalin's recent statement to the AP in Moscow.

There are now before the council the Russian proposal to postpone consideration of the Iranian case until April 10, and the following counterproposals which the subcommittee must consider:

1. A motion by the Egyptian delegate, Mahmoud Hassan Pasha, that Iran be asked to sit at the table with the council, and make a statement without prejudice to the question of postponing the case to April 10, and

2. A motion by the Australian delegate, Lt.-Col. W. R. Hodgson, that the matter remain on the agenda, that neither party take action to alter the present situation, and that Iran submit a carefully documented statement on the case so that the council might decide duly and in the full light of the facts.

At the outset of the council's session this morning, Gromyko cited the recent exchange of letters between Prime Minister Stalin and Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, to show that Russia still is solidly with the United Nations and is anxious for peace.

The United States and Great Britain won their battle to bring the Russian-Iranian case before the Security council when the world peace agency decided by a 9 to 2 vote to place the question upon its agenda.

Russia, Poland Oppose

Russia and Poland teamed in opposition to hearing the Iranian case. Lining up with the United States and Britain were Australia, Mexico, Egypt, the Netherlands, France, Brazil and China.

There were two votes. First, the chairman, Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, called for a show of hands on the Russian proposal to delete item No. 4 from the agenda—item No. 4 being the Iranian case. Only Russia and Poland voted for that proposal and the chairman declared it was lost without taking a further vote.

Then the chairman called for a show of hands on adopting the entire agenda, including item No. 4, as presented by the secretary-general, Trygve Lie. Nine hands showed for the proposal and the chairman declared it approved.

During the morning the United States, Britain, Australia, Mexico and the Netherlands joined in the view that the Iranian case should be heard. Egypt during the morning wanted to hear Iran's argument before deciding whether to entertain the case, but during the afternoon Egypt voted with the others to bring the case up.

Russia and Poland both insisted there was nothing to bring before the Security council.

Russia's Argument

Russia's argument was that an agreement between Moscow and Tehran on removing Soviet troops from Iran took care of the case.

Byrnes, who followed closely the arguments of the Soviet delegate, blocked a move by the chairman of the council to adjourn the meeting until tomorrow afternoon.

Byrnes asked that the council members adjourn for lunch and then continue the discussions in the afternoon. The council approved the motion and adjourned, with Byrnes and at least two others serving notice they desired to speak immediately upon reconvening.

The Soviet delegate, in his opening address to the council, said that "negotiations between the Soviet government and the government of Iran have resulted in an agreement regarding the evacuation of Soviet troops still in that country." In view of that agreement, he maintained, the subject of the Iranian issue was not fitting to be placed on the agenda.

After Byrnes and Sir Alexander Cadogan, the British delegate, expressed sharp disagreement with him, Gromyko in his earnest and at times rapid Russian said "it seems that Mr. Byrnes and Sir Alexander are being more Iranian than the Iranians who apparently are satisfied."

UNRRA Approves

competent body to discuss such issues, since they are political, and UNRRA is purely a relief agency.

Wood, whose seat under alphabetical arrangements is next to Feonov's, was on his feet immediately to say that any move to sidetrack the problem, on the basis that it was a political question, was "the course of cowardice," and he would "deplore such a course in any international agency."

France, which usually votes with the United States and the United Kingdom, took a surprise stand in asking that the question be put over to the midsummer meeting of UNRRA.

Lewis, Spurning

of the United States Conciliation Service, that "the government will now interest itself in the case."

However, Dan H. Wheeler, depuy solid fuels administrator, whose agency took over the mines in 1945, said that while the agency was "considering what to do," no conclusions had been reached.

The miners won pay increases averaging about $1.13 a day last year. After a series of strikes in 1943 they won their fight for pay for the time spent in going from the mine mouth to their place of work.

After rejecting the operators' offer, Lewis served formal notice that the present contract will be terminated as of midnight Sunday. The contract, negotiated last year, was to run indefinitely, but can be ended by either the union or the operators.

Negotiations To Continue

The door was not closed entirely to agreement by Sunday on a new contract, however. Both Lewis and the operators, who held separate news conferences to disclose the developments, said negotiations would continue tomorrow.

Lewis refused to extend the present one-year-old agreement. He said the miners had been "defrauded" ot of retroactive pay in the past. Apparently he referred to the contract of 1943, finally signed in November of that year after a series of intermittent strikes which began in the spring. The old contract had been extended in the meantime.

Harry M. Moses, representative of the "captive" mines of United States Steel Corporation and others in the negotiations, said that in fifteen days of negotiating, "We have not determined from the mine workers one definite thing they want."

Lewis, refusing to discuss wages and hours unless the operators agreed to the "principle" of a health and welfare fund, called the operators' counterproposals "a mumbo-jumbo of something entirely unsatisfactory."

Lewis said that a stoppage next week would save the lives of thirty-three miners and avert injury to hundreds more who would normally be hurt in the mines in one week "but who instead will be home with their families."

Senators Warn

mittee yesterday before he was called away by other duties.

Some opposition within the committee also was apparent to the proposals, made by a special committee headed by TVA's David E. Lilienthal, for world-wide control of atomic energy.

Senators said Secretary of State Byrnes may be called before the group to explain whether he officially backs the proposals. Members noted that the report carried neither the endorsement of Byrnes nor of President Truman.

They were in a quandary, too, as to how the Lilienthal proposals might affect domestic control legislation which they expect to complete this week.

One senator noted that if the international control plan becomes an official American proposal before the United Nations Organization, it would overreach any domestic legislation since primary controls of atomic developments would be vested in the international group.

The committee already has under consideration an amendment to proposed domestic control legislation which would permit the private mining of fissionable materials.

This would clash directly with the proposal of the Lilienthal group that the United Nations Commission have direct supervision of the mining of uranium and thorium, the chief fissionables ores.

Widow Is Quizzed In Mate's Slaying

BEDFORD, Ia., March 26 (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Worm, 41, an attractive brunette, was taken into custody this afternoon for questioning in the two and a half year old slaying of her husband, Tommy, 42.

First degree murder charges were filed earlier against Henry Schmitt, 62, a six-foot, two-inch, 200-pound Lenox, Ia., horse trader, the father of four grown children, accusing him of the November 4, 1943 killing.

No charges were on file against Mrs. Worm. After a long conference with officials, she left the court house with two officers, who said she was "co-operating in clearing up some angles."

Attired in a tight-fitting mustard-colored dress and accompanied by her good-looking only son, Carroll, 24, just released as an air corps first lieutenant, Mrs. Worm was brought from her farm home near Conway, Ia., to County Attorney Ralph C. Jones's office.

Sheriff J. T. Caskey and State Agent Robert Gregson said Schmitt signed a statement in which he admitted shooting Worm, then burying the body with the widow's help on a Schmitt-owned Southern Iowa farm near Lenox.

Fearful of discovery, the statement continued, Schmitt dug up Worm's body the next day, reburied it in a field on another farm near Creston. A few days later, he said, the body was exhumed a second time, taken about 200 miles by car and weighted, sent splashing to the bottom of the Mississippi river south of Keokuk, Ia.

Medal for O'Conor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 26 (AP)—A Selective Service honor medal will be presented to Gov. O'Conor tomorrow by Col. Henry C. Stanwood, director of Selective Service in Maryland. The governor recommended to the president approximately 1,050 persons to serve in the draft setup.

Lane and O'Conor Win Additional Support In Montgomery County

ROCKVILLE, Md., March 26 (AP)—Delegates to the Montgomery County Democratic Congress tonight unanimously endorsed W. Preston Lane, Jr., for the party's gubernatorial nomination, and Gov. O'Conor for the senatorial nomination.

Arch McDonald, sports broadcaster, was endorsed for the Democratic nomination for Sixth district representative.

Under rules of the congress the names must be presented again, two weeks, hence, but since their were no dissenting votes tonight, party leaders considered the second endorsement a formality.

In his Baltimore headquarters yesterday, Lane received endorsements of the Montgomery State Central Committee, the county commissioners and other ranking party members.

Authority To Operate New Radio Station Here Is Requested

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—Two Maryland companies applied to the Federal Communications Commission today for authority to operate radio stations. Applications are:

WHOW, Inc., to operate a new FM station at Baltimore.

The Tri-State Broadcasting Company to operate a new station at Cumberland, Md., on 1340 kilocycles, 250 watts power and unlimited hours.

Grand Jury Indicts Four Railroad Guards

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., March 26—(AP)—An indictment charging four Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad guards with manslaughter was returned today by the McLean county grand jury.

The charge stemmed from the fatal shooting of two pickets along the strikebound railroad at Gridley, Ill., February 6 in a fracas in which three other pickets were wounded.

Circuit Judge William C. Radcliffe, before whom the indictment was returned, set Friday for the arraignment of the guards who were at liberty under $20,000 bond each on previously preferred murder charges. The grand jurors, since last Thusday, heard forty-nine witnesses including strikers, railroad employes and spectators to the affray.

The guards are Lewis A. Smith and Raleigh J. Smith, Blandinsville; Everett J. Parks, Canton, and Roy Dalley, Peoria.

Tennessee Soldier Will Receive Medal of Honor From President Today

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—The nation's capital was thrown wide open to a Tennessee mountain family in recognition today of the valor of one of its sons, a 132-pound soldier who risked death several times to save the lives of comrades.

Tomorrow, President Truman will present the Congressional Medal of Honor—the nation's highest military decoration—to Tech. Sgt. Charles L. McGaha, Cosby, Tenn.

McGaha, who enlisted in the army in 1937, participated in the Pearl Harbor attack, the Guadalcanal and the Solomons campaigns. When on Luzon he was cited for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepedity." He could have been discharged as a lieutenant but chose to re-enlist without officer's rank.

Yesterday he came from his post at Fort Benning, Ga., accompanied by his 86-year-old grandmother, his mother, two cousins, two aunts and a soldier friend.

Germany under Nazis Was Virtual Madhouse, According to Witness

NUERNBERG, March 26. (AP)—A voluble defense witness today portrayed Germany under Nazis as a virtual madhouse where "anyone even halfway normal was called weak," and whose foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, had a "certain hypnotic dependence on Hilter."

As von Ribbentrop, reportedly suffering from a neuro-muscular affliction which has affected his voice, opened his fight or life, his first defense witness hacked at the Nazi myth o the "superman" in testimony before the international military tribunal.

Bald, loquacious Adolf von Steengracht, who was first secretary in the Nazi foreign office after 1940, damned Hitler, Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels as violent, bloodthirsty men who rejected expert counsel.

Steengracht declared the German people were innocent of knowledge of Nazi misdeeds. He pictured von Ribbentrop as one who had been a well-meaning man, and who, despite "soldierly obedience" to Hitler, had the courage often to protest the fuehrer's policies.

Pullen Accuses VA of Violating Rights of States

BALTIMORE, March 26—(AP)—Charging the Veterans' Administration with violating states' rights, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., president of the National Council of Chief State School Officers, today branded as "unsatisfactory and inefficient" a VA plan to use its personnel to investigate and approve business concerns conducting on-the-job training for veterans.

"I speak for forty-eight state superintendents of schools who are members of our organization when I say that this plan is unsatisfactory and inefficient," Pullen declared.

"Congress has placed upon state educational agencies the responsibility of approving all educational institutions and establishments offering training for veterans," he said.

"Unfortunately, however, it made most of the state agencies impotent to carry out this requirement as it gave no funds with which to employ the necessary personnel to do the supervising of the establishments."

Pullen, who is also Maryland superintendent of schools, said he and a committee of other state school superintendents had requested financial assistance for the supervision job from the Veterans' Administration, but was told the VA had no authority to use its funds for this purpose.

"The Veterans' Administration was then requested to ask Congress for funds to distribute to the state educational agencies for this purpose, and this request was refused. But a counterproposal was made that the state educational agencies use the personnel of the Veterans' Administration to do the investigating," he said.

"This plan is unsatisfactory because it is inefficient and would not protect the veteran educationally, and because it violates the principles of state control of education.

"This is a clear violation of states' rights."

Rubber Workers Report Progress On Wage Issue

Union To Ask for "Final Offer;" Meeting Planned Sunday

The executive board of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, said late last evening some progress has been made in wage negotiations with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here.

The progress, according to Ralph C. Beard, president, was reported to the executive board at a meeting held from 7:30 to 11 p. m. in the union hall. The executive board statement read:

"Upon the recommendation of the executive board a committee was instructed to arrange another meeting with management to obtain their best and final offer in writing.

"The executive board recommended that this offer be presented to the membership of the local Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for acceptance or rejection."

The place of the meeting had not been set last evening and will be announced later, union officials said.

Union officials will meet with management this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Kelly plant for another negotiation session.

Negotiations were continued yesterday from 1 to 5 p. m. The union last Sunday rejected a company proposal of eight cents an hour on its demand for an eighteen and one-half cent increase.

A company representative said yesterday's discussion touched on the interpretation, life of the agreement and the coverage of an increase, points which, he explained, are necessary before a final wage increase can be agreed upon.

The company official said he believed some progress was made at yesterday's session which was attended by Edmund S. Burke, Kelly president.

71 CPA Officers

Advisory Committees

An advisory committee of prominent citizens will work with each CPA field office, Small announced, and will review each project "in the light of the peculiarities of the local situation."

The CPA administrator gave assurance also that "certain necessary new construction activities will be permitted to go forward side by side with veterans' housing."

These include essential farm, industrial and commercial projects which cannot be postponed, as well as "unusual hardship" cases of civilian housing. These must get individual approval, but blanket exemption is given to repair, alteration, construction or installation jobs whose cost does not exceed these sums:

1. Houses for five or fewer families or other structures, such as a garage on residential property; also farmhouss—$400 a job.
2. Hotel, apartment or other residential building for more than five families—$1,000 a job.
3. Commercial or service establishment, such as office, store, theater, radio station, gas station—$1,000 a job.
4. Farm buildings except farm houses—$1,000 a job.
5. Church, hospital, school, public building, charitable institution —$1,000 a job.

Projects May Be Completed

6. Factory or industrial plant; logging and lumber camp; airport building or bus or train terminal; railway or street car building; research laboratory; motion picture set; utility building, such as telephone or telegraph; gas or petroleum refining or distribution plant—$15,000 a job.
7. Other structures—$200 a job.

Projects already started may be completed if any of the materials which are to be "an integral part of the structure have been incorporated on the site" before today, and if work is being carried on at present.

An official gave these examples: If only a basement excavation existed, work would have to stop. If the concrete forms were up, but no concrete poured, work would have to cease because the forms are not "an integral part" of the structure. But if concrete had been poured in the forms, construction of the entire project could continue.

version of legislation aimed at curbing the activities of Petrillo as president of the AFL American Federation of Musicians. The two chambers had passed differing measures. The compromise, which now must be approved by Senate and House, would ban the collection of fees for "standby" musicians who do no work and the payment of royalties to the union on broadcasts of records.

An appropriation of $253,727,000 to finance temporary housing for veterans was passed by the House and sent to the Senate on a roll-call vote of 355 to 1, the "1" being Rep. Jessie Sumner (R-Ill).

Meanwhile Housing Administrator Wilson Wyatt appealed to the Senate Banking committee for the building material subsidy program which the House rejected. He called it "indispensable" for the the plan to get 2,700,000 new houses built this year and next, but some Republican senators questioned it.

Another appropriation bill, carrying $233,179,153 to see various departments through the rest of this fiscal year ending June 30, was sent to the House by its Appropriations committee. It includes $16,135,000 additional for the internal revenue bureau to run down tax evasions.

A ten per cent cut in individual income taxes in 1947 on condition that federal expenditures are reduced $5,000,000,000 from budget forecasts was proposed in a House speech by Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), of the Ways and Means committee, which deals with taxes. He introduced a bill for this purpose which also would reduce the authorized public debt limit.

A $700,000 program for federal aid to states to prevent prostitution was approved by the Senate Labor committee.

a disposition to end the long discussion late in the day and the Polish delegate presented a motion to adjourn. Then, Bonnet, for France, suggested that the subcommittee be appointed to try to bring into focus the varying proposals affecting the Iranian case, some of which, he said, were already very close together.

Nine Favor Motion

On the call for the vote, the chairman reported nine of the eleven members favored the motion. No negative vote was called for but it was observed that the Mexican and the Netherlands delegates did not raise their hands when the vote was taken.

Mexico and Netherlands thus were deemed not voting rather than voting against the motion. Russia and Poland, which had opposed all efforts to take up the Iranian charges, thus were included among those favoring a committee to decide the immediate issue of procedure.

Secretary Byrnes vigorously opposed any postponement of the issue without giving Iran a chance to be heard. He pounded the council table as he pressed home his contention that to postpone the case without hearing Iran would be a violation of the Charter.

Byrnes noted that the Iran delegate was in the council hall.

"He can hear the representative of the Soviet government speak for the Iranian government," Byrnes continued heatedly. "He can hear the Associated Press quoted. He can hear everybody speak for a government but he can't speak for his own government. x x x We cannot proceed to vote on a question of postponing upon a matter of this kind until we give the representative of the complaining government an opportunity to be heard."

Gromyko Quotes Stalin

Gromyko had quoted statements to the Associated Press by the prime minister of Iran and also Prime Minister Stalin's recent statement to the AP in Moscow.

There are now before the council the Russian proposal to postpone consideration of the Iranian case until April 10, and the following counterproposals which the subcommittee must consider:

1. A motion by the Egyptian delegate, Mahmoud Hassan Pasha, that Iran be asked to sit at the table with the council, and make a statement without prejudice to the question of postponing the case to April 10, and

2. A motion by the Australian delegate, Lt.-Col. W. R. Hodgson, that the matter remain on the agenda, that neither party take action to alter the present situation, and that Iran submit a carefully documented statement on the case so that the council might decide duly and in the full light of the facts.

At the outset of the council's session this morning, Gromyko cited the recent exchange of letters between Prime Minister Stalin and Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, to show that Russia still is solidly with the United Nations and is anxious for peace.

The United States and Great Britain won their battle to bring the Russian-Iranian case before the Security council when the world peace agency decided by a 9 to 2 vote to place the question upon its agenda.

Russia, Poland Oppose

Russia and Poland teamed in opposition to hearing the Iranian case. Lining up with the United States and Britain were Australia, Mexico, Egypt, the Netherlands, France, Brazil and China.

There were two votes. First, the chairman, Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, called for a show of hands on the Russian proposal to delete item No. 4 from the agenda—item No. 4 being the Iranian case. Only Russia and Poland voted for that proposal and the chairman declared it was lost without taking a further vote.

Then the chairman called for a show of hands on adopting the entire agenda, including item No. 4, as presented by the secretary-general, Trygve Lie. Nine hands showed for the proposal and the chairman declared it approved.

During the morning the United States, Britain, Australia, Mexico and the Netherlands joined in the view that the Iranian case should be heard. Egypt during the morning wanted to hear Iran's argument before deciding whether to entertain the case, but during the afternoon Egypt voted with the others to bring the case up.

Russia and Poland both insisted there was nothing to bring before the Security council.

Russia's Argument

Russia's argument was that an agreement between Moscow and Tehran on removing Soviet troops from Iran took care of the case.

Byrnes, who followed closely the arguments of the Soviet delegate, blocked a move by the chairman of the council to adjourn the meeting until tomorrow afternoon.

Byrnes asked that the council members adjourn for lunch and then continue the discussions in the afternoon. The council approved the motion and adjourned, with Byrnes and at least two others serving notice they desired to speak immediately upon reconvening.

The Soviet delegate, in his opening address to the council, said that "negotiations between the Soviet government and the government of Iran have resulted in an agreement regarding the evacuation of Soviet troops still in that country." In view of that agreement, he maintained, the subject of the Iranian issue was not fitting to be placed on the agenda.

After Byrnes and Sir Alexander Cadogan, the British delegate, expressed sharp disagreement with him, Gromyko in his earnest and at times rapid Russian said "it seems that Mr. Byrnes and Sir Alexander are being more Iranian than the Iranians who apparently are satisfied."

UNRRA Approves

competent body to discuss such issues, since they are political, and UNRRA is purely a relief agency.

Wood, whose seat under alphabetical arrangements is next to Feonov's, was on his feet immediately to say that any move to sidetrack the problem, on the basis that it was a political question, was "the course of cowardice," and he would "deplore such a course in any international agency."

France, which usually votes with the United States and the United Kingdom, took a surprise stand in asking that the question be put over to the midsummer meeting of UNRRA.

Lewis, Spurning

of the United States Conciliation Service, that "the government will now interest itself in the case."

However, Dan H. Wheeler, depuy solid fuels administrator, whose agency took over the mines in 1945, said that while the agency was "considering what to do," no conclusions had been reached.

The miners won pay increases averaging about $1.13 a day last year. After a series of strikes in 1943 they won their fight for pay for the time spent in going from the mine mouth to their place of work.

After rejecting the operators' offer, Lewis served formal notice that the present contract will be terminated as of midnight Sunday. The contract, negotiated last year, was to run indefinitely, but can be ended by either the union or the operators.

Negotiations To Continue

The door was not closed entirely to agreement by Sunday on a new contract, however. Both Lewis and the operators, who held separate news conferences to disclose the developments, said negotiations would continue tomorrow.

Lewis refused to extend the present one-year-old agreement. He said the miners had been "defrauded" ot of retroactive pay in the past. Apparently he referred to the contract of 1943, finally signed in November of that year after a series of intermittent strikes which began in the spring. The old contract had been extended in the meantime.

Harry M. Moses, representative of the "captive" mines of United States Steel Corporation and others in the negotiations, said that in fifteen days of negotiating, "We have not determined from the mine workers one definite thing they want."

Lewis, refusing to discuss wages and hours unless the operators agreed to the "principle" of a health and welfare fund, called the operators' counterproposals "a mumbo-jumbo of something entirely unsatisfactory."

Lewis said that a stoppage next week would save the lives of thirty-three miners and avert injury to hundreds more who would normally be hurt in the mines in one week "but who instead will be home with their families."

Senators Warn

mittee yesterday before he was called away by other duties.

Some opposition within the committee also was apparent to the proposals, made by a special committee headed by TVA's David E. Lilienthal, for world-wide control of atomic energy.

Senators said Secretary of State Byrnes may be called before the group to explain whether he officially backs the proposals. Members noted that the report carried neither the endorsement of Byrnes nor of President Truman.

They were in a quandary, too, as to how the Lilienthal proposals might affect domestic control legislation which they expect to complete this week.

One senator noted that if the international control plan becomes an official American proposal before the United Nations Organization, it would overreach any domestic legislation since primary controls of atomic developments would be vested in the international group.

The committee already has under consideration an amendment to proposed domestic control legislation which would permit the private mining of fissionable materials.

This would clash directly with the proposal of the Lilienthal group that the United Nations Commission have direct supervision of the mining of uranium and thorium, the chief fissionables ores.

Widow Is Quizzed In Mate's Slaying

BEDFORD, Ia., March 26 (AP)—Mrs. Dorothy Worm, 41, an attractive brunette, was taken into custody this afternoon for questioning in the two and a half year old slaying of her husband, Tommy, 42.

First degree murder charges were filed earlier against Henry Schmitt, 62, a six-foot, two-inch, 200-pound Lenox, Ia., horse trader, the father of four grown children, accusing him of the November 4, 1943 killing.

No charges were on file against Mrs. Worm. After a long conference with officials, she left the court house with two officers, who said she was "co-operating in clearing up some angles."

Attired in a tight-fitting mustard-colored dress and accompanied by her good-looking only son, Carroll, 24, just released as an air corps first lieutenant, Mrs. Worm was brought from her farm home near Conway, Ia., to County Attorney Ralph C. Jones's office.

Sheriff J. T. Caskey and State Agent Robert Gregson said Schmitt signed a statement in which he admitted shooting Worm, then burying the body with the widow's help on a Schmitt-owned Southern Iowa farm near Lenox.

Fearful of discovery, the statement continued, Schmitt dug up Worm's body the next day, reburied it in a field on another farm near Creston. A few days later, he said, the body was exhumed a second time, taken about 200 miles by car and weighted, sent splashing to the bottom of the Mississippi river south of Keokuk, Ia.

Lane and O'Conor Win Additional Support In Montgomery County

ROCKVILLE, Md., March 26 (AP)—Delegates to the Montgomery County Democratic Congress tonight unanimously endorsed W. Preston Lane, Jr., for the party's gubernatorial nomination, and Gov. O'Conor for the senatorial nomination.

Arch McDonald, sports broadcaster, was endorsed for the Democratic nomination for Sixth district representative.

Under rules of the congress the names must be presented again, two weeks, hence, but since their were no dissenting votes tonight, party leaders considered the second endorsement a formality.

In his Baltimore headquarters yesterday, Lane received endorsements of the Montgomery State Central Committee, the county commissioners and other ranking party members.

Authority To Operate New Radio Station Here Is Requested

Grand Jury Indicts Four Railroad Guards

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., March 26—(AP)—An indictment charging four Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad guards with manslaughter was returned today by the McLean county grand jury.

The charge stemmed from the fatal shooting of two pickets along the strikebound railroad at Gridley, Ill., February 6 in a fracas in which three other pickets were wounded.

Circuit Judge William C. Radcliffe, before whom the indictment was returned, set Friday for the arraignment of the guards who were at liberty under $20,000 bond each on previously preferred murder charges. The grand jurors, since last Thusday, heard forty-nine witnesses including strikers, railroad employes and spectators to the affray.

The guards are Lewis A. Smith and Raleigh J. Smith, Blandinsville; Everett J. Parks, Canton, and Roy Dailey, Peoria.

Tennessee Soldier Will Receive Medal of Honor From President Today

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—The nation's capital was thrown wide open to a Tennessee mountain family in recognition today of the valor of one of its sons, a 132-pound soldier who risked death several times to save the lives of comrades.

Parents Should Agree on Child Training System

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

If there's one subject on which it is vitally important that a husband and wife should agree, it's the one that has to do with bringing up their children.

For parents who differ radically on this topic are not only likely to ruin the relationship between themselves, but they are laying the groundwork for nervous and emotional instability in their children that may have disastrous results in later life. Many a chronic illness to which grown men and women fall victims, whether in the form of a physical, nervous of mental disease, had its actual beginning in their early childhood as a result of unwise parental handling.

Here is one of these unfortunate situations:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My husband and I get along very well, except that we disagree as to the proper training of our two boys, 11 and 12.

"Before the youngest was born, his father said he was going to see to it that the older boy would not be slighted when the baby arrived. He has, therefore, lived up to this idea, and never played with the younger boy, bestowing an extra amount of affection on the older one, whose feelings are very easily hurt.

"Now that the boys are older, their father doesn't show so much partiality. But when I ask the older one to do something, he refuses, even though I ask him several times. If I say I will have to punish him, he flares up in a temper, says I have no love for him and runs crying into another room even without punishment, and refuses to eat his meal. His father, who has been telling me in his presence not to punish him, pats him on the shoulder and babies him up. He will not insist that the boy obey me and do so immediately, and the boy, knowing that his father will back him up, makes a fuss and works on his sympathy. This is causing many unpleasant arguments and a lot of hard feelings in the home.

"My husband will do no home training himself, and says I should coax, not give commands of punish. Now I think a little coaxing may be all right sometimes, but don't you think a child of this age should not have to be coaxed and petted in order to get him to do things? If he is, he will never be able to pull away from dad's apron strings and know the meaning of prompt obedience and independence in later life.

"A WORRIED MOTHER"

You are perfectly right, and this older boy will certainly have no chance, under such a program of petting and spoiling, to develop the qualities he will urgently need in later life. With the best intentions in the world, your husband is adopting the worst possible course in dealing with the boy, meaning to help him but actually doing serious harm in keeping him an emotional baby instead of allowing him to become the manly boy he should be. That boy is headed for trouble right now, and needs wise guidance and firm—but not necessarily over-strict-handling if his character is not to be warped.

Your husband had the right idea that, when a new baby arrives, an older child's rights should be carefully safeguarded so that he will not feel pushed aside in favor of the newcomer. But he has certainly carried the idea to a dangerous extreme. And it is particularly unfortunate that he opposes you, and backs up the boy, in the boy's presence.

Try to get your husband to talk the whole situation over with you quietly and calmly, in private, and work out with you a program that you both agree to follow. No doubt you have done this before, but keep trying, without quarrels or bitterness.

If you care to write and give me your name and address, I shall be glad to send you some pamphlets on child training prepared by a well-known child psychologist which you and your husband might like to read.

Parents Should Agree on Child Training System

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

If there's one subject on which it is vitally important that a husband and wife should agree, it's the one that has to do with bringing up their children.

For parents who differ radically on this topic are not only likely to ruin the relationship between themselves, but they are laying the groundwork for nervous and emotional instability in their children that may have disastrous results in later life. Many a chronic illness to which grown men and women fall victims, whether in the form of a physical, nervous of mental disease, had its actual beginning in their early childhood as a result of unwise parental handling.

Here is one of these unfortunate situations:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"My husband and I get along very well, except that we disagree as to the proper training of our two boys, 11 and 12.

"Before the youngest was born, his father said he was going to see to it that the older boy would not be slighted when the baby arrived. He has, therefore, lived up to this idea, and never played with the younger boy, bestowing an extra amount of affection on the older one, whose feelings are very easily hurt.

"Now that the boys are older, their father doesn't show so much partiality. But when I ask the older one to do something, he refuses, even though I ask him several times. If I say I will have to punish him, he flares up in a temper, says I have no love for him and runs crying into another room even without punishment, and refuses to eat his meal. His father, who has been telling me in his presence not to punish him, pats him on the shoulder and babies him up. He will not insist that the boy obey me and do so immediately, and the boy, knowing that his father will back him up, makes a fuss and works on his sympathy. This is causing many unpleasant arguments and a lot of hard feelings in the home.

"My husband will do no home training himself, and says I should coax, not give commands of punish. Now I think a little coaxing may be all right sometimes, but don't you think a child of this age should not have to be coaxed and petted in order to get him to do things? If he is, he will never be able to pull away from dad's apron strings and know the meaning of prompt obedience and independence in later life.

"A WORRIED MOTHER"

You are perfectly right, and this older boy will certainly have no chance, under such a program of petting and spoiling, to develop the qualities he will urgently need in later life. With the best intentions in the world, your husband is adopting the worst possible course in dealing with the boy, meaning to help him but actually doing serious harm in keeping him an emotional baby instead of allowing him to become the manly boy he should be. That boy is headed for trouble right now, and needs wise guidance and firm—but not necessarily over-strict-handling if his character is not to be warped.

Your husband had the right idea that, when a new baby arrives, an older child's rights should be carefully safeguarded so that he will not feel pushed aside in favor of the newcomer. But he has certainly carried the idea to a dangerous extreme. And it is particularly unfortunate that he opposes you, and backs up the boy, in the boy's presence.

Try to get your husband to talk the whole situation over with you quietly and calmly, in private, and work out with you a program that you both agree to follow. No doubt you have done this before, but keep trying, without quarrels or bitterness.

If you care to write and give me your name and address, I shall be glad to send you some pamphlets on child training prepared by a well-known child psychologist which you and your husband might like to read.

American Automobiles Prove Their Mettle

INTERESTING COMMENTARY on the American automobile is made by the Keystone Automobile Club. It points to a report by "Facts and Figures, published by the automotive industry, that there were 29,418,313 automobiles registered in the United States in 1941—an all-time peak—but that the total for last year was 26,087,391, a loss during the war, when automobile production ceased, of only 3,330,922.

This showing comes to confound the prophets who woefully warned that the graveyards would have the remains of most of American cars ere the war had run its course. It will also have an effect upon future used car values.

Certainly the showing is remarkable, considering the stress and strain of the war years, coupled with the natural processes that age metal as well as man. Keystone says that good maintenance practices played an important part in this car conservation and that an approving nod must be also accorded to the rationing system, which it rightly says did a right acceptable job when it was finally rationalized, despite its many shortcomings due to stupid thinking, bureaucratic blundering and experimentation.

But the most important element in the showing is the evidence given of the durable construction of the American motor car, which thus proved to be so much better than was realized and anticipated, a fact, recognized by Keystone in paying tribute to its "virility." That can be extended to the extensive scientific research employed.

There are lessons here for both manufacturer and user. Better and more dependable cars will naturally induce their wider use and owners may well take to heart in the days to come when cars are more plentiful that it pays to provide careful maintenance and thus avoid a lapse into former negligence and indifference.

Production Is The Real Answer

THE SENSIBLE ADVICE given by Bernard M. Baruch in lambasting the administration's new wage policy as "inflationary," follows in several instances what this newspaper has been saying for some time.

Production, Baruch declared, is the keynote and must be the present overriding aim of the American economy, and he is dead right about that. How to attain it and at the same time hold a moratorium on strikes and lockouts for a year while taking care that no hardships come either to worker or employer, and continuing price controls for the same period, is the real problem.

But if price controls are continued on the suggested basis of equitable modifications and there is no hesitancy in increasing prices and wages where necessary to reach the prime objective of production, such a moratorium can be effected on the voluntary basis, which, as Baruch said, is preferable, without resort to enforcement by law.

Price controls, under more sensible modifications, should be continued and this may be necessary for a year, although they can be eliminated after production gets going in full when they of course should be. It might be well to continue them for a shorter period by law, since if the necessity is seen they can easily be continued longer and ended sooner if it is not apparent. But controls should be limited and gradually decreased where production catches up with demand.

The real remedy for checking the inflationary trend started by the administration's new wage policy is, as stated, a firm stand on wages and prices to encourage full production, which, when attained, will stop increasing prices and thus remove the chief obstacle to production in ever recurring wage increase demands. Free, unhampered production will bring competition and the latter will take care of the price situation.

Other steps are necessary to check the inflationary movement, too, as Baruch said, notably a check in the increase of the money supply, budget balancing and a reduction in government costs.

If full production is not attained and inflation is not held in check within the next year, then we are in for one hell of a time.

UNRRA Cannot Last Forever

APPARENTLY, Rep. Sol Bloom, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs committee, was not speaking for the administration when he advocated extending the life of UNRRA beyond the date previously set for ending its activities. Neither did retiring Director Herbert H. Lehman express the official view of the United States government when he agreed with Mr. Bloom.

The American position, as stated by Acting Delegate Tyler Wood and restated by Assistant Secretary of State William Clayton, is that the agency should wind up its work in Europe by the end of this year and in Asia by the middle of 1947, according to the original plans. It is based on the expectation, Mr. Wood explained, that the nations in need of help will be able to carry on with the aid of the International Fund and Bank when the UNRRA has been dismantled.

Mr. Clayton said, without any ifs or buts, that this nation will not contribute to the UNRRA after January 1, 1947. That will meet with the approval of an overwhelming majority of the American people.

All this shapes up as plain warning that efforts to continue the UNRRA will be opposed by the United States, though it appears that some of its functions will be carried on. Mr. Wood said that no one has ever contended that the UNRRA alone could solve all the economic ills of the postwar world, which is at least a hint that this country will keep co-operating in other ways.

These conflicting statements, coming from persons who are considered to speak with authority, will leave an unfortunate impression on the public. The conclusion is apt to be that the administration does not know its own mind.

The Big Problem Facing Sportdom

THE WORLD OF SPORT has lost two of its brightest stars under the decision of the Swedish Athletic Association board declaring Gundar Haegg and Arne Anderson professionals and barring them from amateur comptition for life. But it is obvious that no other verdict could have been reached.

Athletes have been deprived of their amateur standing for infinitely smaller infractions of the rules than the thousands of dollars which Haegg and Anderson were shown to have received for their exploits on the track.

The board has been wise in deciding to let the marks set by the two men stand in Swedish record books. There is no way to erase from memory the amazing races run by the world's two fastest milers during the days when they were accepted as amateurs.

But neither the penalties handed down against Haegg and Anderson nor those decreed against other Swedish athletes at the same time help to solve one of the most perplexing problems facing the world of sports today. It has become increasingly difficult to draw a sharp and clear-cut line between the professional and the amateur.

The offence charged against Haegg and Anderson is different only in degree from the shadowy professionalism invading many fields of sport. Thousands of football players earn their way through college by their gridiron prowess. Scores of athletes with no visible means of support devote all their time to amateur tennis.

It seems to many persons that the time has come for a revision of rules framed on the assumption that an amateur is a man of independent means able to compete without regard for the heavy expense that competition in every sport involves for the toprank figures.

Farms and Stability

IN SOME PARTS OF THE COUNTRY a back-to-the-farm movement may be stimulated by organizing training classes of GI farm workers. These veterans would be instructed in specialized, seasonal farm work and used to replace German war prisoners who have been shipped back to Germany.

These farm hands would receive from $65 to $90 per month in allotments from the government and farmers would pay enough more to bring the pay of the veterans up to $125 to $175 per month, board included. German prisoners were paid eighty cents per day, all but ten cents of which was held back.

If veterans are converted into farm workers at good pay, many of them will want to stay with the soil and become farm owners. Casual study of the current situation will show that a nation's troubles rise in proportion to the concentration of the population in cities. As cities grow and the farm population shrinks, a nation loses in stability.

The contention of scientists that control of the atomic bomb secret by the United States will mean the loss of freedom in research adds to the mystification of laymen on the subject in the face of the announcement that they have discovered how to "denature" plutonium so that its energy could be used only for industrial purposes and not for bombs. If the freedom has been restrained, one naturally wonders how this happened.

Strict party discipline, imposed by the weapon of the purge, works successfully in the one-party systems like those of Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany, but it will not work in this country, as the late President Roosevelt learned when he tried it several years ago.

Ringing of a party-line telephone foiled the robbery of a Kansas bank, that being one method of arousing a community that never fails.

The first thing a future columnist learns is that the single letter I is always capitalized.

LIFE'S TRUE NECESSITIES

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

It is revealing to any of us as to how little we can get along with and be quite happy. We overdraw on what we look upon as essential necessities. Accumulating experiences prove the futility of much that we have heretofore looked upon as important.

Health and peace of mind stand out as two of the great essentials to both success and happiness. All the other things of life, as expressed in wealth, fame, personal power, or temporary acclaim melt away if you have not the health and peace of mind to enjoy any of them.

Too many spend their lives in accumulations that serve them to no purpose later in life, when they have not the health, the time, or the inclination to appreciate. The poor have their wants and their dreams. And often their true necessities furnish them with greater happiness than all the wealth of the richest.

A genuine friend is wealth. An educated heart outweighs a mere educated mind. A good deed is manna to the soul. No one owns a mortgage on beauty. God's gifts are tax free! Everyone is worthy of his hire if he aspires beyond mere sustenance. Beyond the feeding of the body comes that greater feeding of the mind and heart.

All of us keep storing away nonessentials, becoming material and mental misers, to no good account. We enrich our simple necessities every time we give something away.

We get nowhere by merely becoming traders. The sun gives forth its light and warmth; the flower, its perfume and beauty. There is no profit involved, for it is immediately distributed. Nature asks nothing in return for all its endless gifts.

Instead of trying to ape another, seeking to surpass his exploits, how much finer and more permanent are our efforts to surpass ourselves! And how much more genuine is the happiness that results from such a plan. We are given a big world in which to unfold. All our needs are there for our careful selection. More than we need is often too much!

AN ATTEMPT TO PERSUADE BY EXAMPLE

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Byrnes, Patterson Testimony Indicates Truman Cabinet Is Not Looking for War

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 26.—That the Truman cabinet is not looking for war in the near future, despite warlike talk, was indicated at a secret session of the Senate Military Affairs committee last week.

When Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of War Patterson testified in favor of an extension of the Selective Service act, the figures they presented on planned strength of the army and navy were exactly the same as those presented early in January. In other words, they proposed an army of barely over a million men by July of 1947.

The senators had expected that because of the complicated international situation a larger army would be asked for, but the War and State departments made no such request. When one senator asked how it happened that there was no "emergency" planning, Secretary Byrnes refused to answer. He passed the question to Secretary Patterson, who also did not reply.

Wallace Speech Censored

It wasn't supposed to be known outside the cabinet, but Henry Wallace's speech at the Jackson day dinner was censored—by President Truman himself. Wallace had one line in his speech which he thought would answer Republican critics. It read:

"Abraham Lincoln was not a member of our party. But he was certainly a fellow traveler."

Truman thought such a reference to the martyred Lincoln might be misunderstood and cut it out. Wallace was glad to concur.

British Want War

British tories were pleased as punch over Winston Churchill's Fulton, Mo., speech—for several reasons.

First, they think it is now less likely that Britain will get its loan from this country, and they do not want the loan. Tory leaders would prefer to work out their own problems by closing an economic ring around the sterling bloc nations and using tabbed currency so they could only import goods from England. This was the same plan Dr. Hjalmar Schacht devised for the Nazis.

Reason number two was Russia. It is highly significant that just one day after the Churchill speech, reactionary Russia-hater Lord Beaverbrook called a secret meeting of leading industrialists to plan a diplomatic campaign which some Britishers fear might lead to eventual war with the Soviet Union. Present at the meeting were three members of the Labor cabinet — including Arthur Greenwood and Ernest Bevin.

Men's Suits

It still looks like a long wait before veterans can get the clothing they need. The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion will soon bring out a report on men's clothing showing a need for forty million suits this year but production plans for only about twenty-eight million.

The report will also show that first quarter production has been only about five million, and officials of the Civilian Production Administration are worried sick that even the goal of twenty-eight million suits for 1946 will not be met.

There is no sign yet that the increase in prices granted this month by OPA will mean more men's suits. There are indications, however, that large stocks of suits are being held off the market in the hope that price control will not be extended beyond June.

New Ambassador to Russia

Sen. Tom Connally, of Texas, chased reporters from the room and closed the doors of the Foreign Relations committee during the juciest part of the testimony by Gen. Bedell Smith, new United States ambassador to Russia.

This was in connection with the late Gen. George Patton's slapping of a shell-shocked soldier.

Asked if he was responsible for the army's denial that Patton had been reprimanded by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower—a denial later repudiated—Smith replied,

"Yes, I was responsible for the original statement."

The three-star general blushed and squirmed in his chair as he made the admission.

"Why did you do that?" he was asked. "What grounds was there for such a statement if you knew Gen. Patton had actually been reprimanded?"

"Well, technically I was correct," Smith replied with an air that didn't strike committee members as very convincing. "While certain steps had been taken, there had been no formal reprimand at the time the statement was issued."

Smith appeared contrite about the incident, so committee members didn't censure him or protract the questioning after he made his "confession."

Note—Gen. Smith was not questioned about another famous denial he issued, namely his statement that Gen. Leslie McNair had been killed by enemy action when it was well known that McNair and several other Americans were killed by carelessly aimed American bombs near St. Lo.

Capital Chaff

Two movie companies are bidding for "Saints and Strangers," the new best seller written by George Willison, of the Democratic National Committee. . . . Former Democratic Sen. Clarence Dill, of Washington, is being urged for one of the vacant assistant secretaryships of the Interior department. . . . Jim Landis, former American minister to Egypt, may be headed for a new important administration job soon. . . . New Mexico's Gov. Jack Dempsey decided after two talks with President Truman that he would not oppose Sen. Chavez in the New Mexico Democratic primary. . . . OPA Administrator Paul Porter turned out to be the top entertainment attraction at a buffet dinner Bob Hannegan threw for President Truman the other night. Porter sang and danced the song he wrote during the '44 president campaign, "Don't Change Horses in the Middle of the Stream." . . . The OPA will speed up the lifting of pricing restrictions on certain items soon, including heavy machinery, printing presses, laundry machines, etc. . . . Even the chauffeur at the Soviet embassy shuns company. He carefully parks on the opposite side of the street from other diplomatic chauffeurs when his chief visits the State department.

John L. Lewis

For years John L. Lewis has been one of labor's top negotiators. Usually he has his facts cold. Last week, however, while arguing safety precautions with Harry Moses, an important Pittsburgh mine operator, he said:

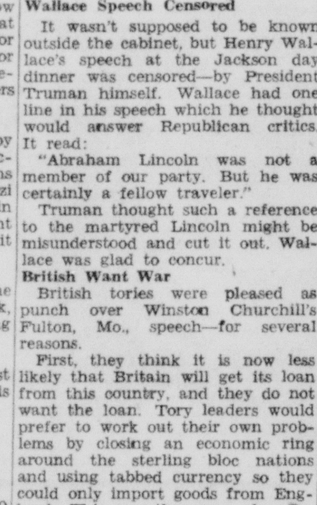

"Why, Harry, your father is a good illustration of why we need these safeguards. Everybody knows him as a veteran coal man, and we've all seen him limping for fifty years because of a mine accident. So how can you sit there and deny us the safeguards to prevent the same sort of thing from happening to other miners?"

"John," replied Moses, "I don't know where you got your information about my father—but it wasn't so good. I'll tell you how he hurt his leg. It wasn't in a coal mine, it was playing baseball. He broke his leg sliding into second."

Note—Bureau of Mine officials heartily endorse Lewis's demands for better safety precautions in the mines.

Atomic Secret Is To Be Kept Here, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 26—Much has been noted recently about spy rings seking information about the atomic bomb but little suspicion has been aroused apparently by the peculiar outcry which arises every now and then from various quarters inside and outside the United States demanding that the secret be given up.

The commonest argument is that the secret will be obtained by Russia anyway in five years. Russian dispatches try hard to give the impression that the Soviet already has the secret. Even in America many well intentioned persons with scientific background, whose patriotism is not in the least open to question, contend that the Rusians inevitably will have the secret and hence it should be shared with them now.

But the oddest part of the controversy is the glib way that various folks talk about the atomic bomb as if they really knew the secret themselves. How many of the persons who declare that Russia will have the secret in due time, know what the secret is or what basis there is for the assumption that other nations ever will obtain it through their own experiments?

Safe From Spies

Perhaps the most authoritative and significant information available on the subject is the statement of Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, director of the atomic project, who in the last few days in a press conference at Los Angeles declared the secret was safe from any spy ring.

"The bomb project is a little like a giant jigsaw puzzle with 100,000 pieces," he said. "A chance betrayal by one of our scientists might reveal five or ten pieces out of the 100,000 but that would mean almost nothing."

Here is one of the few men in America who really knows all about the atomic bomb. Indeed it is not known how many do know the entire secret. That in itself is a secret as well as the identity of the persons who have all the knowledge.

A distinction has to be drawn between atomic energy as such and the atomic bomb itself. Undoubtedly the secrets of atomic energy will be known to all scientists in a relatively short time, but this is a far different thing from knowing how to use it in an atomic bomb or how to drop or detonate one of these bombs without killing the persons who carry it or how to detonate it in such a way that it will be destructive, as was the case at Hiroshima.

Studied for Decades

For decades atomic energy has been studied and for decades the idea of an atomic bomb has been discussed by military scientists, but not until last year, when the United States completed the most extensive experimental project the world has ever known, did scientists learn for the first time something about how the theory can turn out in actual practice. Further experiments are not only costly but could be very risky to the experimenters.

The atomic bomb is not likely to be turned over to any foreign government, nor is it likely to be given to the United Nations, despite the proposals toward that end. History shows that the secrets of military weapons are kept very well even by democracies and the giving up of the atomic bomb secret in its entirety is already hedged about with conditions which it is very unlikely will ever be met—such as international inspection.

The Russians do not even allow newspapermen from other nations to come and go at will in their country, though Russian newspapermen without limit can come into America. The government here does not make public the number of outright refusals which have been received from Moscow for the admission of students, scholars, scientists and similar personnel when seeking entrance for cultural reasons only. Hence it sems improbable that Russia will ever be willing to satisfy the requirement that rigid inspection by outside governments be allowed at all times to see what is being done with the atomic bomb, how many are being manufactured and for what purposes

Offer Unlikely To Be Met

The United States has offered to turn over the secret under specified conditions, but it is a foregone conclusion that these will not be met—at least not so long as Russia or any other country thinks it can develop the bomb of its own accord. Such experimentation may take generations of time. Until the Russian government ceases to be a totalitarian government and becomes subject to the popular will to the extent tha war-making is not left in the hands of a single man or clique, there is little chance that any military secrets will ever be shared by this country with that type of government.

Propagandists no doubt will agitate for the release of the secret—and the demand will come largely from those left-wingers who are sympathetic with the totalitarian government at Moscow. It may mislead well-meaning persons who think appeasement of Russian totalitarianism is desirable, but it will not affect the Congress of the United States, which will never vote to surrender the atomic bomb secret so long as "security" is involved.

Underhand Worse Than Overhead, Pettengill Says

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

The overhead of government is not the worst of it. It's the underhand.

When government goes virtuous and says everyone else is "greedy for gold," I feel like the man who got a divorce because his wife fed him nothing but eggs. She just egged him on.

It seems as though government never got real sanctimonious until lately. It used to be that the folks in government called each other liars and grafters, rather than we, the people. But now any poor soul who meekly asks to keep his dough out of the clutches of government, or who wants prices high enough so he can hold off the sheriff is "greedy for gold."

The government doesn't respect us any more. It just bawls us out. Well, I reckon it's our fault. However, I'm going to squint down the old musket barrel at these holier-than-thou government preachers for a minute.

Old Family Custom

I note that the executors of a millionaire ex-president want him declared to have been in military service so as to cut down his tax bill. This sounds like being just a little teeny bit greedy for gold, but there is probably another reason which you and I can't figure out. Then how about senators putting their wives on the payroll? That's an old family custom. Many a man in Washington lives by the sweat of his frau!

Here's Henry Wallace. He wants to do us good, so he is asking our congressmen to let him reach into our pockets for $54,000,000 more than ever before to run his department. Gosh, if you or I touched somebody for $54 million, or even for fifty-four bucks they'd say we were greedy for gold. Yes, sir, $34 million for Henry's department in 1938; $82 million in 1945; $111 million in 1946, and $165 million in 1947. If Henry would just let us keep our money we'd have less department but more commerce. We used to think that a tax cut was the kindest cut of all.

Pay Rolls Increase

Leaving out the war and navy people, do you know that Washington pay rolls increased in January by 34,569, or 1,000 a day including Sundays when they don't even pretend to work. The executive office of the president wants its appropriation for 1947 doubled over 1945. Peacetime, too. More for Truman than for Roosevelt, the former world's record holder. An they are willing to accept twenty per cent more of the long green.

Why is it so selfless and noble to force someone else to pay for your groceries, duds and rent, but greedy to want to pay your own bills in full and demand that everyone else do the same?

The budget for next year ($36,000,000,000) calls for $120 million a day for every week day, or $4 per day per family. Could this be wholly magnanimous and sublime? It couldn't have anything to do with elections, I know, so I am asking you. Congressman Ramspeck, of Georgia, before he resigned, said, "Giving jobs to uncles, brothers, cousins and school chums has all but scuttled the merit system."

Helping a Crusade

When a party treasurer taps the fat-cats for big campaign contributions upon a sort of an understanding, this isn't being greedy. It's to help a great crusade.

Who is paying more for the same merchandise inflationary, but paying more for less work non-inflationary? I can't figure that one and refer you to Bowles who knows all about the "Pied Pipers of Profit."

Are the spenders of other people's money Big-Hearted Charleys, but those who want to keep what they have honestly earned nickle-nursers and greedy-guts?

Anyhow, the spenders are the folks who try to keep us from talking back. They remind me of the king and the duke in "Huckleberry Finn" weeping over this sinful world.

It Says Here

By BOP HOPE

When we put on our Tuesday night radio program, there are a lot of important people who stay behind scenes . . . (the cowards!). One of the most important is the engineer. The engineer is the guy who sits behind the glass window and twirls little knobs back and forth on the control panel. Before he can get the job, he has to have seventy-two hours solo on an iron-claw machine.

Charley Norman has been monitoring our show for the past five years, and I really have to be nice to him. If he gets sore at me, I'm dead! He waits till I tell a joke and then tunes out the laughs! Charley's been in radio a long time. In fact, when he first started, "Bulldog Drummond" was just the runt in a litter . . . and "Breakfast in Hollywood" was just a salami sandwich in Glandale.

Another important guy is the sound man. I won't say we use a lot of very loud, noisy sound effects on our program, but it's the only show in radio that is recorded simultaneously by the Crossley Poll and the Mount Wilson earthquake meter.

And we really use a lot of shooting effects. So far we've had to let five fellows go. They got trigger-happy. During the war we had a priority on ammunition that came right after MacArthur.

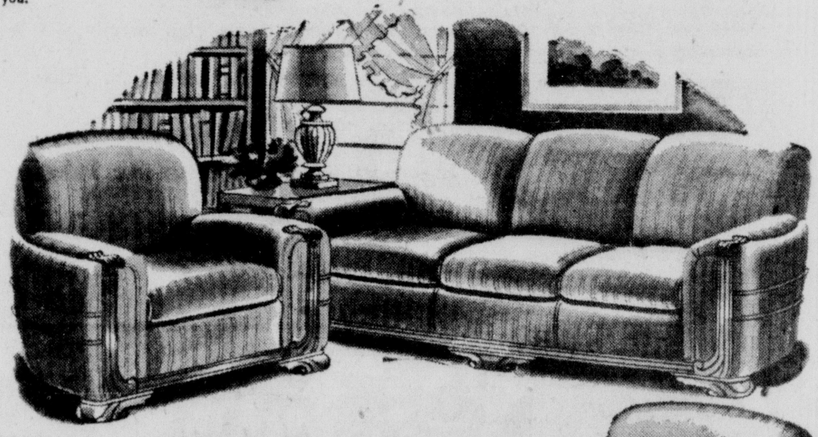

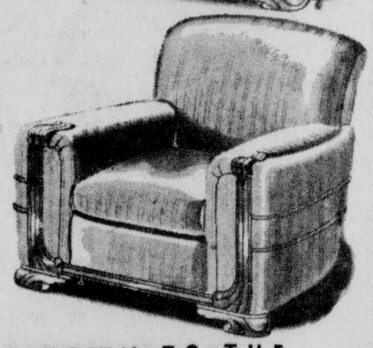

Our sound men now are Wayne Kenworthy and Parker Cornell, and they sometimes have quite a bit of trouble trying to reproduce the exact effect for which the script calls. I remember once I wanted the sound of the studio blowing up for a finish joke and they worked for three hours before they finally hit upon a very novel and original way to get the effect . . . they blew up the studio.

American Automobiles Prove Their Mettle

INTERESTING COMMENTARY on the American automobile is made by the Keystone Automobile Club. It points to a report by "Facts and Figures, published by the automotive industry, that there were 29,418,313 automobiles registered in the United States in 1941—an all-time peak—but that the total for last year was 26,087,391, a loss during the war, when automobile production ceased, of only 3,330,922.

This showing comes to confound the prophets who woefully warned that the graveyards would have the remains of most of American cars ere the war had run its course. It will also have an effect upon future used car values.

Certainly the showing is remarkable, considering the stress and strain of the war years, coupled with the natural processes that age metal as well as man. Keystone says that good maintenance practices played an important part in this car conservation and that an approving nod must be also accorded to the rationing system, which it rightly says did a right acceptable job when it was finally rationalized, despite its many shortcomings due to stupid thinking, bureaucratic blundering and experimentation.

But the most important element in the showing is the evidence given of the durable construction of the American motor car, which thus proved to be so much better than was realized and anticipated, a fact, recognized by Keystone in paying tribute to its "virility." That can be extended to the extensive scientific research employed.

There are lessons here for both manufacturer and user. Better and more dependable cars will naturally induce their wider use and owners may well take to heart in the days to come when cars are more plentiful that it pays to provide careful maintenance and thus avoid a lapse into former negligence and indifference.

Production Is The Real Answer

THE SENSIBLE ADVICE given by Bernard M. Baruch in lambasting the administration's new wage policy as "inflationary," follows in several instances what this newspaper has been saying for some time.

Production, Baruch declared, is the keynote and must be the present overriding aim of the American economy, and he is dead right about that. How to attain it and at the same time hold a moratorium on strikes and lockouts for a year while taking care that no hardships come either to worker or employer, and continuing price controls for the same period, is the real problem.

But if price controls are continued on the suggested basis of equitable modifications and there is no hesitancy in increasing prices and wages where necessary to reach the prime objective of production, such a moratorium can be effected on the voluntary basis, which, as Baruch said, is preferable, without resort to enforcement by law.

Price controls, under more sensible modifications, should be continued and this may be necessary for a year, although they can be eliminated after production gets going in full when they of course should be. It might be well to continue them for a shorter period by law, since if the necessity is seen they can easily be continued longer and ended sooner if it is not apparent. But controls should be limited and gradually decreased where production catches up with demand.

The real remedy for checking the inflationary trend started by the administration's new wage policy is, as stated, a firm stand on wages and prices to encourage full production, which, when attained, will stop increasing prices and thus remove the chief obstacle to production in ever recurring wage increase demands. Free, unhampered production will bring competition and the latter will take care of the price situation.

Other steps are necessary to check the inflationary movement, too, as Baruch said, notably a check in the increase of the money supply, budget balancing and a reduction in government costs.

If full production is not attained and inflation is not held in check within the next year, then we are in for one hell of a time.

UNRRA Cannot Last Forever

APPARENTLY, Rep. Sol Bloom, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs committee, was not speaking for the administration when he advocated extending the life of UNRRA beyond the date previously set for ending its activities. Neither did retiring Director Herbert H. Lehman express the official view of the United States government when he agreed with Mr. Bloom.

The American position, as stated by Acting Delegate Tyler Wood and restated by Assistant Secretary of State William Clayton, is that the agency should wind up its work in Europe by the end of this year and in Asia by the middle of 1947, according to the original plans. It is based on the expectation, Mr. Wood explained, that the nations in need of help will be able to carry on with the aid of the International Fund and Bank when the UNRRA has been dismantled.

Mr. Clayton said, without any ifs or buts, that this nation will not contribute to the UNRRA after January 1, 1947. That will meet with the approval of an overwhelming majority of the American people.

All this shapes up as plain warning that efforts to continue the UNRRA will be opposed by the United States, though it appears that some of its functions will be carried on. Mr. Wood said that no one has ever contended that the UNRRA alone could solve all the economic ills of the postwar world, which is at least a hint that this country will keep co-operating in other ways.

These conflicting statements, coming from persons who are considered to speak with authority, will leave an unfortunate impression on the public. The conclusion is apt to be that the administration does not know its own mind.

The Big Problem Facing Sportdom

THE WORLD OF SPORT has lost two of its brightest stars under the decision of the Swedish Athletic Association board declaring Gundar Haegg and Arne Anderson professionals and barring them from amateur comptition for life. But it is obvious that no other verdict could have been reached.

Athletes have been deprived of their amateur standing for infinitely smaller infractions of the rules than the thousands of dollars which Haegg and Anderson were shown to have received for their exploits on the track.

The board has been wise in deciding to let the marks set by the two men stand in Swedish record books. There is no way to erase from memory the amazing races run by the world's two fastest milers during the days when they were accepted as amateurs.

But neither the penalties handed down against Haegg and Anderson nor those decreed against other Swedish athletes at the same time help to solve one of the most perplexing problems facing the world of sports today. It has become increasingly difficult to draw a sharp and clear-cut line between the professional and the amateur.

The offence charged against Haegg and Anderson is different only in degree from the shadowy professionalism invading many fields of sport. Thousands of football players earn their way through college by their gridiron prowess. Scores of athletes with no visible means of support devote all their time to amateur tennis.

It seems to many persons that the time has come for a revision of rules framed on the assumption that an amateur is a man of independent means able to compete without regard for the heavy expense that competition in every sport involves for the toprank figures.

Farms and Stability

IN SOME PARTS OF THE COUNTRY a back-to-the-farm movement may be stimulated by organizing training classes of GI farm workers. These veterans would be instructed in specialized, seasonal farm work and used to replace German war prisoners who have been shipped back to Germany.

These farm hands would receive from $65 to $90 per month in allotments from the government and farmers would pay enough more to bring the pay of the veterans up to $125 to $175 per month, board included. German prisoners were paid eighty cents per day, all but ten cents of which was held back.

If veterans are converted into farm workers at good pay, many of them will want to stay with the soil and become farm owners. Casual study of the current situation will show that a nation's troubles rise in proportion to the concentration of the population in cities. As cities grow and the farm population shrinks, a nation loses in stability.

The contention of scientists that control of the atomic bomb secret by the United States will mean the loss of freedom in research adds to the mystification of laymen on the subject in the face of the announcement that they have discovered how to "denature" plutonium so that its energy could be used only for industrial purposes and not for bombs. If the freedom has been restrained, one naturally wonders how this happened.

Strict party discipline, imposed by the weapon of the purge, works successfully in the one-party systems like those of Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany, but it will not work in this country, as the late President Roosevelt learned when he tried it several years ago.

Ringing of a party-line telephone foiled the robbery of a Kansas bank, that being one method of arousing a community that never fails.

The first thing a future columnist learns is that the single letter i is always capitalized.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

It is revealing to any of us as to how little we can get along with and be quite happy. We overdraw on what we look upon as essential necessities. Accumulating experiences prove the futility of much that we have heretofore looked upon as important.

Health and peace of mind stand out as two of the great essentials to both success and happiness. All the other things of life, as expressed in wealth, fame, personal power, or temporary acclaim melt away if you have not the health and peace of mind to enjoy any of them.

Too many spend their lives in accumulations that serve them to no purpose later in life, when they have not the health, the time, or the inclination to appreciate. The poor have their wants and their dreams. And often their true necessities furnish them with greater happiness than all the wealth of the richest.

A genuine friend is wealth. An educated heart outweighs a mere educated mind. A good deed is manna to the soul. No one owns a mortgage on beauty. God's gifts are tax free! Everyone is worthy of his hire if he aspires beyond mere sustenance. Beyond the feeding of the body comes that greater feeding of the mind and heart.

All of us keep storing away non-essentials, becoming material and mental misers, to no good account. We enrich our simple necessities every time we give something away.

We get nowhere by merely becoming traders. The sun gives forth its light and warmth; the flower, its perfume and beauty. There is no profit involved, for it is immediately distributed. Nature asks nothing in return for all its endless gifts.

Instead of trying to ape another, seeking to surpass his exploits, how much finer and more permanent are our efforts to surpass ourselves! And how much more genuine is the happiness that results from such a plan. We are given a big world in which to unfold. All our needs are there for our careful selection. More than we need is often too much!

AN ATTEMPT TO PERSUADE BY EXAMPLE

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, March 26.—That the Truman cabinet is not looking for war in the near future, despite warlike talk, was indicated at a secret session of the Senate Military Affairs committee last week.

When Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of War Patterson testified in favor of an extension of the Selective Service act, the figures they presented on planned strength of the army and navy were exactly the same as those presented early in January. In other words, they proposed an army of barely over a million men by July of 1947.

The senators had expected that because of the complicated international situation a larger army would be asked for, but the War and State departments made no such request. When one senator asked how it happened that there was no "emergency" planning, Secretary Byrnes refused to answer. He passed the question to Secretary Patterson, who also did not reply.

Wallace Speech Censored

It wasn't supposed to be known outside the cabinet, but Henry Wallace's speech at the Jackson day dinner was censored—by President Truman himself. Wallace had one line in his speech which he thought would answer Republican critics. It read:

"Abraham Lincoln was not a member of our party. But he was certainly a fellow traveler."

Truman thought such a reference to the martyred Lincoln might be misunderstood and cut it out. Wallace was glad to concur.

British Want War

British tories were pleased as punch over Winston Churchill's Fulton, Mo., speech—for several reasons.

First, they think it is now less likely that Britain will get its loan from this country, and they do not want the loan. Tory leaders would prefer to work out their own problems by closing an economic ring around the sterling bloc nations and using tabbed currency so they could only import goods from England. This was the same plan Dr. Hjalmar Schacht devised for the Nazis.

Reason number two was Russia. It is highly significant that just one day after the Churchill speech, reactionary Russia-hater Lord Beaverbrook called a secret meeting of leading industrialists to plan a diplomatic campaign which some Britishers fear might lead to eventual war with the Soviet Union. Present at the meeting were three members of the Labor cabinet — including Arthur Greenwood and Ernest Bevin.

Men's Suits

It still looks like a long wait before veterans can get the clothing they need. The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion will soon bring out a report on men's clothing showing a need for forty million suits this year but production plans for only about twenty-eight million.

The report will also show that first quarter production has been only about five million, and officials of the Civilian Production Administration are worried sick that even the goal of twenty-eight million suits for 1946 will not be met.

There is no sign yet that the increase in prices granted this month by OPA will mean more men's suits. There are indications, however, that large stocks of suits are being held off the market in the hope that price control will not be extended beyond June.

New Ambassador to Russia

Sen. Tom Connally, of Texas, chased reporters from the room and closed the doors of the Foreign Relations committee during the juciest part of the testimony by Gen. Bedell Smith, new United States ambassador to Russia.

This was in connection with the late Gen. George Patton's slapping of a shell-shocked soldier.

Asked if he was responsible for the army's denial that Patton had been reprimanded by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower—a denial later repudiated—Smith replied,

"Yes, I was responsible for the original statement."

The three-star general blushed and squirmed in his chair as he made the admission.

"Why did you do that?" he was asked. "What grounds was there for such a statement if you knew Gen. Patton had actually been reprimanded?"

"Well, technically I was correct," Smith replied with an air that didn't strike committee members as very convincing. "While certain steps had been taken, there had been no formal reprimand at the time the statement was issued."

Smith appeared contrite about the incident, so committee members didn't censure him or protract the questioning after he made his "confession."

Note—Gen. Smith was not questioned about another famous denial he issued, namely his statement that Gen. Leslie McNair had been killed by enemy action when it was well known that McNair and several other Americans were killed by carelessly aimed American bombs near St. Lo.

Capital Chaff

Two movie companies are bidding for "Saints and Strangers," the new best seller written by George Willison, of the Democratic National Committee. . . . Former Democratic Sen. Clarence Dill, of Washington, is being urged for one of the vacant assistant secretaryships of the Interior department. . . . Jim Landis, former American minister to Egypt, may be headed for a new important administration job soon. . . . New Mexico's Gov. Jack Dempsey decided after two talks with President Truman that he would not oppose Sen. Chavez in the New Mexico Democratic primary. . . . OPA Administrator Paul Porter turned out to be the top entertainment attraction at a buffet dinner Bob Hannegan threw for President Truman the other night. Porter sang and danced the song he wrote during the '44 president campaign, "Don't Change Horses in the Middle of the Stream." . . . The OPA will speed up the lifting of pricing restrictions on certain items soon, including heavy machinery, printing presses, laundry machines, etc. . . . Even the chauffeur at the Soviet embassy shuns company. He carefully parks on the opposite side of the street from other diplomatic chauffeurs when his chief visits the State department.

John L. Lewis

For years John L. Lewis has been one of labor's top negotiators. Usually he has his facts cold. Last week, however, while arguing safety precautions with Harry Moses, an important Pittsburgh mine operator, he said:

"Why, Harry, your father is a good illustration of why we need these safeguards. Everybody knows him as a veteran coal man, and we've all seen him limping for fifty years because of a mine accident. So how can you sit there and deny us the safeguards to prevent the same sort of thing from happening to other miners?"

"John," replied Moses, "I don't know where you got your information about my father—but it wasn't so good. I'll tell you how he hurt his leg. It wasn't in a coal mine, it was playing baseball. He broke his leg sliding into second."

Note—Bureau of Mine officials heartily endorse Lewis's demands for better safety precautions in the mines.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 26—Much has been noted recently about spy rings seking information about the atomic bomb but little suspicion has been aroused apparently by the peculiar outcry which arises every now and then from various quarters inside and outside the United States demanding that the secret be given up.

The commonest argument is that the secret will be obtained by Russia anyway in five years. Russian dispatches try hard to give the impression that the Soviet already has the secret. Even in America many well intentioned persons with scientific background, whose patriotism is not in the least open to question, contend that the Rusians inevitably will have the secret and hence it should be shared with them now.

But the oddest part of the controversy is the glib way that various folks talk about the atomic bomb as if they really knew the secret themselves. How many of the persons who declare that Russia will have the secret in due time, know what the secret is or what basis there is for the assumption that other nations ever will obtain it through their own experiments?

Safe From Spies

Perhaps the most authoritative and significant information available on the subject is the statement of Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, director of the atomic project, who in the last few days in a press conference at Los Angeles declared the secret was safe from any spy ring.

"The bomb project is a little like a giant jigsaw puzzle with 100,000 pieces," he said. "A chance betrayal by one of our scientists might reveal five or ten pieces out of the 100,000 but that would mean almost nothing."

Here is one of the few men in America who really knows all about the atomic bomb. Indeed it is not known how many do know the entire secret. That in itself is a secret as well as the identity of the persons who have all the knowledge.

A distinction has to be drawn between atomic energy as such and the atomic bomb itself. Undoubtedly the secrets of atomic energy will be known to all scientists in a relatively short time, but this is a far different thing from knowing how to use it in an atomic bomb or how to drop or detonate one of these bombs without killing the persons who carry it or how to detonate it in such a way that it will be destructive, as was the case at Hiroshima.

Studied for Decades

For decades atomic energy has been studied and for decades the idea of an atomic bomb has been discussed by military scientists, but not until last year, when the United States completed the most extensive experimental project the world has ever known, did scientists learn for the first time something about how the theory can turn out in actual practice. Further experiments are not only costly but could be very risky to the experimenters.

The atomic bomb is not likely to be turned over to any foreign government, nor is it likely to be given to the United Nations, despite the proposals toward that end. History shows that the secrets of military weapons are kept very well even by democracies and the giving up of the atomic bomb secret in its entirety is already hedged about with conditions which it is very unlikely will ever be met—such as international inspection.

The Russians do not even allow newspapermen from other nations to come and go at will in their country, though Russian newspapermen without limit can come into America. The government here does not make public the number of outright refusals which have been received from Moscow for the admission of students, scholars, scientists and similar personnel when seeking entrance for cultural reasons only. Hence it sems improbable that Russia will ever be willing to satisfy the requirement that rigid inspection by outside governments be allowed at all times to see what is being done with the atomic bomb, how many are being manufactured and for what purposes

The United States has offered to turn over the secret under specified conditions, but it is a foregone conclusion that these will not be met—at least not so long as Russia or any other country thinks it can develop the bomb of its own accord. Such experimentation may take generations of time. Until the Russian government ceases to be a totalitarian government and becomes subject to the popular will to the extent tha war-making is not left in the hands of a single man or clique, there is little chance that any military secrets will ever be shared by this country with that type of government.

Propagandists no doubt will agitate for the release of the secret—and the demand will come largely from those left-wingers who are sympathetic with the totalitarian government at Moscow. It may mislead well-meaning persons who think appeasement of Russian totalitarianism is desirable, but it will not affect the Congress of the United States, which will never vote to surrender the atomic bomb secret so long as "security" is involved.

Underhand Worse Than Overhead, Pettengill Says

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

The overhead of government is not the worst of it. It's the underhand.

When government goes virtuous and says everyone else is "greedy for gold," I feel like the man who got a divorce because his wife fed him nothing but eggs. She just egged him on.

It seems as though government never got real sanctimonious until lately. It used to be that the folks in government called each other liars and grafters, rather than we, the people. But now any poor soul who meekly asks to keep his dough out of the clutches of government, or who wants prices high enough so he can hold off the sheriff is "greedy for gold."

The government doesn't respect us any more. It just bawls us out. Well, I reckon it's our fault. However, I'm going to squint down the old musket barrel at these holier-than-thou government preachers for a minute.

Old Family Custom

I note that the executors of a millionaire ex-president want him declared to have been in military service so as to cut down his tax bill. This sounds like being just a little teeny bit greedy for gold, but there is probably another reason which you and I can't figure out. Then how about senators putting their wives on the payroll? That's an old family custom. Many a man in Washington lives by the sweat of his frau!

Here's Henry Wallace. He wants to do us good, so he is asking our congressmen to let him reach into our pockets for $54,000,000 more than ever before to run his department. Gosh, if you or I touched somebody for $54 million, or even for fifty-four bucks they'd say we were greedy for gold. Yes, sir, $34 million for Henry's department in 1938; $82 million in 1945; $111 million in 1946, and $165 million in 1947. If Henry would just let us keep our money we'd have less department but more commerce. We used to think that a tax cut was the kindest cut of all.

Pay Rolls Increase

Leaving out the war and navy people, do you know that Washington pay rolls increased in January by 34,569, or 1,000 a day including Sundays when they don't even pretend to work. The executive office of the president wants its appropriation for 1947 doubled over 1945. Peacetime, too. More for Truman than for Roosevelt, the former world's record holder. An they are willing to accept twenty per cent more of the long green.

Why is it so selfless and noble to force someone else to pay for your groceries, duds and rent, but greedy to want to pay your own bills in full and demand that everyone else do the same?

The budget for next year ($36,000,000,000) calls for $120 million a day for every week day, or $4 per day per family. Could this be wholly magnanimous and sublime? It couldn't have anything to do with elections, I know, so I am asking you. Congressman Ramspeck, of Georgia, before he resigned, said, "Giving jobs to uncles, brothers, cousins and school chums has all but scuttled the merit system."

Helping a Crusade

When a party treasurer taps the fat-cats for big campaign contributions upon a sort of an understanding, this isn't being greedy. It's to help a great crusade.

Individual Stocks Exhibit Strength Although Many Leaders Lose Ground

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—Individual stocks exhibited strength in todays market although numerous leaders backed into losing territory.

Many customers cashed profits on the idea that the recovery of about seventy per cent of the February slump had served as more than a normal technical correction. The division of the UNO Security committee over Iran chilled enthusiasts to some extent and the threat of a walkout of 400,000 soft coal workers this weekend was a cautionary factor. Wall street hopes for further price ceiling bulges again propped sentiment and inspired a certain amount of bidding.

Transfers of 1,440,000 shares compared with 1,640,000 the day before.

Ahead were Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Southern Railway, Standard Oil of Cal., American Telephone, Woolworth, Union Carbide, Anaconda, American Can, J. C. Penney and North American. On the downside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Glenn Martin, Commonwealth and Southern, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio and Eastman Kodak.

Curb advancers included City Auto Storage, Cities Service, Illinois Power, Northern States Power "A", Pantepec and Standard Cap and Seal. Turnover here was 630,000 shares versus 580,000 yesterday.

Active demand for selected rails which moved up one to more than three points in some instances featured the bond market today.

Sales totaled $5,260,000, compared with $5,110,000 for Monday.

Bus Route Is Sought

BALTIMORE, March 26 (AP)—The public service commission received an application today from the Potomac Motor Lines Company, Hagerstown, to run bus service between Baltimore and the Maryland tuberculosis sanatorium at Sabillasville. Dr. Victor Cullen, sanitorium superintendent, said that whereas the railroad now servicing the area brings visitors only to the foot of the hill on which the institution is located, the bus would carry them to the top of the hill.

Bases Gained in Ship Trade Still Guard the United States

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON.—Five years ago, on March 27, 1941, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill agreed on the United States-British swap of fifty American destroyers for six military bases in the Atlantic.

The United States is free to use the bases under a ninety-nine-year lease until the year 2039. (Notes were first exchanged in 1940, so that year was used as a starter.)

Both the destroyers and the bases made honorable war records, which are still only partially revealed.

The bases, which the United States financed and constructed on British soil, are in the Bahamas, at Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad, Antigua in the Caribbean area, and British Guina, in northeastern South America.

Later Great Britain granted the United States similar rights—and this time without pay—in Bermuda and Newfoundland.

Served Planes and Ships

They all did, basically, two jobs for the Allies. They were home ports for the planes and ships which fought the German submarines through '42 and '43. And they fueled and repaired planes flying to Europe.

For their future, neither the army nor navy is talkative. However, it is known that Puerto Rico (an American base) will remain an important air training center, with the other Caribbean bases playing a part. Also, all of them are convenient outposts for the protection of the Panama canal, and helpful in keeping a lookout over doings in the South Atlantic.

Newfoundland will remain important because it lies directly on the shortest United States route, over the Arctic, to Europe.

Fate of the Destroyers

All through the war the fifty little destroyers plowed doggedly through the rough North Atlantic, convoying United States ships en route to Great Britain and Russia.

Seven were sunk—the Buchanan, Hopewell, Satterlee, Mason, Branch, McCalla and Swasey. Five were turned over to the Canadian navy and four to the Norwegians.

Their crews marked up thrilling records for all of them. They were so badly needed, at one time, that some were out as much as 190 days in a row. One limped into a British port, after a terrific blow, with her funnel and rails twisted off, and only five hours of oil in her bunkers.

But it was the Buchanan that went down in the most dramatic action. She was the ship the British loaded with dynamite and then drove full tile into the locked gates of the German submarine base at St. Nazaire. She blew up. But the base was a twisted and useless wreck.

Hotel To Settle OPA Damage Claim

BALTIMORE, March 26 (AP)—The Wicomico hotel of Salisbury, accused of violating maximum price regulations, has agreed to settlement of an OPA treble damage claim of $2,822.25, Leo H. McCormick, state OPA director, said today.

McCormick said the hotel's board of directors and Manager Richard T. Pillsbury had agreed to the payment and to a consent injunction restraining the hotel from further violations.

Judge Levin C. Bailey signed a decree enjoining the defendants from over-ceiling sales of food or beverages and from violating any provisions of the OPA restaurant maximum price regulations No. 2, McCormick said.

The injunction suit was filed against the hotel and Pillsbury in Wicomico County Circuit Court March 15, but no claim for damages had been filed in court.

The suit was against the hotel company as a corporation, McCormick said, and not against the board of directors as individuals. He said it was not inferred that the directors had any knowledge of overcharges made by the hotel's dining room.

PAGEANT FEATURES ASSEMBLY AT AHS

An historical pageant was presented at yesterday's Allegany high school assembly by the History Club under the direction of Miss Anna Hitchins.

With Robert Davis as the narrator, a program of historical pictures was given, beginning with the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock, "Prayer of Thanksgiving" was sung by the sextet with Lewis Walker, Jean Bittinger and Ann Martin representing the Pilgrims.

Shirley Wilson and Thoman Haythorne then portrayed the French and Indian War with "Indian Love Call" as the musical accompaniment. To the strains of "America," Greta Hersch and Jean Gaither represented the signers of the Constitution.

Bernard Sitter, in the role of Abraham Lincoln, was shown presenting the Gettysburg Address, with "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" as the accompaniment.

The period of the Gay Nineties and vaudeville was represented by Vivian Judy, accompanied at the piano with the song "I'm Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage."

The tremendous service which the Red Cross rendered in World War I was represented by Lorraine Kompanek and John Borchert, with "Over There" as the background for the setting.

The program concluded with the "Marine Hymn" and the raising of the American flag on Iwo Jima by Donald Fuller, Richard Taylor, and Pete Dendrinos. At the conclusion of the program, Welch Hardman presented Ralph R. Webster, principal, with a plaque on behalf of the boys' Hi-Y in honor of former members of the Hi-Y who fought in World War II.

Mr. Webster then awarded "A" certificates to members of Allegany's basketball team. Those receiving the awards were Robert Price, James Radcliffe Glen Brant, Gene Shaw, John Bachman, Gilbert Storey, William Fuller, and Jack Klosterman, manager.

Opening exercises were conducted by Welch Hardman with Alice Borgman reading the Scripture.

ACCORD ON GERMANY IS CALLED VICTORY FOR UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—A forthcoming agreement laying down economic law for Germany will be "tough on war industries, easy on peacetime industries," a government official disclosed today.

The accord, reached by the four-power Allied Control Council in Berlin, will be announced officially there in a few days, he said.

The official, who requested anonymity, pictured the decision as a victory for the United States because this government had sought strict limitations on metal, machinery and chemical manufactures, with more lenient rules on production of non-war materials.

On the other hand, Russia had asked heavy restrictions on both war and peace industries, while the British had proposed a comparatively light hand on all manufactures.

CHAMBERS of Imagery: "Hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery". Ezekiel 8:12. Read Ezekiel 8:7-17.

Ezekiel's religion forbade images and here they are in his Jerusalem, brought this time from Babylon, kept in the dark in household shrines, worshipped by the old men while the women wailed for Tamuz in the streets and young men worshipped the sun in the courts of the temple. No wonder the prophet's anger flamed against it all in a storm cloud of words.

The chambers of imagery are long gone from Jerusalem but they persist in our inner lives and with so many furnishings. Imagination is always and literally a kind of chamber of imagery bright or dark, with day dreams and longings and thoughts shaped to our fancy or desire. These inner chambers may be furnished too with lovely things; hallowed memories; affection as fragrant as pressed flowers in an old book, devotions and loyalties. The issues of life to ennoble or to debase, the psychologists tell us now, are to an unbelievable extent in these inner chambers of the soul. What care we need to take of them.

PRAYER: O thou who understandest our thoughts afar-off and from whom no secrets are hidden, forgive us all the furnishings of our inner lives in imagination or desire which fear the light. May what we cherish be pure in longing, right in action, and acceptable unto thee. In Jesus's name. Amen.

Legion Post Seeks Speedy Hospital Service for Vets

A committee was named last night at the meeting of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, to contact local hospitals and determine if some arrangements can be made to take care of emergency cases involving veterans.

Thomas F. Conlon, brought the matter before the meeting by suggesting that some plan might be worked out to make it possible to properly hospitalize veterans. He said there have been cases where no rooms have been available for veterans, and while none have actually been refused admittance, there has been some confusion and delay.

Patrick J. Carroll called attention to the contributions made by the local post when Memorial hospital was built and said the place is named as a memorial to veterans. When the move was afoot to construct the hospital here, he said, there were promises made that veterans would be taken care of and it was with this understanding that the Legion supported the project.

Vincent P. Ingram said he recalls that the Legion gave something like $7,000 to help local hospitals on one occasion and more on other occasions. He too urged that some investigation be started.

Conlon said he believes the hospitals appreciate everything the legion has done in the past and that they are terribly crowded now. But he again expressed the opinion that the legion should officially contact the heads of Allegany, Memorial and Miners hospitals.

Commander Samuel A. Graham closed the matter by appointing Conlon, Carroll and Ingram a committee of three to investigate, contact the institutions and make a report to the membership.

Communications read complimented the post on its successful clothing drive, and Graham said "it must have been outstanding or national headquarters would not have singled out the post for exceptional praise."

It was announced that the Legion will continue to hold its public cabaret dances at the Queen City hotel each Saturday night, with music by the Aristocrats orchestra.

Legion Post Will Be Formed at Corriganville

Veterans of Corriganville are organizing a new American Legion post, and a charter membership meeting will be held in DeHaven's Tavern, Corriganville, Friday at 8 p. m.

Thirty members have already enrolled, and veterans who wish to become charter members should attend Friday night's meeting, it is stated.

Frank Powers, vice-commander of the Mountain District American Legion, and officers from Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, and other posts in the district will attend the meeting Friday to assist in the formation of the new post.

It is planned to use the second floor of the DeHaven Tavern for post headquarters and club rooms after renovations are made.

Temporary officers of the new unit are John Thompson commander, and Evers Thomas, finance officer.

Samuel A. Graham, commander of Post No. 13, said last night that a new post is also in the process of organization at Barton. There are nine charted legion posts in the Mountain district, the youngest being Midland post No. 189. When charters are granted to Barton and Corriganville, there will be eleven posts in Garrett and Allegany counties, plus one at Ridgeley under the West Virginia department.

China Will Have

to him as the "man who bit the hand that fed him."

The correspondent said that internal conditions in China at present are deplorable with large bands of former soldiers looting and ravaging, with five governments all issuing almost worthless currency and the entire east in an "uproar" against the white man and the tyranny of his colonial imperialism. As an exhibit of the latter statement, he reported that the French colonial government stripped French Morocco of all grain and livestock to feed Frenchmen, has set up 46,000 bureaucratic jobs to be held only by Frenchmen, and when citizens of Morocco went abroad to learn how to hold these jobs, the French passed a law exiling all citizens who left the country.

Are Appeasing Russians

"This is what happened to people who believed in the Atlantic Charter and welcomed the Americans, assuming they would probably be the forty-ninth state in the union. Now, they feel that we have merely put their original owners back on their necks and they are bitter about it.

Abend told the audience that the United States has been doing an evil thing—after fighting a war of liberation. He declared that British appeased Hitler and had her Dunkirk, the United States appeased the Japs for fifty years and had her Pearl Harbor and that "we have now been appeasing the Russians for three years," but did not elaborate further.

Prior to Marshall's appearance in China, policy had been to make Chiang Kai Shek so strong that he would not have to fear any other pressure group, Abend said. When Marshall appeared, he told them if they didn't stop their civil warring they would receive no further aid from the United States with the exception of food to stave off famine. Abend said Marshall estimated Communist forces in China to number 575,000 regular army men and one million guerillas. Chiang himself estimated the Russian forces at 900,000 and the guerillas at one and a half million, he said.

The corruption in the Chinese army is "awful", Abend said in recalling how General MacArthur had been sarcastic with Gen. Widemeyer in referring to the apparent inactivity of the four million soldiers under his and Chiang's command. Explaining, he said that when American officers took over Chinese divisions they immediately discarded forty-six per cent of the personnel due to disease and would then send the remaining fifty-four per cent to a rest camp for four or five months as they would all average twenty-four pounds under weight. After that, it would require at least nine months more to train them. Progress, consequently, was slow, the speaker said.

Local Legionnaires Plan Observance Of Memorial Day

Preliminary plans for the annual Memorial day observance here were discussed by members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion last night at its regular meeting.

Post Commander Samuel A. Graham explained to the membership that the GAR, sometime ago, officially turned over the observance of Memorial day to the Legion, and each year proper ceremonies are held. Graham said that this year, with most of the veterans of World War II back home, a special effort should be made to make the observance an outstanding one. He then named a committee to start work immediately on the program and parade.

The committee includes, Thomas F. Conlon of World War I, and John T. Fey of World War II, co-chairmen; Frederick Zimmerman, E. G. A. Snyder, James B. Craig, Earle Brode, Donald Shaffer, Ray Ansbach, W. Earle Cobey and William L. Wilson.

After the committee was named, Graham commented that the membership would notice a number of World War II veterans are included in the committee, and expressed the opinion that the veterans of the recent conflict should begin now to assume some of these responsibilities.

There was some discussion about appropriate markings and decorations for graves of veterans in local cemeteries, and Graham said that notices would be sent out for volunteers to help take care of this work prior to Memorial day.

OPA Launches Campaign To Hold Ceiling Prices On Used Farm Equipment

A comprehensive statewide campaign has been launched by the OPA to obtain full compliance with regulations governing the sale of used farm equipment by farmers and auctioneers, the state OPA office said yesterday.

Special emphasis is being placed on preventing over-ceiling price transactions and enforcement of the provision requiring auctioneers to give notice to the OPA six days prior to any sale.

Letters are being sent by the price division to approximately 100 auctioneers throughout the state, enclosing copies of the regulations pertaining to sales and calling attention to the six-day clause, the OPA said.

The young man enlisted here several days ago and was sent to Baltimore for final tests, and was sworn in Monday.

Smith said yesterday that three specialists programs electronic technician, air crewmen and hospital corpsmen are now open to enlistees.

PE Rate Reductions Will Save Marylanders $394,000 Annually

BALTIMORE, March 26 (AP) — Rate reductions in the Potomac Edison Power Company, effective May 1, will save Maryland electricity users a total of $394,000, annually, Steuart Purcell, chairman of the public service commission, said today.

The PSC has directed the company to revise rate schedules at an annual revenue loss of approximately $515,000, he said. Of this sum, $121,000 will be reflected in rate reductions outside the state, including West Virginia, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Electric service is supplied by the company to Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick, Montgomery and Carroll counties, in Maryland.

Purcell said that negotiations for a rate reduction had been instituted more than a year ago by the commission and people's counsel. They were delayed by rapidly changing postwar conditions affecting the company's service and the completion of plans for refinancing its bonds and preferred stock, Purcell explained.

Donius Held for Probe In Hendricks Hotel Blaze Monday Night

Louis Donius, this city, is being held in the city jail for the state's attorney's office and John J. Treiber, assistant chief of police, said he will be questioned today in connection with a series of blazes in the already damaged Hendricks hotel late Monday evening.

At least four witnesses have been summoned to the hearing which will be held at the state's attorney's office this morning at 10 o'clock, Assistant Chief Treiber said.

South End firemen were called to the hotel at 11:10 p. m. Monday to extinguish fires in five of the rooms of the hotel and Donius was arrested less than half an hour later.

Firemen believed matches were used to set the blazes found in four rooms and a hall on the second floor. A mattress was found blazing in one room, in another room clothes on a chair were on fire and paper was found ablaze in the hall, firemen said.

Donius and Frank G. Wilson, Hagerstown, were taken into custody after the $20,000 fire March 15. The Hagerstown man received a six months' suspended sentence and was ordered to leave town.

Water Line Bids May Be Sought in April

Recalling that only three options remain to be secured for rights of way for the auxiliary water line from Lake Gordon to the city, Commissioner William J. Edwards said yesterday it is possible that bids for the construction of the line be sought in April.

Edwards predicted that the new line, which will double the amount of water being brought to the city, will be in use by early next year.

He said that details have not been worked out for servicing residents along Bedford road. In this connection he explained that the property owners will not tap on to the 36-inch concrete main but will connect with a smaller line, which will run off the main and then connect again.

Individual taps to the 36-inch main are not practical, Edwards said, expressing the view that it will be possible to service all the 150 homes along the line. Residents will be responsible for connections with the secondary line.

Smith Discounts Theory Of Exploding Tank As Cause of Blast

A theory that the explosion last Friday which wrecked the two-story concrete block building of the Cement Products Company at 405-413 Henderson avenue was caused by a 550-gallon gasoline storage tank exploding in the basement of the structure was discounted yesterday.

Lloyd Smith, manager of the firm, stated that an investigation following the explosion revealed the tank was still intact and almost full of fuel.

Smith, who was in the building at the time, said there was no evidence of gasoline or natural gas fumes prior to the explosion.

Charles B. Cooper, 26, Ellerslie, most seriously injured of the three men hurt in the explosion, was reported in fair condition last night by Memorial hospital attaches. Cooper, who was working for the John S. Cook contracting firm in the building, suffered second and third-degree burns of his entire body.

No Action Is Planned To Change To Daylight Saving Time Here

No movement has been started here to switch to daylight saving time, and the city council will take no action in the matter unless interested groups present such a request, Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday.

Officials of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce said it is unlikely that any action in resuming daylight saving time will be taken.

Mayor Post pointed out that Cumberland observed such a system only when it was inaugurated on a nationwide scale, and both times the action was taken during wartime.

In some sections of the nation, daylight saving time will be resumed the last Sunday in April, when clocks will be turned ahead one hour, and will remain in effect until the last Sunday in September.

Efforts in the last thirty years to put the system into effect during the summer months have been rejected here, largely because of opposition of local industries, where the change in shift workers' hours would cause confusion and would be costly to the companies. The workers themselves have also opposed the plan in past years.

President Truman recently said he would take no action to make daylight saving time effective this year throughout the nation, unless Congress took the lead in enacting legislation for such a change.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze in Storeroom

West Side Fire Company No. 3 was called to the J. W. Beacham apartment, 81 Green street, last evening at 6:15 o'clock when rags piled in a vacant first floor storeroom caught fire.

The fire fighters said the only damage was to a door and a window broken to let the dense smoke out of the building. The storeroom, formerly the Gospel tabernacle, is undergoing repairs.

The same company was called to the intersection of Greene and Johnson streets yesterday at 9:10 a. m. when an automobile operated by F. W. Morris caught fire. Firemen said the wiring was damaged by the blaze.

East Side firemen answered a false alarm on Leiper street yesterday at 1:24 p. m. Firemen said brush was being burned on a vacant lot.

HICKEL SURRENDERS TO AUTHORITIES; IS HELD UNDER BOND

Anthony Hickel, West Oldtown road, who escaped from City Police Officer P. C. Jenkins Monday morning while being taken from the state's attorney's office on Union street to the city jail, surrendered to the state's attorney's office early yesterday morning after being at liberty all night.

Hickel and his brother Harry Hickel were arraigned in trial magistrates' court later in the day, and Trial Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., held them under $300 bond each for action of the April grand jury. The pair face charges of larceny.

Police said Anthony Hickel has been employed by a local furniture store and is accused of stealing rugs and lamps from the place. His brother Harry is also implicated in the theft, it was indicated.

Anthony Hickel was also caught operating a truck on a revoked license, police said, but no action was taken on this charge. Neither was any action entered in trial magistrates' court for his escape from Officer Jenkins. The brothers are in county jail in default of bond.

Another man was arraigned before Magistrate Bruce on a charge of false pretense. He is Glenn Saville of Fort Ashby, W. Va. According to County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle the young man signed a statement in the state's attorney's office admitting that he obtained $37.41 from Joseph F. Squillace, this city, last August, by false pretenses. He was held for action of the April grand jury under bond of $200 and sent to the county jail. Late yesterday afternoon, bond was posted and he was released.

Mrs. Dean explained that the army officials have routed the brides through to the hometowns of their respective husbands, and will not be met here by Red Cross officials. The branch chairmen of Red Cross at Lonaconing and Mt. Savage have been notified to give whatever assistance is needed, and to notify the ex-soldiers that their wives are on the way.

VFW Drum, Bugle Corps Seeks 100 Members

The drum and bugle corps of Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has been reorganized, with the aim of securing 100 members, according to Grant E. Zollner, publicity chairman for the organization.

At the present time there are about thirty-five members. The corps is directed by Ralph L. Rizer, who has been the leader since the group was first organized in 1929. It was active until 1942, when it was suspended because of the war.

Rehearsals are being held each Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the VFW home, Union street. Any member of the post is eligible to join, regardless of his musical training. Instruments will be furnished by the post.

First turnout of the drum and bugle corps will be on Memorial day, May 30.

Names and Location Ships Can Be Given

Censorship has been lifted by the Navy department on revealing the name and location of ships, according to Mrs. Louise C. Dean, home service secretary of Allegany county chapter American Red Cross.

During the war years, Mrs. Dean explained, it was impossible to locate a navy man in the event of emergency if he was assigned to a ship, as no reference could be made to the name or location of the ship. Oftimes, she explained, the Red Cross was seriously handicapped in reaching navy men with emergency communications, and delay resulted.

Yesterday morning, however, Mrs. Dean received an official bulletin, announcing that censorship has been lifted and it is now possible to contact ships at sea or in port, direct, in event of emergency. This will expedite messages considerably, she explained, and should be good news to those with men in navy service.

Legion Post Seeks Speedy Hospital Service for Vets

A committee was named last night at the meeting of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, to contact local hospitals and determine if some arrangements can be made to take care of emergency cases involving veterans.

Thomas F. Conlon, brought the matter before the meeting by suggesting that some plan might be worked out to make it possible to properly hospitalize veterans. He said there have been cases where no rooms have been available for veterans, and while none have actually been refused admittance, there has been some confusion and delay.

Patrick J. Carroll called attention to the contributions made by the local post when Memorial hospital was built and said the place is named as a memorial to veterans. When the move was afoot to construct the hospital here, he said, there were promises made that veterans would be taken care of and it was with this understanding that the Legion supported the project.

Vincent P. Ingram said he recalls that the Legion gave something like $7,000 to help local hospitals on one occasion and more on other occasions. He too urged that some investigation be started.

Conlon said he believes the hospitals appreciate everything the legion has done in the past and that they are terribly crowded now. But he again expressed the opinion that the legion should officially contact the heads of Allegany, Memorial and Miners hospitals.

Commander Samuel A. Graham closed the matter by appointing Conlon, Carroll and Ingram a committee of three to investigate, contact the institutions and make a report to the membership.

Communications read complimented the post on its successful clothing drive, and Graham said "it must have been outstanding or national headquarters would not have singled out the post for exceptional praise."

It was announced that the Legion will continue to hold its public cabaret dances at the Queen City hotel each Saturday night, with music by the Aristocrats orchestra.

Legion Post Will Be Formed at Corriganville

Veterans of Corriganville are organizing a new American Legion post, and a charter membership meeting will be held in DeHaven's Tavern, Corrigansville, Friday at 8 p. m.

Thirty members have already enrolled, and veterans who wish to become charter members should attend Friday night's meeting, it is stated.

Frank Powers, vice-commander of the Mountain District American Legion, and officers from Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, and other posts in the district will attend the meeting Friday to assist in the formation of the new post.

It is planned to use the second floor of the DeHaven Tavern for post headquarters and club rooms after renovations are made.

Temporary officers of the new unit are John Thompson commander, and Evers Thomas, finance officer.

Samuel A. Graham, commander of Post No. 13, said last night that a new post is also in the process of organization at Barton. There are nine charted legion posts in the Mountain district, the youngest being Midland post No. 169. When charters are granted to Barton and Corriganville, there will be eleven posts in Garrett and Allegany counties, plus one at Ridgeley under the West Virginia department.

China Will Have

to him as the "man who bit the hand that fed him."

The correspondent said that internal conditions in China at present are deplorable with large bands of former soldiers looting and ravaging, with five governments all issuing almost worthless currency and the entire east in an "uproar" against the white man and the tyranny of his colonial imperialism. As an exhibit of the latter statement, he reported that the French colonial government stripped French Morocco of all grain and livestock to feed Frenchmen, has set up 46,000 bureaucratic jobs to be held only by Frenchmen, and when citizens of Morocco went abroad to learn how to hold these jobs, the French passed a law exiling all citizens who left the country.

Are Appeasing Russians

"This is what happened to people who believed in the Atlantic Charter and welcomed the Americans, assuming they would probably be the forty-ninth state in the union. Now, they feel that we have merely put their original owners back on their necks and they are bitter about it.

Abend told the audience that the United States has been doing an evil thing—after fighting a war of liberation. He declared that British appeased Hitler and had her Dunkirk, the United States appeased the Japs for fifty years and had her Pearl Harbor and that "we have now been appeasing the Russians for three years," but did not elaborate further.

Prior to Marshall's appearance in China, policy had been to make Chiang Kai Shek so strong that he would not have to fear any other pressure group, Abend said. When Marshall appeared, he told them if they didn't stop their civil warring they would receive no further aid from the United States with the exception of food to stave off famine. Abend said Marshall estimated Communist forces in China to number 575,000 regular army men and one million guerillas. Chiang himself estimated the Russian forces at 900,000 and the guerillas at one and a half million, he said.

The corruption in the Chinese army is "awful", Abend said in recalling how General MacArthur had been sarcastic with Gen. Widemeyer in referring to the apparent inactivity of the four million soldiers under his and Chiang's command. Explaining, he said that when American officers took over Chinese divisions they immediately discarded forty-six per cent of the personnel due to disease and would then send the remaining fifty-four per cent to a rest camp for four or five months as they would all average twenty-four pounds under weight. After that, it would require at least nine months more to train them. Progress, consequently, was slow, the speaker said.

Local Legionnaires Plan Observance Of Memorial Day

Preliminary plans for the annual Memorial day observance here were discussed by members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion last night at its regular meeting.

Post Commander Samuel A. Graham explained to the membership that the GAR, sometime ago, officially turned over the observance of Memorial day to the Legion, and each year proper ceremonies are held. Graham said that this year, with most of the veterans of World War II back home, a special effort should be made to make the observance an outstanding one. He then named a committee to start work immediately on the program and parade.

The committee includes, Thomas F. Conlon of World War I, and John T. Fey of World War II, co-chairmen; Frederick Zimmerman, E. G. A. Snyder, James B. Craig, Earle Brode, Donald Shaffer, Ray Ansbach, W. Earle Cobey and William L. Wilson.

After the committee was named, Graham commented that the membership would notice a number of World War II veterans are included in the committee, and expressed the opinion that the veterans of the recent conflict should begin now to assume some of these responsibilities.

There was some discussion about appropriate markings and decorations for graves of veterans in local cemeteries, and Graham said that notices would be sent out for volunteers to help take care of this work prior to Memorial day.

OPA Launches Campaign To Hold Ceiling Prices On Used Farm Equipment

A comprehensive statewide campaign has been launched by the OPA to obtain full compliance with regulations governing the sale of used farm equipment by farmers and auctioneers, the state OPA office said yesterday.

Special emphasis is being placed on preventing over-ceiling price transactions and enforcement of the provision requiring auctioneers to give notice to the OPA six days prior to any sale.

Letters are being sent by the price division to approximately 100 auctioneers throughout the state, enclosing copies of the regulations pertaining to sales and calling attention to the six-day clause, the OPA said.

PE Rate Reductions Will Save Marylanders $394,000 Annually

BALTIMORE, March 26 (AP)—Rate reductions in the Potomac Edison Power Company, effective May 1, will save Maryland electricity users a total of $394,000, annually, Steuart Purcell, chairman of the public service commission, said today.

The PSC has directed the company to revise rate schedules at an annual revenue loss of approximately $515,000, he said. Of this sum, $121,000 will be reflected in rate reductions outside the state, including West Virginia, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Electric service is supplied by the company to Allegany, Garrett, Washington, Frederick, Montgomery and Carroll counties, in Maryland.

Purcell said that negotiations for a rate reduction had been instituted more than a year ago by the commission and people's counsel. They were delayed by rapidly changing postwar conditions affecting the company's service and the completion of plans for refinancing its bonds and preferred stock, Purcell explained.

Donius Held for Probe In Hendricks Hotel Blaze Monday Night

Louis Donius, this city, is being held in the city jail for the state's attorney's office and John J. Treiber, assistant chief of police, said he will be questioned today in connection with a series of blazes in the already damaged Hendricks hotel late Monday evening.

At least four witnesses have been summoned to the hearing which will be held at the state's attorney's office this morning at 10 o'clock, Assistant Chief Treiber said.

South End firemen were called to the hotel at 11:10 p. m. Monday to extinguish fires in five of the rooms of the hotel and Donius was arrested less than half an hour later.

Firemen believed matches were used to set the blazes found in four rooms and a hall on the second floor. A mattress was found blazing in one room, in another room clothes on a chair were on fire and paper was found ablaze in the hall, firemen said.

Donius and Frank G. Wilson, Hagerstown, were taken into custody after the $20,000 fire March 15. The Hagerstown man received a six months' suspended sentence and was ordered to leave town.

Water Line Bids May Be Sought in April

Recalling that only three options remain to be secured for rights of way for the auxiliary water line from Lake Gordon to the city, Commissioner William J. Edwards said yesterday it is possible that bids for the construction of the line be sought in April.

Edwards predicted that the new line, which will double the amount of water being brought to the city, will be in use by early next year.

He said that details have not been worked out for servicing residents along Bedford road. In this connection he explained that the property owners will not tap on to the 36-inch concrete main but will connect with a smaller line, which will run off the main and then connect again.

Individual taps to the 36-inch main are not practical, Edwards said, expressing the view that it will be possible to service all the 150 homes along the line. Residents will be responsible for connections with the secondary line.

Smith Discounts Theory Of Exploding Tank As Cause of Blast

A theory that the explosion last Friday which wrecked the two-story concrete block building of the Cement Products Company at 405-413 Henderson avenue was caused by a 550-gallon gasoline storage tank exploding in the basement of the structure was discounted yesterday.

Lloyd Smith, manager of the firm, stated that an investigation following the explosion revealed the tank was still intact and almost full of fuel.

Smith, who was in the building at the time, said there was no evidence of gasoline or natural gas fumes prior to the explosion.

Charles B. Cooper, 26, Ellerslie, most seriously injured of the three men hurt in the explosion, was reported in fair condition last night by Memorial hospital attaches. Cooper, who was working for the John S. Cook contracting firm in the building, suffered second and third-degree burns of his entire body.

No Action Is Planned To Change To Daylight Saving Time Here

No movement has been started here to switch to daylight saving time, and the city council will take no action in the matter unless interested groups present such a request, Mayor Thomas S. Post said yesterday.

Officials of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce said it is unlikely that any action in resuming daylight saving time will be taken.

Mayor Post pointed out that Cumberland observed such a system only when it was inaugurated on a nationwide scale, and both times the action was taken during wartime.

In some sections of the nation, daylight saving time will be resumed the last Sunday in April, when clocks will be turned ahead one hour, and will remain in effect until the last Sunday in September.

Efforts in the last thirty years to put the system into effect during the summer months have been rejected here, largely because of opposition of local industries, where the change in shift workers' hours would cause confusion and would be costly to the companies. The workers themselves have also opposed the plan in past years.

President Truman recently said he would take no action to make daylight saving time effective this year throughout the nation, unless Congress took the lead in enacting legislation for such a change.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze in Storeroom

West Side Fire Company No. 3 was called to the J. W. Beacham apartment, 81 Green street, last evening at 6:15 o'clock when rags piled in a vacant first floor storeroom caught fire.

The fire fighters said the only damage was to a door and a window broken to let the dense smoke out of the building. The storeroom, formerly the Gospel tabernacle, is undergoing repairs.

The same company was called to the intersection of Greene and Johnson streets yesterday at 9:10 a. m. when an automobile operated by F. W. Morris caught fire. Firemen said the wiring was damaged by the blaze.

East Side firemen answered a false alarm on Leiper street yesterday at 1:24 p. m. Firemen said brush was being burned on a vacant lot.

HICKEL SURRENDERS TO AUTHORITIES; IS HELD UNDER BOND

Anthony Hickel, West Oldtown road, who escaped from City Police Officer P. C. Jenkins Monday morning while being taken from the state's attorney's office on Union street to the city jail, surrendered to the state's attorney's office early yesterday morning after being at liberty all night.

Hickel and his brother Harry Hickel were arraigned in trial magistrates' court later in the day, and Trial Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., held them under $300 bond each for action of the April grand jury. The pair face charges of larceny.

Police said Anthony Hickel has been employed by a local furniture store and is accused of stealing rugs and lamps from the place. His brother Harry is also implicated in the theft, it was indicated.

Anthony Hickel was also caught operating a truck on a revoked license, police said, but no action was taken on this charge. Neither was any action entered in trial magistrates' court for his escape from Officer Jenkins. The brothers are in county jail in default of bond.

Another man was arraigned before Magistrate Bruce on a charge of false pretense. He is Glenn Saville of Fort Ashby, W. Va. According to County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle the young man signed a statement in the state's attorney's office admitting that he obtained $37.41 from Joseph F. Squillace, this city, last August, by false pretenses. He was held for action of the April grand jury under bond of $200 and sent to the county jail. Late yesterday afternoon, bond was posted and he was released.

WEST VIRGINIA GETS SET FOR MINE STRIKE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 26 (AP)—West Virginia, long innured to work stoppages in its chief industry, faced the prospect tonight of another bituminous coal shutdown with hopes that a few adverse effects on general business would develop immediately.

For one thing, coal stocks above ground are unusually large; for another, miners, along with other laboring groups, have laid away comfortable savings and one business spokesman declared they "might welcome a breathing spell as a chance to spend it."

President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, served notice on the operators at Washington during the day of termination of the Appalachian wage agreement, signed one year ago, saying his 400,000 miners would not report for work next Monday unless terms for renewal of the pact are agreed upon before that time.

Spokesmen for both the UMW and operators were all at the Washington conference, which has been in session since March 12 and which will continue in an effort to reach a new agreement.

West Virginia, which produces one-fourth of the nation's bituminous coal output, has about 100,000 miners.

—Approximately fifteen per cent of all tax monies collected from motor vehicle users in 1942 and 1943 went for purposes other than highway construction and maintenance.

WEST VIRGINIA GETS SET FOR MINE STRIKE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 26 (AP)—West Virginia, long innured to work stoppages in its chief industry, faced the prospect tonight of another bituminous coal shutdown with hopes that a few adverse effects on general business would develop immediately.

For one thing, coal stocks above ground are unusually large; for another, miners, along with other laboring groups, have laid away comfortable savings and one business spokesman declared they "might welcome a breathing spell as a chance to spend it."

President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, served notice on the operators at Washington during the day of termination of the Appalachian wage agreement, signed one year ago, saying his 400,000 miners would not report for work next Monday unless terms for renewal of the pact are agreed upon before that time.

Spokesmen for both the UMW and operators were all at the Washington conference, which has been in session since March 12 and which will continue in an effort to reach a new agreement.

West Virginia, which produces one-fourth of the nation's bituminous coal output, has about 100,000 miners.

—Approximately fifteen per cent of all tax monies collected from motor vehicle users in 1942 and 1943 went for purposes other than highway construction and maintenance.

Here's Latest Dirt On New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — Maj. Gen. Charles P. Gross, board of transportation chairman, told a woman's club New York was "by all odds the dirtiest city in the world."

There's more dirt per street, especially downtown, said he, "than in Moscow, Copenhagen, Brussels and Paris combined."

FOR EVERY MAN, A SONG

I know an old lady who makes wax flowers. You smile. Wax flowers? Why, no one has made those for years and years. Dimly you remember some under a glass case in your grandmother's house. You thought them wonderful then but now they seem hideous.

They aren't hideous to the old lady though. They were "all the rage" when she was a girl and everyone said she made the best ones in town. She was proud of that. She was very poor but it made her feel rich to know that she could do something better than anyone else and she has clung to that rich feeling all her life.

It has been a hard life, drab and discouraging, without beauty. But whenever she could, she has made wax flowers and they have kept her from feeling the pain and poverty. They have kept her feeling different—proud and warm. Here was something no one could take away.

No, she isn't a strange little woman. Most of us are like that. No matter how colorless or discouraging our lives, we cling to something that lifts and strengthens us.

I am remembering a saying of my father's—"Never take from any man his song." That's a deep saying for each one of us has a song within himself—some simple faith, some private pride or pleasure that sustains him.

There's one old man who makes full rigged sailing ships inside bottles . . . and another who still dances an Irish jig at 70 . . . and a timid, awkward country boy of 17 who can whistle like a lark. No great accomplishments. Perhaps you think it silly to be proud of them. Yet those seemingly trivial gifts, like the wax flowers, have brought comfort and hope and healing through the darkness.

"Never take from any man his song." Never belittle or despise the faith or the small talent that keeps another human being eager and proud. Never break down any belief that inspires him even though it seems petty to you.

NOTHING IS PETTY THAT CLEARS A TRAIL FOR THE SOUL.

The result will be to extend telephone service to more rural families in many sections of Maryland.

18,479 See Cowboys Top North Carolina, 43-40; Bob Kurland Scores 23 Points

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—With seven-foot Bob Kurland pouring in twenty-three points, the Oklahoma Aggies won the N.C.A.A. basketball championship tonight by defeating North Carolina University 43-40 at Madison Square Garden before 18,479 fans.

The Tarheels, eastern regional N.C.A.A. champs, put up a terrific struggle before going down to defeat. Trailing by thirteen points, 31-18, in the fifth minute of the second half, the White Phantoms rallied to narrow the Aggies' margin to 36-33 midway in the session.

Cowboys Freeze Ball

The Aggies drew away again to 43-34 with five minutes to go, but were forced to freeze the ball in the final sixty seconds as the southerners fought back to come within three points of the westerners a minute before the end.

By winning their thirty-first game of 33 played this season, and their fifteenth in succession, the Aggies became the first team to win the N.C.A.A. crown two straight years. It was also their sixth straight victory in N.C.A.A. competition, the Stillwater, Okla., Cowboys having turned back Baylor and California at Kansas City last week to gain the western regional title.

As expected, Kurland proved to be the difference between the two finely-coached quintets. Remarkable graceful for all of his 84 inches, the big redhead was all over the court.

The center of almost every Cowboy offensive play, Kurland was equally adept on defense, and in addition to hauling a majority of the balls off the opposing team's backboard, he tapped away at least four "sure" baskets.

Raises Total to 72

His twenty-three points raised his three-game N.C.A.A. total to 72 and was a big factor in his being named by the Metropolitan Writers' Committee as the outstanding player in the tournament.

With Kurland netting six of Oklahoma's first seven points, the Aggies spurted into an early 7-4 lead, but the Tarheels moved ahead 13-12 midway in the first period. John (Hook) Dillon with six points and Horace (Bones) McKinney, with three were North Carolina's big guns in the drive.

The two teams waged a see-saw struggle the rest of the half with the lead changing hands seven times and the score tied five times before the Aggies staged a concerted drive to grab a 23-17 half time lead.

Ohio State Wins

Held practically on even terms in the first twenty minutes, Ohio State's Big Ten Champions broke the game wide apart with a 41-point barrage in the second half to swamp California tonight 63-45 for third place in the N. C. A. A. tournament. The lineups:

Beall Gridders Are Offered Use Of College Field

Fund for Equipment Is $505; Committee Will Meet April 8

FROSTBURG, March 26.—The "Football for Beall" committee met last evening in the city hall, with about fifteen members in attendance and William H. Lemmert, chairman, presiding. It was reported that 850 questionnaires were sent to parents of students of Beall high school, explaining the plans of the committee with reference to raising between $2,500 and $3,000 for equipping a football team at the school and asking for an expression of opinion concerning the plan.

According to Lloyd Griffith, publicity agent for the committee, two hundred and seven questionnaires were returned the first day after they were sent and everyone approved the plan and favored football at the school.

It was also announced that Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of Frostburg State Teachers' college, had offered the use of the college athletic field for the games this fall in the event that the grounds at Beall high school would not be in readiness by that time.

The contributions so far received, according to Griffith, are as follows, Young Men's Republican Club, $200; John R. Fairgrieve Post, No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars, $250; Disabled American Veterans, $50, and Herman Ball, former Allegany high school coach now at the University of Maryland, $5, making a total of $505.

The next meeting of the committee will be held Monday evening, April 8, in the city hall at 7:30 o'clock.

Stirnweiss Injured When Struck in Mouth

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27 (AP) — Misfortune continued to plague George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss, New York Yankee infielder, who was struck in the mouth with a batted ball today, although the injury was not considered serious.

Just out of bed after being sidelined five days with influenza, Stirnweiss was practicing to return to duty when the grounder, batted by Coach Red Rolfe, struck him in the face, cutting his mouth.

Pitcher Johnny Maldovin was added to the list of flue victims today and it was announced that Pitcher Carl Drews, who still feels the effects of a tonsil operation last month, may be sent back to New York.

Evitt's Creek, Deep Creek Get Trout and Bass

1,300 Trout Stocked in Local Stream; Lake Receives 486 Bass

Approximately 1,300 trout, averaging eight to twelve inches, have been stocked in Evitt's creek this month, according to P. Oswald Weber, well known local sportsman and member of the Cumberland Outdoor Club.

Weber said that 400 trout were placed in the stream on March 11, a similar number were planted March 18 and about 500 were stocked yesterday.

The trout were distributed in the stream from the Pennsylvania line to the Wolfe farm property on the Baltimore pike.

486 Bass Are Placed In Deep Creek Lake

Four hundred and eighty-six adult large mouth bass, weighing from two to six pounds, were stocked in Deep Creek lake last week, Fulcher P. Smith, Ellerslie, member of the state game and inland fish commission, said last night.

Prior to the war, the department began a new policy of buying large mouth bass from commercial firms to stock Deep Creek lake, Smith said, but such shipments were cut off because of the manpower shortage resulting from the war.

In the meantime, the state legislature enacted a law making the black bass a game fish to be caught only with hook and line.

Before enactment of the law, fisherman netted the fish and sold them on the market. Smith estimated that thousands of pounds of bass were netted and sold in this manner.

The law, however, makes one exception to the provision prohibiting netting of bass, according to Smith. Because of this exception, fisherman can net the bass for propagation and transfer within the state, Smith said, adding that the bass are caught under police supervision.

An ardent sponsor of this law was State Senator Bernard Gonder, of Garrett county, who was chairman of the game and fish committee in the senate, according to Smith.

The commission member said he hopes more of the adult bass can be obtained to stock the lake. He pointed out that some fingerlings were used to stock the lake during the war when the adult bass could not be obtained.

Softball League Elects Officers

13 Teams Represented at Sunday School Loop Meeting

William Armbruster, of St. Luke's, was re-elected president of the Central YMCA's Sunday School Softball League at a meeting last night in the YMCA. Thomas Waller, of First Presbyterian, was renamed vice president, and Clifton Van Roby, of the YMCA, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Thirteen teams were represented at the meeting, including St. John's Lutheran, which was not in the circuit in 1945, the first year the loop was in operation. Cresaptown Methodist won the championship of the fifteen team league last year.

Each team must post a forfeit fee of $5 and $1 additional for the league's operating expense fund by April 22. It is hoped to open the season April 29.

The make-up of the league is expected to be known definitely at the next meeting scheduled for April 16 at the Central YMCA.

Tropical Daily Double Pays 1,122 on 34 Tickets

MIAMI, Fla., March 26 (AP) — Thirty-four tickets were held on a daily double combination which paid $1,122.40 at Trophical Park today. It was a record for the current meeting.

The payoff came when Tetramore won the first race at $22.50 and High Ego copped the second at $12.70. The latter was a "good thing," being played down heavily in the late wagering, and a two dollar win parlay would have netted about $1,000 less than the daily double payoff.

Bisons' Mark Is Best in Bedford School's History

Copped District Honors First Time; Team Will Lose Rose, Watters

BEDFORD, Pa., March 26—The Bedford High Bisons this year had the best season in the school's history as they romped off with District 5's championship for the first time. The 40-28 victory over Somerset in the playoff came after a record of 15 wins and 6 losses were piled up against tough competition. After the playoffs, the Bisons were defeated 52-33 by District 6's Altoona in a regional playoff.

Against the opposition provided by the teams in their own Bedford county the Bisons were no less than perfect. A vaunted Everett Warrior five was snowed under twice, 46-14, Saxton-Liberty, which went on to play the District 5 B playoff was whipped 47-20 and 55-17, and Smith Vocational was completely helpless, losing 62-17 and 81-12.

Against the other teams of District 5, hailing from neighboring Somerset county, the Bisons were also good. They whipped the better-than-average Conemaugh Township Indians 50-45 and 36-26, and split with Somerset, winning on the Somerset floor 46-33, but losing at home 43-42 in a heartbreaker.

In their non-district games, they played some excellent opposition. They were twice victors over Claysburg, 26-20 and 43-18. Ferndale provided thrills in beating Bedford 38-33, then losing 44-28 while Southmont took the Bisons 45-42 in overtime on the Bedford hardwood, only to lose 44-35 later. Johnstown Catholic won a game marked by excessive personal fouls, 23-19. The Bisons bowed to the national prep champions, Mercersburg Academy in a close 45-36 contest, and split with La Salle high of Cumberland, perennial invitation getter to the Eastern States Catholic tourney, losing 34-31 and coming back to win, 40-35. They beat their own Alumni, composed entirely of returning vets and members of the Bedford Legion team, 49-35.

Starring for the Bisons in their 1005-660 point advantage were Bud Fisher, with 423 points, Chuck Watters, with 237, and Jack Faust, with 226, giving the "Terrific Trio" all but 110 of the Bedford markers. Excellent defensive work at guard by Dan Budd, 230-pound six-footer and Dave Rose was a good reason for the Bedford successes. Coach Bruce M. Fisher's '45 team loses Watters and Rose before next season.

4,439 Fans Pay $7,551 To See Fight Shows Here

Boom is Marked by Nine Shows in Five Months; Eight Amateurs Draw $5,351.70

Cumberland is enjoying one of the greatest boxing booms in its history with three clubs staging shows and all reporting success financially.

A record-breaking number of one professional and eight amateur shows have been presented here in less than five months and a grand total of 4,439 persons have paid from fifty cents to $3.60 to see the simon pures and the fight-for-pay leather pushers perform. Gate receipts for the nine shows are $7,551.70, including taxes, which the patron is required to pay. Net receipts for the same number of shows is $6,337.78, which means that the shows have been taxed to the extent of $1,213.92.

The grand comeback of boxing follows a five-year war period in which the sport was dormant in Cumberland.

Professional boxing was revived here March 18 by the Cumberland Athletic Club, of which Leonard "Chick" Little is promoter and "Vic" Ricker, matchmaker, after eight amateur shows had been staged here and a total of 770 persons paid a gross gate of $2,200 to see the five-bout card headed by the Adragna brothers of Pittsburgh. Net receipts for this show were $1,900.

Legion Revived Sport

Amateur boxing was revived by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, October 29-30, when a two-day tournament was presented. The Allegany Athletic Association, headed by Robert E. Shrout, Jr., Charles Buzzard "Chick" Harbell, entered the amateur promotion game with a tournament December 10-11.

Each organization has presented four shows to date and the competition has been keen. The AAA leads with 1,909 paid and gross gate receipts of $2,711.90 while the Legion shows have attracted 1,760 cash customers and $2,639.80 at the gate. The largest crowd to attend an amateur show was on March 11 when 661 paid $939.70 to see the AAA card, topped by Billy Dircks and Dave Kidsy, heavyweights, at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

When the two amateur clubs entered the field there was some doubt as to whether more than one club could operate successfully here. Proof that two clubs could operate O. K. and make money was shown in January when three shows were held here. Those three cards attracted 1,347 customers who paid $1,922.20. Three shows—two amateur and one professional—were presented here during the month February 18 through March 18 and 1,981 persons paid $3,956.90, indicating that the sport is growing in leaps and bounds.

It's Up to Promoters

Feed Your Dog as Many Famous Breeders Do

". . . like it and thrive on it."
Mrs. R. E. Duty, owner of Charminel Kennels, Tulsa, Oklahoma, writes: "I prefer Kellogg's GRO-PUP meal over every other form of dry dog food for our 17 Cocker Spaniels. I feed it with cooked or ground meat . . . and they like it and thrive on it."
MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's GRO-PUP because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.
Kellogg's GRO-PUP is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—With seven-foot Bob Kurland pouring in twenty-three points, the Oklahoma Aggies won the N.C.A.A. basketball championship tonight by defeating North Carolina University 43-40 at Madison Square Garden before 18,479 fans.

The Tarheels, eastern regional N.C.A.A. champs, put up a terrific struggle before going down to defeat. Trailing by thirteen points, 31-18, in the fifth minute of the second half, the White Phantoms rallied to narrow the Aggies' margin to 36-33 midway in the session.

Cowboys Freeze Ball

The Aggies drew away again to 43-34 with five minutes to go, but were forced to freeze the ball in the final sixty seconds as the southerners fought back to come within three points of the westerners a minute before the end.

By winning their thirty-first game of 33 played this season, and their fifteenth in succession, the Aggies became the first team to win the N.C.A.A. crown two straight years. It was also their sixth straight victory in N.C.A.A. competition, the Stillwater, Okla., Cowboys having turned back Baylor and California at Kansas City last week to gain the western regional title.

As expected, Kurland proved to be the difference between the two finely-coached quintets. Remarkable graceful for all of his 84 inches, the big redhead was all over the court.

The center of almost every Cowboy offensive play, Kurland was equally adept on defense, and in addition to hauling a majority of the balls off the opposing team's backboard, he tapped away at least four "sure" baskets.

Raises Total to 72

His twenty-three points raised his three-game N.C.A.A. total to 72 and was a big factor in his being named by the Metropolitan Writers' Committee as the outstanding player in the tournament.

With Kurland netting six of Oklahoma's first seven points, the Aggies spurted into an early 7-4 lead, but the Tarheels moved ahead 13-12 midway in the first period. John (Hook) Dillon with six points and Horace (Bones) McKinney, with three were North Carolina's big guns in the drive.

The two teams waged a see-saw struggle the rest of the half with the lead changing hands seven times and the score tied five times before the Aggies staged a concerted drive to grab a 23-17 half time lead.

Ohio State Wins

Held practically on even terms in the first twenty minutes, Ohio State's Big Ten Champions broke the game wide apart with a 41-point barrage in the second half to swamp California tonight 63-45 for third place in the N. C. A. A. tournament. The lineups:

It is proposed that two twilight games be played each week, with the starting time of games set for 6 o'clock.

Fund for Equipment Is $505; Committee Will Meet April 8

FROSTBURG, March 26.—The "Football for Beall" committee met last evening in the city hall, with about fifteen members in attendance and William H. Lemmert, chairman, presiding. It was reported that 850 questionnaires were sent to parents of students of Beall high school, explaining the plans of the committee with reference to raising between $2,500 and $3,000 for equipping a football team at the school and asking for an expression of opinion concerning the plan.

According to Lloyd Griffith, publicity agent for the committee, two hundred and seven questionnaires were returned the first day after they were sent and everyone approved the plan and favored football at the school.

It was also announced that Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of Frostburg State Teachers' college, had offered the use of the college athletic field for the games this fall in the event that the grounds at Beall high school would not be in readiness by that time.

The contributions so far received, according to Griffith, are as follows, Young Men's Republican Club, $200; John R. Fairgrieve Post, No. 2462, Veterans of Foreign Wars, $250; Disabled American Veterans, $50, and Herman Ball, former Allegany high school coach now at the University of Maryland, $5, making a total of $505.

The next meeting of the committee will be held Monday evening, April 8, in the city hall at 7:30 o'clock.

Stirnweiss Injured When Struck in Mouth

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27 (AP) — Misfortune continued to plague George (Snuffy) Stirnweiss, New York Yankee infielder, who was struck in the mouth with a batted ball today, although the injury was not considered serious.

Just out of bed after being sidelined five days with influenza, Stirnweiss was practicing to return to duty when the grounder, batted by Coach Red Rolfe, struck him in the face, cutting his mouth.

Pitcher Johnny Maldovin was added to the list of flue victims today and it was announced that Pitcher Carl Drews, who still feels the effects of a tonsil operation last month, may be sent back to New York.

Evitt's Creek, Deep Creek Get Trout and Bass

1,300 Trout Stocked in Local Stream; Lake Receives 486 Bass

Approximately 1,300 trout, averaging eight to twelve inches, have been stocked in Evitt's creek this month, according to P. Oswald Weber, well known local sportsman and member of the Cumberland Outdoor Club.

Weber said that 400 trout were placed in the stream on March 11, a similar number were planted March 18 and about 500 were stocked yesterday.

The trout were distributed in the stream from the Pennsylvania line to the Wolfe farm property on the Baltimore pike.

486 Bass Are Placed In Deep Creek Lake

Four hundred and eighty-six adult large mouth bass, weighing from two to six pounds, were stocked in Deep Creek lake last week, Fulcher P. Smith, Ellerslie, member of the state game and inland fish commission, said last night.

Prior to the war, the department began a new policy of buying large mouth bass from commercial firms to stock Deep Creek lake, Smith said, but such shipments were cut off because of the manpower shortage resulting from the war.

In the meantime, the state legislature enacted a law making the black bass a game fish to be caught only with hook and line.

Before enactment of the law, fisherman netted the fish and sold them on the market. Smith estimated that thousands of pounds of bass were netted and sold in this manner.

The law, however, makes one exception to the provision prohibiting netting of bass, according to Smith. Because of this exception, fisherman can net the bass for propagation and transfer within the state, Smith said, adding that the bass are caught under police supervision.

An ardent sponsor of this law was State Senator Bernard Gonder, of Garrett county, who was chairman of the game and fish committee in the senate, according to Smith.

The commission member said he hopes more of the adult bass can be obtained to stock the lake. He pointed out that some fingerlings were used to stock the lake during the war when the adult bass could not be obtained.

Softball League Elects Officers

13 Teams Represented at Sunday School Loop Meeting

William Armbruster, of St. Luke's, was re-elected president of the Central YMCA's Sunday School Softball League at a meeting last night in the YMCA. Thomas Waller, of First Presbyterian, was renamed vice president, and Clifton Van Roby, of the YMCA, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Thirteen teams were represented at the meeting, including St. John's Lutheran, which was not in the circuit in 1945, the first year the loop was in operation. Cresaptown Methodist won the championship of the fifteen team league last year.

Each team must post a forfeit fee of $5 and $1 additional for the league's operating expense fund by April 22. It is hoped to open the season April 29.

Tropical Daily Double Pays 1,122 on 34 Tickets

MIAMI, Fla., March 26 (AP) — Thirty-four tickets were held on a daily double combination which paid $1,122.40 at Trophical Park today. It was a record for the current meeting.

The payoff came when Tetramore won the first race at $22.50 and High Ego copped the second at $12.70. The latter was a "good thing," being played down heavily in the late wagering, and a two dollar win parlay would have netted about $1,000 less than the daily double payoff.

Joe Dorsey Accompanies Squad; Opener Is Set for 3 p. m. Tomorrow

Ten LaSalle players will be eligible to participate in the annual Eastern States Catholic Invitational basketball tournament, it was revealed yesterday as the Explorers shoved off by B. & O. train for New York City where they stopped at the Piccadilly hotel last evening prior to continuing their journey today by train to Providence, and thence by bus to Newport, R. I., scene of the games.

It was formerly announced that eight players would be eligible to compete but the number has been raised to ten in recent days and as a result Bobby Vanderhout and Joe Dorsey became members of LaSalle's tournament team in addition to George Geatz, Jack Steiner, Jimmie Collins, Bob Mattingly, Clem Snyder, Tommy Carroll, Tommy Cloonan and Harry Hart.

Rates Philly Team Tops

"Watch us if we get by the first game," Coach Bill Keegan declared as the Explorers boarded the train for the journey to Rhode Island. Keegan regards LaSalle, of Philadelphia, winner of the Catholic league and city titles in the Pennsylvania city, as the No. 1 team in the three-day tournament. The Philadelphia and Cumberland LaSalle teams will clash in the first game tomorrow at 3 p. m.

Brother Gregory, director of athletics, Bobby O'Rourke and seven adult followers of the team and students were in the "On to Newport" delegation.

Copped District Honors First Time; Team Will Lose Rose, Watters

BEDFORD, Pa., March 26—The Bedford High Bisons this year had the best season in the school's history as they romped off with District 5's championship for the first time. The 40-28 victory over Somerset in the playoff came after a record of 15 wins and 6 losses were piled up against tough competition. After the playoffs, the Bisons were defeated 52-33 by District 6's Altoona in a regional playoff.

Against the opposition provided by the teams in their own Bedford county the Bisons were no less than perfect. A vaunted Everett Warrior five was snowed under twice, 46-14, Saxton-Liberty, which went on to play the District 5 B playoff was whipped 47-20 and 55-17, and Smith Vocational was completely helpless, losing 62-17 and 81-12.

Against the other teams of District 5, hailing from neighboring Somerset county, the Bisons were also good. They whipped the better-than-average Conemaugh Township Indians 50-45 and 36-26, and split with Somerset, winning on the Somerset floor 46-33, but losing at home 43-42 in a heartbreaker.

In their non-district games, they played some excellent opposition. They were twice victors over Claysburg, 26-20 and 43-18. Ferndale provided thrills in beating Bedford 38-33, then losing 44-28 while Southmont took the Bisons 45-42 in overtime on the Bedford hardwood, only to lose 44-35 later. Johnstown Catholic won a game marked by excessive personal fouls, 23-19. The Bisons bowed to the national prep champions, Mercersburg Academy in a close 45-36 contest, and split with La Salle high of Cumberland, perennial invitation getter to the Eastern States Catholic tourney, losing 34-31 and coming back to win, 40-35. They beat their own Alumni, composed entirely of returning vets and members of the Bedford Legion team, 49-35.

4,439 Fans Pay $7,551 To See Fight Shows Here

Cumberland is enjoying one of the greatest boxing booms in its history with three clubs staging shows and all reporting success financially.

A record-breaking number of one professional and eight amateur shows have been presented here in less than five months and a grand total of 4,439 persons have paid from fifty cents to $3.60 to see the simon pures and the fight-for-pay leather pushers perform. Gate receipts for the nine shows are $7,551.70, including taxes, which the patron is required to pay. Net receipts for the same number of shows is $6,337.78, which means that the shows have been taxed to the extent of $1,213.92.

The grand comeback of boxing follows a five-year war period in which the sport was dormant in Cumberland.

Professional boxing was revived here March 18 by the Cumberland Athletic Club, of which Leonard "Chick" Little is promoter and "Vic" Ricker, matchmaker, after eight amateur shows had been staged here and a total of 770 persons paid a gross gate of $2,200 to see the five-bout card headed by the Adragna brothers of Pittsburgh. Net receipts for this show were $1,900.

Legion Revived Sport

Amateur boxing was revived by Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, October 29-30, when a two-day tournament was presented. The Allegany Athletic Association, headed by Robert E. Shrout, Jr., Charles Buzzard "Chick" Harbell, entered the amateur promotion game with a tournament December 10-11.

Each organization has presented four shows to date and the competition has been keen. The AAA leads with 1,909 paid and gross gate receipts of $2,711.90 while the Legion shows have attracted 1,760 cash customers and $2,639.80 at the gate. The largest crowd to attend an amateur show was on March 11 when 661 paid $939.70 to see the AAA card, topped by Billy Dircks and Dave Kidsy, heavyweights, at SS. Peter and Paul gym.

When the two amateur clubs entered the field there was some doubt as to whether more than one club could operate successfully here. Proof that two clubs could operate O. K. and make money was shown in January when three shows were held here. Those three cards attracted 1,347 customers who paid $1,922.20. Three shows—two amateur and one professional—were presented here during the month February 18 through March 18 and 1,981 persons paid $3,956.90, indicating that the sport is growing in leaps and bounds.

It's Up to Promoters

Yes, Cumberland is in the midst of a postwar boxing boom and it's up to the promoters to keep the sport on a high plane for continued success.

Here's a financial report on all of the shows held this season, showing the dates, sponsor, paid attendance and gross receipts:

". . . like it and thrive on it."
Mrs. R. E. Duty, owner of Gharminel Kennels, Tulsa, Oklahoma, writes: "I prefer Kellogg's GRO-PUP meal over every other form of dry dog food for our 17 Cocker Spaniels. I feed it with cooked or ground meat . . . and they like it and thrive on it."
MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's GRO-PUP because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.
Kellogg's GRO-PUP is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

MIAMI, Fla., March 27—(AP)—As a fellow whom the dogs often follow but who doesn't follow the dogs we were quite astonished at the manner in which greyhound racing has developed into something of a major industry down here, with four tracks in the immediate vicinity, each operating eighty nights a season.

The dog racing fanciers are quite as enthusiastic about the sport as the horse race enthusiasts, studying form charts just as religiously, tracing the breeds of the animals and otherwise trying to figure out a system to beat a game which can lick anybody who sticks to it long enough.

They can reel off the life histories of such canines as Flashy Sir, who started nine times and won nine times and whose owner refused an offer of $50,000 for the spedster. Or of Bit of Buzz, who finished second in eleven straight races early in the season and consequently was paired, or "wheeled," with every other dog in the race for quiniela betting.

And they can tell you about Purple Panther, a hound running about six years ago which was a remarkably fast breaker but which faded rapidly near the finish, and whose pups show the same tendency thus proving the influence of heredity. And about Bob Trout, which could only win running from the No. 7 or No. 8 box because of its tendency to run wide. It it were placed in a middle box it would either barge into the pack at the first turn or lag behind and swing wide, running itself right out of the race.

Most of the smart bettors consider a dog's chances of getting around the first turn without a jam as in a well-matched race practically any dog can win if it gets the breaks.

Naturally there are the usual number of hunch bettors, the women who pick an animal because of the curl to its tail or because it is pretty; the men who won't bet on a dog that barks too much at the start because they figure it is wasting too much energy.

Dogs Quit In Hurry

There apparently is a difference in the brain power of dogs the same as there is among humans. Flashy Sir is rated one of the smartest, picking its holes and otherwise running a cagey race much as a human runner would do. There have been dogs, though, that, rounding into the home stretch, said "to heck with this business" and jumped the fence and made a bee line for their kennels.

Some dogs lose the incentive to run if they can't see the mechanical rabbit, and they'd certainly lose it if they ever caught the phoney.

The difference in the class of competition sometimes is almost infinitisimal to the average dog player, but it means everything in a race. There was a hound named Korn Kick which, running the "hot box," or feature races, usually came in fifth or sixth or seventh. It was dropped down to a race which went only a fifth of a second slower than the top event, and won easily.

Females Are More Honest

Females are considered more honest than males. That is, they try harder, and also are better routers.

RETURNS TO RING

EZZARD CHARLES, the ebony-skinned knockout artist from Cincinnati, will be out to demonstrate that he has lost none of his prewar brilliance when he faces Billy Duncan in a ten-round supporting bout on the Billy Fox-Ossie Harris fistic headliner at the Pittsburgh Gardens next Monday night. Before joining the army three years ago Charles, then 19, laid low an imposing list of foemen including Anton Christoforidis, Booker Beckwith, Mose Brown and Jose Basore. In his initial postwar bout, Ezzard knocked out Al Sheridan.

Incidentally, a dog four years old is considered old for the sport.

Dog racing, like horse racing, has enjoyed a bumper season both in attendance and wagering, but as far as we could learn one of the side-show events which take place about once a year has not yet been seen.

That occurs when some individual with a warped sense of humor tosses a cat over the fence onto the track to provide a little competition for the rabbit. Usually a couple of the dogs forget all about the rabbit and take off after the more animated target.

Weak Infield, Pitching Headaches Trouble Billy Southworth

By JACK HAND

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 26 (AP)—Billy Southworth is launching a shiny new three-year plan in Boston with a first rate outfield but little else to back it up. Serious trouble in the left side of the infield and pitching headaches probably add up to another second division finish.

If money could do the trick, the Braves would win the flag in nothing flat. President Lou Perini and his contracting associates tossed a $500,000 check at Owner Sam Breadon last winter in an unsuccessful attempt to buy Shortstop Marty Marion from the Cardinals. They would do it again if they thought it would do any good.

Boston still has hopes of landing an experienced infielder and some more pitching, but it is not too well prepared to go trading. Cash is their big asset with a smattering of run-of-the-mill surplus talent.

If the Braves could lure Whitey Kurowski from St. Louis, as has often been rumored, they would have a shortstop problem. Breadon has told Perini that Kurowski will remain St. Louis property, at least until he signs his contract. There is absolutely no chance of getting Marion.

The owners are not expecting Southworth to rebuild the world in a single spring. They signed him to a three-year contract with instructions to start rebuilding. Billy the Kid is filling the bill with a display of hustle and systematized drills that smack strongly of the Branch Rickey system.

Cards Will Not Trade Max Lanier for Owen

ST. LOUIS, March 26 (AP) — Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, today scoffed at an eastern report that the Redbirds would trade Pitcher Max Lanier for the Brooklyn Dodgers' catcher, Mickey Owen.

"I know nothing of any such deal," Breadon said on his return from a visit to the Cardinals' spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Baltimore Bullets Will Play Dayton

CHICAGO, March 26 (AP) — The world's professional basketball tournament which opened at a 60-point clip features an East-West rivalry tomorrow night when a three-game card closes the first round.

Windup of initial round skirmishing finds the New York Rens meeting Chuck Chukovits's Toledo, Ohio, entry; the Baltimore, Md., Bullets facing the Dayton, Ohio, Bombers; and the Oshkosh, Wis., All-Stars encountering the Detroit Mansfields.

Maryland's Spring Race Season Opens Monday at Bowie

BALTIMORE, March 26—(AP)—With Maryland's spring racing season scheduled to open next Monday at Bowie, the state racing commission will hold a conference tomorrow to "iron out all possible problems."

Track officials and representatives of trainers' and horsemen's organizations were invited to attend the meeting called by Chairman George P. Mahoney.

"It will be recalled that several tracks elsewhere in the country have encountered difficulties recently in their normal operations," Mahoney said.

"The commission felt that it would be advisable to iron out all possible problems before the season opens in Maryland."

He said the discussion would include the use of a mobile laboratory for taking on-the-spot saliva tests of horses running on Maryland tracks.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

MIAMI, Fla., March 27—(AP)—As a fellow whom the dogs often follow but who doesn't follow the dogs we were quite astonished at the manner in which greyhound racing has developed into something of a major industry down here, with four tracks in the immediate vicinity, each operating eighty nights a season.

The dog racing fanciers are quite as enthusiastic about the sport as the horse race enthusiasts, studying form charts just as religiously, tracing the breeds of the animals and otherwise trying to figure out a system to beat a game which can lick anybody who sticks to it long enough.

They can reel off the life histories of such canines as Flashy Sir, who started nine times and won nine times and whose owner refused an offer of $50,000 for the spedster. Or of Bit of Buzz, who finished second in eleven straight races early in the season and consequently was paired, or "wheeled," with every other dog in the race for quiniela betting.

And they can tell you about Purple Panther, a hound running about six years ago which was a remarkably fast breaker but which faded rapidly near the finish, and whose pups show the same tendency thus proving the influence of heredity. And about Bob Trout, which could only win running from the No. 7 or No. 8 box because of its tendency to run wide. It it were placed in a middle box it would either barge into the pack at the first turn or lag behind and swing wide, running itself right out of the race.

Most of the smart bettors consider a dog's chances of getting around the first turn without a jam as in a well-matched race practically any dog can win if it gets the breaks.

Naturally there are the usual number of hunch bettors, the women who pick an animal because of the curl to its tail or because it is pretty; the men who won't bet on a dog that barks too much at the start because they figure it is wasting too much energy.

Dogs Quit In Hurry

There apparently is a difference in the brain power of dogs the same as there is among humans. Flashy Sir is rated one of the smartest, picking its holes and otherwise running a cagey race much as a human runner would do. There have been dogs, though, that, rounding into the home stretch, said "to heck with this business" and jumped the fence and made a bee line for their kennels.

Some dogs lose the incentive to run if they can't see the mechanical rabbit, and they'd certainly lose it if they ever caught the phoney.

The difference in the class of competition sometimes is almost infinitisimal to the average dog player, but it means everything in a race. There was a hound named Korn Kick which, running the "hot box," or feature races, usually came in fifth or sixth or seventh. It was dropped down to a race which went only a fifth of a second slower than the top event, and won easily.

Females Are More Honest

Females are considered more honest than males. That is, they try harder, and also are better routers.

RETURNS TO RING

EZZARD CHARLES, the ebony-skinned knockout artist from Cincinnati, will be out to demonstrate that he has lost none of his prewar brilliance when he faces Billy Duncan in a ten-round supporting bout on the Billy Fox-Ossie Harris fistic headliner at the Pittsburgh Gardens next Monday night. Before joining the army three years ago Charles, then 19, laid low an imposing list of foemen including Anton Christoforidis, Booker Beckwith, Mose Brown and Jose Basore. In his initial postwar bout, Ezzard knocked out Al Sheridan.

Incidentally, a dog four years old is considered old for the sport.

Dog racing, like horse racing, has enjoyed a bumper season both in attendance and wagering, but as far as we could learn one of the side-show events which take place about once a year has not yet been seen.

That occurs when some individual with a warped sense of humor tosses a cat over the fence onto the track to provide a little competition for the rabbit. Usually a couple of the dogs forget all about the rabbit and take off after the more animated target.

Boston Braves Loom as Second Division Team

By JACK HAND

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 26 (AP)—Billy Southworth is launching a shiny new three-year plan in Boston with a first rate outfield but little else to back it up. Serious trouble in the left side of the infield and pitching headaches probably add up to another second division finish.

If money could do the trick, the Braves would win the flag in nothing flat. President Lou Perini and his contracting associates tossed a $500,000 check at Owner Sam Breadon last winter in an unsuccessful attempt to buy Shortstop Marty Marion from the Cardinals. They would do it again if they thought it would do any good.

Boston still has hopes of landing an experienced infielder and some more pitching, but it is not too well prepared to go trading. Cash is their big asset with a smattering of run-of-the-mill surplus talent.

If the Braves could lure Whitey Kurowski from St. Louis, as has often been rumored, they would have a shortstop problem. Breadon has told Perini that Kurowski will remain St. Louis property, at least until he signs his contract. There is absolutely no chance of getting Marion.

The owners are not expecting Southworth to rebuild the world in a single spring. They signed him to a three-year contract with instructions to start rebuilding. Billy the Kid is filling the bill with a display of hustle and systematized drills that smack strongly of the Branch Rickey system.

Cards Will Not Trade Max Lanier for Owen

ST. LOUIS, March 26 (AP) — Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, today scoffed at an eastern report that the Redbirds would trade Pitcher Max Lanier for the Brooklyn Dodgers' catcher, Mickey Owen.

"I know nothing of any such deal," Breadon said on his return from a visit to the Cardinals' spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Baltimore Bullets Will Play Dayton

CHICAGO, March 26 (AP) — The world's professional basketball tournament which opened at a 60-point clip features an East-West rivalry tomorrow night when a three-game card closes the first round.

Windup of initial round skirmishing finds the New York Rens meeting Chuck Chukovits's Toledo, Ohio, entry; the Baltimore, Md., Bullets facing the Dayton, Ohio, Bombers; and the Oshkosh, Wis., All-Stars encountering the Detroit Mansfields.

Maryland's Spring Race Season Opens Monday at Bowie

BALTIMORE, March 26—(AP)—With Maryland's spring racing season scheduled to open next Monday at Bowie, the state racing commission will hold a conference tomorrow to "iron out all possible problems."

Track officials and representatives of trainers' and horsemen's organizations were invited to attend the meeting called by Chairman George F. Mahoney.

"It will be recalled that several tracks elsewhere in the country have encountered difficulties recently in their normal operations," Mahoney said.

"The commission felt that it would be advisable to iron out all possible problems before the season opens in Maryland."

He said the discussion would include the use of a mobile laboratory for taking on-the-spot saliva tests of horses running on Maryland tracks.

Bishops' Program At Hollywood Is Booked by Radio

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 26 (AP)—A special for ABC on Wednesday night at 10 is to be the bishops' committee program in which Hollywood actors and a cardinal will participate. The pickup from Hollywood will include Pedro de Cardoba, and J. Carroll Naish, with Samuel Cardinal Stritch speaking from Chicago.

Spotlight bands of MBS is on its last week of visits to military camps and war factories, for next week instead of guest orchestras it will have a regular crew and fixed point for broadcast. Wednesday at 9:30 the band will be that of Johnny Long, playing from the hangar deck of the aircraft carrier Wasp at Bayonne, N. J.

The Bob Crosby show guest on CBS at 9:30 (the program recently moved from Tuesdays) is to be Lina Romay. She specializes in songs from south of the border, particularly in the film. . . Also guesting for the evening is Rose Marie, now considerably grown up over the days when she once was billed as Baby Rose Marie. Her singing is to come in the "Radio Supper Club" of NBC at 7.

"This is Your Country," MBS 4:30 program in which the USAAF band delivers a salute to a different state, will direct its attention this time to Vermont. The show runs half an hour.

Later on via CBS at 10 "Grand Moments in Music" says it is going to have a display of the songs "that will never die," as David Ross is back for any and all narration.

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Bertha Estella Stickley, whom God called Home three years ago today, March 27, 1943.

OUR MOTHER
Oh, the memory of that evening,
As we stood with aching hearts
To see the one we loved so dearly
From us forever part.

And the spirit ever loving
Hovers still around us here,
Everything and place reminds us
Of a precious Mother dear.

But our lonely hearts are aching,
For the face and smile we miss,
And we long for the dear Mother
Whom we never more shall kiss.

GIVING TREES A SHOT IN ARM SPEEDS THEIR REJUVENATION

SHOOTING TREES with this gun perks them up quickly.

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

BERKELEY, Calif.—Like human beings who receive "shots" of calcium or iron, trees now can be given injections to speed the diagnosis and treatment of the nutritional deficiencies.

Microscopic amounts of elements such as zinc, copper, boron, manganese and iron are shot directly into the sapwood, which is the tree's equivalent of veins and arteries, with a tree gun developed by Dr. J. P. Bennett, professor of plant pathology of the University of California.

Vaguely resembling a target pistol, the gun consists mainly of a brass tube for a barrel and a plunger which forces the micro elements out through the muzzle end. A hole is bored in the tree trunk or in a limb, the elements are shot in and the hole is sealed with a hardwood plug.

The results, if any, are apparent in a few months, or even in weeks, because the injection acts much more quickly than if the elements were applied in the natural way, through the soil, or by spraying the leaves. The effects of soil treatment or spraying often are not apparent until a season passes, and sometimes are delayed a year or more.

With the gun the plant expert also can do some sharpshooting.

Often trees will not flourish if just one micro-element has been depleted from the soil. To determine the single deficient substance, the expert can inject copper into one limb of a tree, zinc into another limb of the same tree, boron into another, and so on.

Ailing pear, peach and apple orchards have been made healthy and even eucalyptus and acacia trees and rose bushes have been treated successfully with a little iron. Pear trees have been made more productive with a few handfuls of copper salts. Olive trees which lived but never bore fruit were made to flourish with a little boron.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Bertha Estella Stickley, whom God called Home three years ago today, March 27, 1943.

OUR MOTHER

Oh, the memory of that evening,
As we stood with aching hearts
To see the one we loved so dearly
From us forever part.

And the spirit ever loving
Hovers still around us here,
Everything and place reminds us
Of a precious Mother dear.

But our lonely hearts are aching,
For the face and smile we miss,
And we long for the dear Mother
Whom we never more shall kiss.

Sadly missed by her children,
MRS. HAZEL B. BURKE
CLARENCE AND PAUL STICKLEY

GIVING TREES A SHOT IN ARM SPEEDS THEIR REJUVENATION

SHOOTING TREES with this gun perks them up quickly.

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Writer

BERKELEY, Calif.—Like human beings who receive "shots" of calcium or iron, trees now can be given injections to speed the diagnosis and treatment of the nutritional deficiencies.

Microscopic amounts of elements such as zinc, copper, boron, manganese and iron are shot directly into the sapwood, which is the tree's equivalent of veins and arteries, with a tree gun developed by Dr. J. P. Bennett, professor of plant pathology of the University of California.

Vaguely resembling a target pistol, the gun consists mainly of a brass tube for a barrel and a plunger which forces the micro elements out through the muzzle end. A hole is bored in the tree trunk or in a limb, the elements are shot in and the hole is sealed with a hardwood plug.

The results, if any, are apparent in a few months, or even in weeks, because the injection acts much more quickly than if the elements were applied in the natural way, through the soil, or by spraying the leaves. The effects of soil treatment or spraying often are not apparent until a season passes, and sometimes are delayed a year or more.

With the gun the plant expert also can do some sharpshooting.

Often trees will not flourish if just one micro-element has been depleted from the soil. To determine the single deficient substance, the expert can inject copper into one limb of a tree, zinc into another limb of the same tree, boron into another, and so on.

Ailing pear, peach and apple orchards have been made healthy and even eucalyptus and acacia trees and rose bushes have been treated successfully with a little iron. Pear trees have been made more productive with a few handfuls of copper salts. Olive trees which lived but never bore fruit were made to flourish with a little boron.

Celanese Company To Grant Vacation Pay to Veterans

The Celanese Corporation of America yesterday announced details of a plan whereby employes who served in the armed forces will receive vacation pay based on length of service at the Amcelle plant and with the military service.

The plan insures that each veteran will receive vacation pay for the first year of his return to the plant and will affect all servicemen who resumed duty since last April.

Plant officials disclosed that the plan was set in operation several weeks ago but did not comment on the cost of the vacation plan.

Issues Statement

"To ensure that veterans receive credit for full vacation pay during the first year following return from military service the company has decided to liberalize vacation procedure in respect to veterans.

"Veterans returning to work after May 1, 1945, but prior to May 1, 1946, will qualify for a full vacation pay during this vacation year. The amount of vacation pay is governed by length of service and the veterans having combined plant and military service of five years or more will receive a minimum of vacation pay of eighty hours at base pay.

Cannot Give Time Off

"If the veterans have a combined plant and military service of less than five years but more than one year he will receive 40 hours vacation pay at base rate. These vacation pays are now being prepared."

Allan said the company will not give time off in lieu of the vacation pays. At present there are 2,936 veterans who have returned to work at the plant and 2,000 others are still to come. About 150 have indicated they will return in the near future after taking short vacations.

Board Grants Two Occupancy Appeals

Two appeals for occupancy permits were granted yesterday evening at a special meeting of the board of zoning appeals, according to J. E. Wetzel, chairman.

Joseph E. Dennison, 141 North Mechanic street, was granted permission to occupy a proposed building, to be located at 631-633 North Mechanic street, as a retail paint store and garage.

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, had denied Dennison's application because the property is located in a Residential C zoning district. The board ruled, however, that since Dennison had owned the property before the zoning ordinance went into effect in November, 1944, and had been unable to erect a building before that time because of wartime restrictions, the application should be granted.

E. G. A. Snider was granted his appeal for a permit to occupy the second story of a building at the rear of 142 Pelk street as a sign shop. Rizer had denied the application because the two-story structure is located in a Residential C zoning district. The board ruled, however, that the premises had previously been used for business purposes and that they are not adapted to residential use.

China Will Have New Civil War, Abend Asserts

The best that General Marshall will be able to achieve in China before civil war breaks out anew will be a truce lasting between six months and a year in the opinion of Hallett Abend, Far Eastern correspondent for the New York Times for the last fifteen years, who last night warned his audience at Allegany high school that "you won't be hearing any cheerful news from me here tonight."

Abend was as good as his word. His audience, attending the initial Community Forum presentation of the season, listened glumly as the speaker elaborated on the premise that: millions of people in colonial possessions all over the world are becoming bitter against the United States which supposedly fought World War II, as a war of liberation based on the idealistic precepts of the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms.

With the war concluded, Abend pointed out that the United States has resorted to armed intervention in China and has stood by as the old colonial powers have moved back into their former possessions and have quelled native uprisings with weapons carrying United States trademarks furnished through lend-lease.

Paints Grim Picture

Speaking on China specifically, Abend stated that the picture out there is "very grim—and may at any time lead us into another conflict such as the one we just finished."

Abend said that in trying to understand what Marshall is up against that it should be remembered that in 1926-27 Russia shipped great quantities of war materials to Canton to assist the Nationalist armies of Chiang Kai-Shek who got his start as a "tool of Russia." The speaker recalled that Chiang's armies, in those days, marched chanting the slogans: "Down with unequal treaties, Out with the White Men, Down with the Christians, Down with the Americans and Down with the British."

Abend said that he has no confidence whatsoever in the continuity of good relationships that exist presently between China and Russia and recalled that Stalin was infuriated with Chiang when he broke with him and has always referred

OPA Dismisses Its Complaint Against C. H. Wolfe

A complaint filed by the Office of Price Administration against Charles H. Wolfe, 105 North Centre street, meat market, has been dismissed and settled out of court with apologies to Wolfe from the OPA, according to Harold E. Naughton, Wolfe's attorney.

The complaint filed in United States District Court by Francis Key Murray, of Baltimore, OPA litigation attorney, on February 18, 1946, alleged that Wolfe had been paying in excess of ceiling prices for live beef cattle. The court was asked to restrain him from making such purchases.

According to Naughton, and a copy of the complaint on file in his office, records purported to show that Wolfe had paid a total of $8,123.46 for meat, on which the ceiling price should have been $7,894.84.

Naughton had the accounts audited, and all records were checked and re-checked. It was found that the actual ceiling price on this meat, according to OPA regulations, should have been $8,907.45.

This information was submitted to OPA, and their audit indicated that Naughton's figures and statement were correct. The suit was withdrawn immediately and Naughton has a letter in which Murray states the error is regretted and OPA is sorry for any embarrassment caused his client, Wolfe.

Old Rail V.F.W. Post, Mt. Savage, Buys Building

MT. SAVAGE, March 26—Old Rail Post, No. 6025, Veterans of Foreign Wars, announced following a meeting tonight, that it had purchased the New theater building on Main street for its home and an up to date club. Remodeling work will be started at once.

The buff, brick building, was purchased from the Mt. Savage Amusement Company, and while the exact price was not announced, it was reported the veterans paid several thousand dollars for the structure.

The building committee is composed of Edward Stoll, James E. Crump, William Witte, Edward J. Murray, and Joseph Porter.

Announcement was made that an important meeting of the post will be held Wednesday night in the Junior Order hall, and all members of the post are urgently requested to be present.

Salvation Army Cadet Crusaders' Program Arranged

A brigade of Cadet Crusaders from the Salvation Army Training college, Atlanta, Ga., will visit Cumberland April 4 and 5, and Adjt. Robert S. Ball, local commander, said last night a program has been arranged for their visit here.

On Thursday, April 4, a downtown open air service will be held at 3 p. m. A radio broadcast over station WTBO at 5:45 p. m. will be followed by a fellowship luncheon at 6 p. m., an open air service at 7:15 p. m., and an evening service to which the public is invited at 8 p. m.

The schedule for Friday, April 5, calls for a school assembly in the morning, a meeting at the B. and O. bolt and forge shop at noon; an open air meeting at 2:30 p. m., a young people's meeting in South Cumberland at 4 p. m., an open air service in South Cumberland at 7:15 p. m. and an evening service at the Virginia avenue outpost to which the public is invited at 8 p. m.

The local visit will be one of several being conducted in the Maryland and Northern West Virginia division of the Salvation Army from April 2 to April 14 and is part of the field training for Salvation Army officership that all cadets must have before being commissioned.

Cadets spend nine months in the Southern Training college, Atlanta, and at the end of that period receive commissions as probationary officers. A probationary period of one year in a field of social service follows and if completed satisfactorily, a full commission is given.

Adjt. Robert Bott and Capt. George Marshall, training officers, will be in charge of the brigade, and will be accompanied by Maj. Albert Walker, Clarksburg, W. Va.

Five Persons Treated In Allegany Hospital

Colin Bowers, 36, Route 1, Hyndman, Pa., a Cement Products Company worker, was treated in Allegany hospital last evening after he ran a nail into his right foot at work. Also treated in Allegany hospital last evening were:

Mrs. Eudora Brown, 35, 408 Bedford street, for a left ankle injury. X-rays will be taken today, attaches said.

Ralph Bishop, 9, 542 North Mechanic street, for a dislocated right elbow suffered when he fell from a table.

David Fogel, 29, 303 Maryland avenue, was treated in Allegany hospital yesterday morning for a laceration of the third finger of the left hand suffered, he said, when he was struck by a large rock.

White's Release On $2,000 Bond Is Authorized

Garrett Murder Case Will Be Presented to September Grand Jury

Fourth judicial circuit judges at Garrett County court, Oakland, yesterday afternoon authorized the release on $2,000 bond of William White, 70, Gorman, charged with murder in the fatal shooting Saturday night of Irvin Steyer, 35, also of Gorman, according to State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley.

The state's attorney said White's case will be brought before the grand jury at the September term of court. There had been some conjecture that the March grand jury might be recalled to hear the evidence.

Although White's release was authorized, he still had not posted bond last night, according to Fraley, and remained a prisoner in the Garrett county jail at Oakland.

White was represented at court yesterday by Walter Dawson and William R. Offutt, attorneys.

A warrant charging White with Steyer's murder was issued Monday by Magistrate H. A. Loraditch, Oakland, on information provided by Sheriff George E. Coddington.

Fraley said White has admitted shooting Steyer, his employer at a sugar camp, with a shotgun. He added that Steyer was shot as he entered the kitchen door of White home.

The state's attorney quoted White's wife as saying the two men had been quarreling and drinking heavily Saturday afternoon and early evening. She left the house with their two daughters but returned when she heard the shotgun blast.

Welfare Board Asks $128,056 For 1946 Budget

The county welfare board yesterday submitted its budget for 1946 and asked the county commissioners for an appropriation of $128,056.57 when the levy list is drawn up next month.

Under the proposed budget, approved by J. Milton Patterson, director of the state department of public welfare, $512,412.29 would be spent in the county for public assistance, aid to the blind, old age pensions and other welfare work. The state and federal government would provide the balance of $393,355.72.

The budget for the fiscal year was submitted to the commissioners by C. William Gilchrist, chairman of the welfare board; Miss Elinor Westerfeld, executive secretary; Thomas B. Finan and Miss Anna McLane, Cumberland, and John C. Cobey, Frostburg.

May Make Repairs

Two persons suggested for possible appointment to fill board vacancies will not be able to serve, the commissioners were informed. They are Mrs. J. Orville Fier, Cumberland, and Edwin Elias, Frostburg.

John H. Carscaden, county engineer, was asked to investigate the needs of the welfare board as to improved lighting and repairs to the board's office, Cumberland street.

Somerville Nicholson, supervisor of assessments, and C. R. Woodard, an attache of the office, were named to assist war veterans in locating county-owned lots which have been offered as home sites, and to give them other assistance in such projects.

Suggests Library Meeting

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr. attorney to the board, suggested that the commissioners meet next week with the Cumberland mayor and council and the board of the Cumberland Free Public Library regarding the proposed appropriation of $20,000 in the 1946 levy for establishing and

COMPLAINTS MADE THAT STUDENT PILOTS FLY TOO LOW OVER CITY

Commission Votes To Ask Airport Manager To Make an Investigation

Because of recent complaints that student pilots from the Cumberland Municipal Airport have been flying too low over the city, and especially over local industrial plants, the municipal airport commission voted last night to ask John A. Chapman, airport manager, to investigate the complaints and to take necessary action.

The motion, made by G. Wyatt Brenaman and seconded by Arthur J. Weber, pointed out that several violations of Civil Air Board regulations had been brought to the attention of the commission, and suggested that Chapman take the necessary steps to correct the "irregularities."

Discussion of the matter arose when T. Donald Shires, commission secretary, read a communication from the Rev. Robert M. Campbell, pastor of Southminster Presbyterian church, complaining about low flying by student pilots.

Guard Rail Constructed

Charles Z. Heskett, whose services as airport director will expire March 31, pointed out that in minor violations of Civil Air Board regulations, the state aviation commission can have a pilot brought before a magistrate and fined for misdemeanor if found guilty. In more flagrant violations, Heskett said, the Civil Aeronautics Administration may order a pilot's license suspended.

On the motion of Heskett, seconded by Weber, the commission voted unanimously to designate Mayor Thomas S. Post, the ex-officio member of the group, the agent of the commission for signing payrolls and approving minor expenditures made from time to time in the ordinary operation of the airport.

Charles F. Heller, airport foreman, reported to the commission that he had found it necessary to construct a 1,250-foot guardrail to protect the parking area and entrance lot at the airport, instead of the estimated 750-foot guardrail. He said he cost was slightly over $200.

Will Prepare Budget

He also reported that 200 tons of screening, at $2 per ton, were delivered for use in road work at the port.

Edmund S. Burke, commission chairman, asked Heller to prepare a budget for the next fiscal year, to be submitted to the commission at its next meeing April 25.

Shires was auhorized to purchase a tractor and power mower for use at the airport, following approval by the city council of the proposed expenditures. The secretary reported recently that he had received only one bid, from the Rish Equipment Company, Clarksburg, W. Va., which bid $756.28 for an International tractor and $193 for a five-foot mower.

Regarding arrangements to secure a surplus army plane for exhibition use at the airport, Heskett reported that the type of plane will be a B-17 Flying Fortress, but that final arrangements are incomplete.

UNO Charter Is Termed Helpful Maintaining Peace

Rotarians listened to a panel discussion of the United Nations charter yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Central Y.M.C.A.

The panel comprised the Rev. David C. Watson, Tasker G. Lowndes, Henry C. Swearingen and Porter D. Collins, and their talks were based on a booklet, "From Here On!" published by Rotary International and containing the text of the charter with annotations. Copies of the booklet were distributed to members at the close of the discussion.

Each speaker took up different sections of the charter, and explained the structure and objectives of the world organization for peace.

The concensus of the observations was that the charter is an effective instrumentality for averting war and promoting peace. The Rev. Mr. Watson served as moderator and in his introductory remarks said that while the charter was not perfect, being outdated by the atomic bomb development it nevertheless formed the basis on which the nation of the world can get together and avert catastrophe.

There is no longer any argument as to whether we should be in the organization, the Rev. Mr. Watson said, as we are in it now and the real question is now to make it work effectively.

Lowndes declared there are sufficient teeth in it for that end, after detailing the successive steps possible from prevention of trouble to the possible use of sanctions or force as may be agreed upon.

It forms the only hope to which peace-loving people can turn for holding aggression in check, Swearingen said.

Perpetuation of the Court of International Justice and the abolition of secret treaties are important factors, Collins said.

All agreed that the greatest force involved is the pressure of world public opinion, as recently instanced in the case of Russia and Iran.

Announcement was made that the annual Ladies' night event would be held at 7:30 p. m. April 23 at the Ali Ghan Country Club.

Birthday honors were accorded J. Corwin Patterson and Arthur C. Bright.

Fazenbaker Gets Suspended Term In State Prison

Bittinger Man Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter in Wilt Death

Herman Fazenbaker, 23, Bittinger, received a suspended sentence of three years in the Maryland House of correction yesterday afternoon in Garrett County Circuit Court at Oakland after earlier in the day he entered a plea of guilty to manslaughter in the death last October of Loman Wilt, 42, also of Bittinger.

Sentence was imposed by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judges Walter C. Capper and Joseph D. Mish, the latter of Hagerstown. Sentence was suspended on condition that Fazenbaker be of good behavior.

Plea Is Accepted

Fazenbaker was scheduled to go on trial on a murder charge yesterday morning, but his attorney, E. Ray Jones entered the plea of guilty to manslaughter as the case came to trial.

The plea was accepted by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, and he and Jones presented statements to the court.

Fazenbaker was indicted in the death of Wilt who was fatally wounded October 17 while in the woods near Bittinger. He died several days later in Memorial hospital here.

Fraley said Fazenbaker admitted firing the shot, but said he was frightened by a flashlight in the hands of Wilt.

State police quoted Fazenbaker as saying he was hunting deer out of season when he was discovered after nightfall by Wilt and Allen Stanton, who were returning home on a rural road after a hunting trip.

Heard Shot in Woods

Stanton told officers they heard a shot in the woods, investigated and saw Fazenbaker who had a carbide lamp on his hat. They shone a flashlight on him and Fazenbaker fired, Stanton said. The shot hit Wilt in the abdomen, groin and right arm.

Fraley said Fazenbaker declared his first shot was fired at what he thought was a deer.

Sgt. Harold C. Carl and Trooper Glen D. Folk, of the state police, investigated.

Charged with manslaughter by automobile in the death of his brother, Robert Duda, 16, in an automobile accident Friday morning near Grantsville, Michael Duda, 21, Brownsville, Pa., received a suspended fine of $250 at a hearing Monday before Magistrate J. U. Stanton, Grantsville.

State police said Duda was driving the car that collided with the automobile operated by Thomas G. Calabrese, Teaneck, N. J. He entered into an agreement with Calabrese to pay $700 for damages to the latter's machine.

Michael Duda suffered severe shock, multiple bruises and slight brain concussion in the crash and was a patient in Miners hospital, Frostburg, until Monday morning. His brother died of a broken neck and fractured skull. Calabrese was treated by a Grantsville physician for a lacerated upper lip and knee injury, and his wife, Mrs. Betty Calabrese, suffered an injured right leg.

Trooper Blair J. Buckel, who investigated, said the car occupied by the brothers collided with the Calabrese machine after getting out of control. The Duda machine, he added, was on the wrong side of the road and apparently traveling at a terrific rate of speed.

Textile Workers Seek Wage Boosts

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, opened negotiations yesterday with the Celanese Corporation of America for a general wage increase for its more than 9,500 members employed at the Amcelle plant.

Celanese Company To Grant Vacation Pay to Veterans

The Celanese Corporation of America yesterday announced details of a plan whereby employes who served in the armed forces will receive vacation pay based on length of service at the Amcelle plant and with the military service.

The plan insures that each veteran will receive vacation pay for the first year of his return to the plant and will affect all servicemen who resumed duty since last April.

Plant officials disclosed that the plan was set in operation several weeks ago but did not comment on the cost of the vacation plan.

Issues Statement

The statement issued by Edward Allan, personnel manager of the local plant, follows:

"To ensure that veterans receive credit for full vacation pay during the first year following return from military service the company has decided to liberalize vacation procedure in respect to veterans.

"Veterans returning to work after May 1, 1945, but prior to May 1, 1946, will qualify for a full vacation pay during this vacation year. The amount of vacation pay is governed by length of service and the veterans having combined plant and military service of five years or more will receive a minimum of vacation pay of eighty hours at base pay.

Cannot Give Time Off

"If the veterans have a combined plant and military service of less than five years but more than one year he will receive 40 hours vacation pay at base rate. These vacation pays are now being prepared."

Allan said the company will not give time off in lieu of the vacation pays. At present there are 2,936 veterans who have returned to work at the plant and 2,000 others are still to come. About 150 have indicated they will return in the near future after taking short vacations.

Board Grants Two Occupancy Appeals

Two appeals for occupancy permits were granted yesterday evening at a special meeting of the board of zoning appeals, according to J. E. Wetzel, chairman.

Joseph E. Dennison, 141 North Mechanic street, was granted permission to occupy a proposed building, to be located at 631-633 North Mechanic street, as a retail paint store and garage.

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, had denied Dennison's application because the property is located in a Residential C zoning district. The board ruled, however, that since Dennison had owned the property before the zoning ordinance went into effect in November, 1944, and had been unable to erect a building before that time because of wartime restrictions, the application should be granted.

E. G. A. Snider was granted his appeal for a permit to occupy the second story of a building at the rear of 142 Polk street as a sign shop. Rizer had denied the application because the two-story structure is located in a Residential C zoning district. The board ruled, however, that the premises had previously been used for business purposes and that they are not adapted to residential use.

China Will Have New Civil War, Abend Asserts

The best that General Marshall will be able to achieve in China before civil war breaks out anew will be a truce lasting between six months and a year in the opinion of Hallett Abend, Far Eastern correspondent for the New York Times for the last fifteen years, who last night warned his audience at Allegany high school that "you won't be hearing any cheerful news from me here tonight."

Abend was as good as his word. His audience, attending the initial Community Forum presentation of the season, listened glumly as the speaker elaborated on the premise that: millions of people in colonial possessions all over the world are becoming bitter against the United States which supposedly fought World War II, as a war of liberation based on the idealistic precepts of the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms.

With the war concluded, Abend pointed out that the United States has resorted to armed intervention in China and has stood by as the old colonial powers have moved back into their former possessions and have quelled native uprisings with weapons carrying United States trademarks furnished through lend-lease.

Paints Grim Picture

Speaking on China specifically, Abend stated that the picture out there is "very grim—and may at any time lead us into another conflict such as the one we just finished."

Abend said that in trying to understand what Marshall is up against that it should be remembered that in 1926-27 Russia shipped great quantities of war materials to Canton to assist the Nationalist armies of Chiang Kai-Shek who got his start as a "tool of Russia." The speaker recalled that Chiang's armies, in those days, marched chanting the slogans: "Down with unequal treaties, Out with the White Men, Down with the Christians, Down with the Americans and Down with the British."

Abend said that he has no confidence whatsoever in the continuity of good relationships that exist presently between China and Russia and recalled that Stalin was infuriated with Chiang when he broke with him and has always referred

A complaint filed by the Office of Price Administration against Charles H. Wolfe, 105 North Centre street, meat market, has been dismissed and settled out of court with apologies to Wolfe from the OPA, according to Harold E. Naughton, Wolfe's attorney.

The complaint filed in United States District Court by Francis Key Murray, of Baltimore, OPA litigation attorney, on February 18, 1946, alleged that Wolfe had been paying in excess of ceiling prices for live beef cattle. The court was asked to restrain him from making such purchases.

According to Naughton, and a copy of the complaint on file in his office, records purported to show that Wolfe had paid a total of $8,123.46 for meat, on which the ceiling price should have been $7,894.84.

Naughton had the accounts audited, and all records were checked and re-checked. It was found that the actual ceiling price on this meat, according to OPA regulations, should have been $8,907.45.

This information was submitted to OPA, and their audit indicated that Naughton's figures and statement were correct. The suit was withdrawn immediately and Naughton has a letter in which Murray states the error is regretted and OPA is sorry for any embarrassment caused his client, Wolfe.

White's Release On $2,000 Bond Is Authorized

Garrett Murder Case Will Be Presented to September Grand Jury

Fourth judicial circuit judges at Garrett County court, Oakland, yesterday afternoon authorized the release on $2,000 bond of William White, 70, Gorman, charged with murder in the fatal shooting Saturday night of Irvin Steyer, 35, also of Gorman, according to State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley.

The state's attorney said White's case will be brought before the grand jury at the September term of court. There had been some conjecture that the March grand jury might be recalled to hear the evidence.

Although White's release was authorized, he still had not posted bond last night, according to Fraley, and remained a prisoner in the Garrett county jail at Oakland.

White was represented at court yesterday by Walter Dawson and William R. Offutt, attorneys.

A warrant charging White with Steyer's murder was issued Monday by Magistrate H. A. Loraditch, Oakland, on information provided by Sheriff George E. Coddington.

Fraley said White has admitted shooting Steyer, his employer at a sugar camp, with a shotgun. He added that Steyer was shot as he entered the kitchen door of White home.

The state's attorney quoted White's wife as saying the two men had been quarreling and drinking heavily Saturday afternoon and early evening. She left the house with their two daughters but returned when she heard the shotgun blast.

Welfare Board Asks $128,056 For 1946 Budget

The county welfare board yesterday submitted its budget for 1946 and asked the county commissioners for an appropriation of $128,056.57 when the levy list is drawn up next month.

Under the proposed budget, approved by J. Milton Patterson, director of the state department of public welfare, $512,412.29 would be spent in the county for public assistance, aid to the blind, old age pensions and other welfare work. The state and federal government would provide the balance of $393,355.72.

The budget for the fiscal year was submitted to the commissioners by C. William Gilchrist, chairman of the welfare board; Miss Elinor Westerfeld, executive secretary; Thomas B. Finan and Miss Anna McLane, Cumberland, and John C. Cobey, Frostburg.

May Make Repairs

Two persons suggested for possible appointment to fill board vacancies will not be able to serve, the commissioners were informed. They are Mrs. J. Orville Fier, Cumberland, and Edwin Elias, Frostburg.

John H. Carscaden, county engineer, was asked to investigate the needs of the welfare board as to improved lighting and repairs to the board's office, Cumberland street.

Somerville Nicholson, supervisor of assessments, and C. R. Woodard, an attache of the office, were named to assist war veterans in locating county-owned lots which have been offered as home sites, and to give them other assistance in such projects.

Suggests Library Meeting

Horace P. Whitworth, Sr. attorney to the board, suggested that the commissioners meet next week with the Cumberland mayor and council and the board of the Cumberland Free Public Library regarding the proposed appropriation of $20,000 in the 1946 levy for establishing and

COMPLAINTS MADE THAT STUDENT PILOTS FLY TOO LOW OVER CITY

Commission Votes To Ask Airport Manager To Make an Investigation

Because of recent complaints that student pilots from the Cumberland Municipal Airport have been flying too low over the city, and especially over local industrial plants, the municipal airport commission voted last night to ask John A. Chapman, airport manager, to investigate the complaints and to take necessary action.

The motion, made by G. Wyatt Brenaman and seconded by Arthur J. Weber, pointed out that several violations of Civil Air Board regulations had been brought to the attention of the commission, and suggested that Chapman take the necessary steps to correct the "irregularities."

Discussion of the matter arose when T. Donald Shires, commission secretary, read a communication from the Rev. Robert M. Campbell, pastor of Southminster Presbyterian church, complaining about low flying by student pilots.

Guard Rail Constructed

Charles Z. Heskett, whose services as airport director will expire March 31, pointed out that in minor violations of Civil Air Board regulations, the state aviation commission can have a pilot brought before a magistrate and fined for misdemeanor if found guilty. In more flagrant violations, Heskett said, the Civil Aeronautics Administration may order a pilot's license suspended.

On the motion of Heskett, seconded by Weber, the commission voted unanimously to designate Mayor Thomas S. Post, the ex-officio member of the group, the agent of the commission for signing payrolls and approving minor expenditures made from time to time in the ordinary operation of the airport.

Charles F. Heller, airport foreman, reported to the commission that he had found it necessary to construct a 1,250-foot guardrail to protect the parking area and entrance lot at the airport, instead of the estimated 750-foot guardrail. He said he cost was slightly over $200.

Will Prepare Budget

He also reported that 200 tons of screening, at $2 per ton, were delivered for use in road work at the port.

Edmund S. Burke, commission chairman, asked Heller to prepare a budget for the next fiscal year, to be submitted to the commission at its next meeing April 25.

Shires was auhorized to purchase a tractor and power mower for use at the airport, following approval by the city council of the proposed expenditures. The secretary reported recently that he had received only one bid, from the Rish Equipment Company, Clarksburg, W. Va., which bid $756.28 for an International tractor and $193 for a five-foot mower.

Regarding arrangements to secure a surplus army plane for exhibition use at the airport, Heskett reported that the type of plane will be a B-17 Flying Fortress, but that final arrangements are incomplete.

UNO Charter Is Termed Helpful Maintaining Peace

Rotarians listened to a panel discussion of the United Nations charter yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Central Y.M.C.A.

The panel comprised the Rev. David C. Watson, Tasker G. Lowndes, Henry C. Swearingen and Porter D. Collins, and their talks were based on a booklet, "From Here On!" published by Rotary International and containing the text of the charter with annotations. Copies of the booklet were distributed to members at the close of the discussion.

Each speaker took up different sections of the charter, and explained the structure and objectives of the world organization for peace.

The concensus of the observations was that the charter is an effective instrumentality for averting war and promoting peace. The Rev. Mr. Watson served as moderator and in his introductory remarks said that while the charter was not perfect, being outdated by the atomic bomb development it nevertheless formed the basis on which the nation of the world can get together and avert catastrophe.

There is no longer any argument as to whether we should be in the organization, the Rev. Mr. Watson said, as we are in it now and the real question is now to make it work effectively.

Lowndes declared there are sufficient teeth in it for that end, after detailing the successive steps possible from prevention of trouble to the possible use of sanctions or force as may be agreed upon.

It forms the only hope to which peace-loving people can turn for holding aggression in check, Swearingen said.

Perpetuation of the Court of International Justice and the abolition of secret treaties are important factors, Collins said.

All agreed that the greatest force involved is the pressure of world public opinion, as recently instanced in the case of Russia and Iran.

Bittinger Man Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter in Wilt Death

Herman Fazenbaker, 23, Bittinger, received a suspended sentence of three years in the Maryland House of correction yesterday afternoon in Garrett County Circuit Court at Oakland after earlier in the day he entered a plea of guilty to manslaughter in the death last October of Loman Wilt, 42, also of Bittinger.

Sentence was imposed by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judges Walter C. Capper and Joseph D. Mish, the latter of Hagerstown. Sentence was suspended on condition that Fazenbaker be of good behavior.

Plea Is Accepted

Fazenbaker was scheduled to go on trial on a murder charge yesterday morning, but his attorney, E. Ray Jones entered the plea of guilty to manslaughter as the case came to trial.

The plea was accepted by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, and he and Jones presented statements to the court.

Fazenbaker was indicted in the death of Wilt who was fatally wounded October 17 while in the woods near Bittinger. He died several days later in Memorial hospital here.

Fraley said Fazenbaker admitted firing the shot, but said he was frightened by a flashlight in the hands of Wilt.

State police quoted Fazenbaker as saying he was hunting deer out of season when he was discovered after nightfall by Wilt and Allen Stanton, who were returning home on a rural road after a hunting trip.

Heard Shot in Woods

Stanton told officers they heard a shot in the woods, investigated and saw Fazenbaker who had a carbide lamp on his hat. They shone a flashlight on him and Fazenbaker fired, Stanton said. The shot hit Wilt in the abdomen, groin and right arm.

Fraley said Fazenbaker declared his first shot was fired at what he thought was a deer.

Sgt. Harold C. Carl and Trooper Glen D. Folk, of the state police, investigated.
